Prosecutors eye Nixon testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government prosecutors reportedly would like President Nixon to testify on how the Watergate coverup could have been carried out without his knowledge, but are said to feel a subpoena would be of dubious constitutionality.

The Washington Post, quoting Justice Department sources, said today that the President's role in the scandal is the only key question remaining to be clarified in the grand jury investigation.

The prosecutors are reported to have told their superiors that evidence obtained thus far justifies questioning the President about how his closest aides could have kept knowledge of a coverup from him.

"The President should be given an opportunity to explain himself," the Post quoted a source as saying.

"The Watergate investigation has run smack into the Constitution. We now must deal with the question of how the President can be investigated ...," said a Justice Department source quoted in the story. According to the account, officials believe the Constitution prevents subpoenaing the President.

Meanwhile, Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said the Senate Watergate investigating committee will call former high-level administration officials to testify "by the end of June." Baker, vice chairman of the committee that resumes hearings June 5, said John N. Mitchell, H.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and John W. Dean III would not be called before then.

The Post's sources reported that prosecutors have recommended the indictments of Mitchell, former attorney general, and Haldeman and Ehrlichman, both White House aides who have resigned.

The Post's account brought a sharp retort from White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler. He said the story, if true, "reflects a shocking and irresponsible abuse of authority on the part of the prosecutors .... Grand jury proceedings are by law secret."

Ziegler said the White House has asked Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson and Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox "to investigate the circumstances of these anonymous charges against the President of the United States—and to do so immediately."

The Post quoted a source as saying "There is no bombshell tucked away. Rather there is an evidentiary pattern" that raises questions about the President's role. "No document does it," the source said.

CBS News has reported that Dean, White House Counsel who was fired by President Nixon, has been offered immunity from all charges except one of obstructing justice, if he testifies about "all he knows" concerning Watergate.

Ohio Constitution revisions eyed by commission

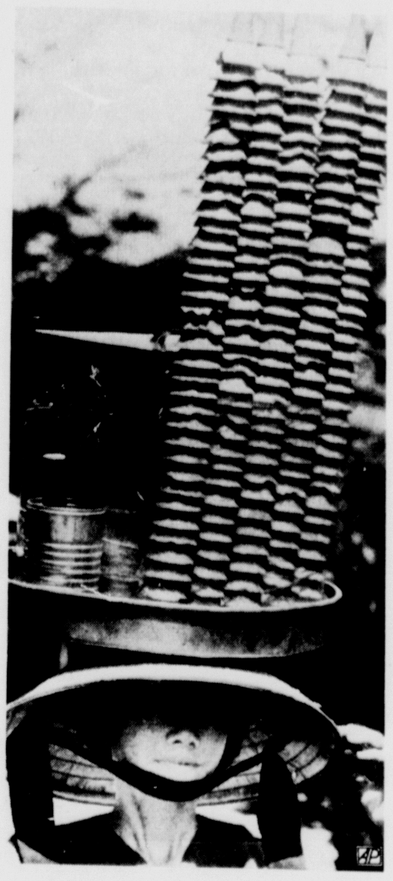

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Constitutional Revision Commission will hold a public hearing June 14 on proposals dealing with the powers and organization of county governments.

Amendments recommended by the commission's Local Government Committee would:

—Allow the legislature to recognize four different classes of counties in writing laws and extending limited "home rule" powers to county governments.

—Relax requirements for the adoption of county charters and update provisions for county charter commissions.

—Require that legislative action to change county boundaries be subject to automatic voter referendum.

The toll: 48 dead, $100 million damage

160 twisters rake nation!

By CRAIG AMMERMAN
Associated Press Writer

A record number of tornadoes dipped to earth from storm systems across the Midwest and South over the Memorial Day weekend, claiming at least 48 lives in multi-million dollar trails of destruction.

Several small towns were all but obliterated as about 160 tornadoes turned the long weekend into a holiday of horror for thousands.

Deaths were reported in 11 states from Oklahoma to Florida, and at least six other states reeled under heavy rains, high winds and flash floods.

The National Weather Service said the number of tornadoes reported between Saturday and Monday eclipsed any previous 72-hour period on record.

Among the victims of the weekend weather were farmers in the lower Mississippi Valley whose crops had been delayed for weeks by spring floods. The new rains dealt them another blow, and some counties in the region prepared to ask for the second time this year that they be declared a federal disaster area.

The weekend weather systems caused five deaths in Oklahoma, three in Kansas, seven in Missouri, three in Arkansas, ten in Tennessee, one in Mississippi, seven in Alabama, two in Georgia, one in Florida, seven in North Carolina and two in Virginia. In addition, six persons in North Carolina and one in Virginia were listed as missing and presumed drowned.

The storms began Saturday in eastern Oklahoma and continued into Monday night, when a tornado at Athens, Ga., took the life of one person and left more than 60 injured.

Reports from local officials indicated total losses would climb well above $100 million. The worst damage appeared to be in small towns such as Brent, Ala., and Keefeton, Okla., and in the city of Jonesboro, Ark.

The storms began their weekend of terror in Keefeton, a community of 400 in eastern Oklahoma. Officials said a funnel cloud dropped from the sky just west of town on Saturday and proceeded to make a half-mile-wide swath of destruction.

Destroyed was 75 per cent of Keefeton, including 150 homes, 125 cars and virtually all of the business district. Five persons, including four members of the same family who were rushing toward a shelter, were killed.

As the storms criss-crossed the Midwest and South during the weekend, a great many of the deaths resulted from drownings. Flash floods and wind-whipped lakes knocked out power, swept away homes and uprooted trees in state after state as the storms moved first southeast and then up the East Coast.

What is it?
Mystery 'blobs' appear in Texas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At three Dallas area homes, residents are watching a pulsating, cancerous blob of matter which mysteriously oozed from the ground, thus far defying definition.

Some 75 miles to the northwest, an armed sentry guards a graveyard where villagers say a spaceman was buried in 1897.

Investigators are holding what they say may be metal fragments from his spaceship.

The whole affair has become a science fiction buff's idea of heaven.

London newspapers have been asking more information along with reporters in Canada and Australia.

Scientists and universities are investigating, also.

The mysterious membrane began oozing from the backyard of a Garland, Tex., woman two weeks ago. Marie Harris described the strange material as reddish with thick bubbles on top...blackish mucous inside. It has multiplied itself by 16 times in two weeks.

It is foamy and turns colors when punctured. When the bubbles are broken, the "blob" appears to bleed a red and purplish material.

A North Dallas woman who refused to be identified said. "I'm scared to death. I have the same thing on my hedge. I can't kill it."

Edna Smith, who lives eight miles from Seagoville, a suburb east of Dallas, said she spotted a similar mass inching its way up a telephone pole. "It was red and pulsating, like the one I read about. For heaven's sake-what is it?"

Scientists from Growth International, a Colorado firm, are analyzing the membraneous matter in Mrs. Harris' yard.

GI scientist Arnold Pittman gathered spore specimens and shipped them to Colorado for laboratory tests. "Yes, it's growing. We put samples in a jar and before long we noticed pressure was building up inside," he said.

"Bacteria, if it is bacteria, have tremendous growth potential. Bacteria have more than 1,000 genes in each organism and under proper conditions can change to a complete different specie in a few seconds. Maybe that's what the thing is, a new mutation. But we really don't know what it is," he said.

Dittman said some bacteria grow from one billion spores to one billion tons in 24 hours.

"With its ability mutate, bacteria can adapt to any change or deficiency in growth conditions. I'm not saying that happens all the time," he said.

Mrs. Harris said heavy rains had obliterated the "blob" last Friday.

On Monday she said, "I looked again. Three more had grown in its place."

To the northwest, at Aurora, Tex., sightseers and newsman are being kept away from a small cemetery.

A guard at the graveyard Monday told one newsman, "I don't care if you're Jesus Christ. You can't come in."

Meanwhile, North Texas State University at Denton, and other schools, are examining metal fragments found where 1897 Dallas newspaper accounts say an unidentified flying object crashed.

Villages at Aurora and the Dallas newspaper reports say the badly mangled creature piloting the UFO was buried at the small cemetery now being guarded.

Professional metal and treasure hunters have examined metal fragments dug up at the site, tested and analysed them without learning their composition.

Hayden Hughes, head of the national UFO center at Oklahoma City, said Monday he plans a trip to Aurora to conduct his own investigation.

He confirmed that pieces of the unusual metal dug up at the reported crash site have been distributed to several universities for analysis.

Skylab crewmen to begin work with telescopes

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Skylab astronaut Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin today pointed a battery of telescopes at the sun, hoping to give scientists their best look yet at how this seething sphere of gases controls our solar system.

Physicists also hope the experiment will help unlock the secret of controlled thermonuclear fusion, the source of the sun's energy. This might aid in the search for an unlimited, pollution-free power source on earth.

While Kerwin tuned up the $107-million array, Charles Conrad Jr. and Paul J. Weitz assembled cameras and sensors which they'll use starting Wednesday to survey the earth's resources.

It was the fifth day of the planned 28-day orbital flight.

The telescopes are mounted on a large device that is extended away from the orbiting station on long metal arms. Kerwin operated them from a workshop console which Conrad calls so complex "it's like playing three 88-key piano boards at one time."

The astronauts on Monday completed setting up housekeeping in the laboratory, which is the size of a three-bedroom home, and began their first medical experiments.

A makeshift sunshade erected Saturday reduced temperatures to near 80 degrees, far below the 125 degrees recorded inside the cabin after a heat shield was ripped away during the launch of Skylab on May 14.

Flight controller Neil Hutchinson predicted the temperature would level out near 70 degrees within a day or two and make the workshop fully livable.

During a brief news conference televised to mission control Monday, Conrad replied, "You betcha," when asked if he felt they could complete the full four-week mission.

"If the temperatures keep going down, it's gonna get real pleasant in here. It's not bad now."

Kerwin, the first physician to fly in space, conducted three major medical experiments Monday. He drew blood from all three crewmen and then monitored Weitz on two devices.

One was a cylinder which fit over the lower half of Weitz' body and, with air evacuated, simulated gravity pressure like that experienced by a man standing on earth. Several measurements will be taken of each man during the mission to gain a running measurement of the deconditioning rate of the cardiovascular system (heart and blood vessels) in weightless space.

Memorial Day rites hindered by weather

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Somber, stormy weather across much of the country discouraged large turnouts for the nation's first Memorial Day ceremonies since all U.S. troops were withdrawn from Vietnam.

The dead of all wars were honored Monday in traditional parades and neighborhood wreath-laying observances, many of them conducted under umbrellas. Some activities were cancelled.

Special notice was paid in some places to victims, survivors and the missing soldiers of the war in Indochina.

At traditional parades in Michigan, hundreds of persons distributed leaflets demanding that North Vietnam account for 50 Michigan servicemen missing in action juring the war.

In New York City, the 106-year-old United War Veterans parade to the Soldiers and Sailors Monument overlooking the Hudson River changed from a march to a motorcade because of a downpour. About 200 persons listened to brief speeches, and a bugler sounded taps.

A World War I veteran, George Kaercher, 81, continued a 33-year tradition by leading students in placing flags on thousands of graves at Ft. Snelling Cemetery in Minneapolis, Minn.

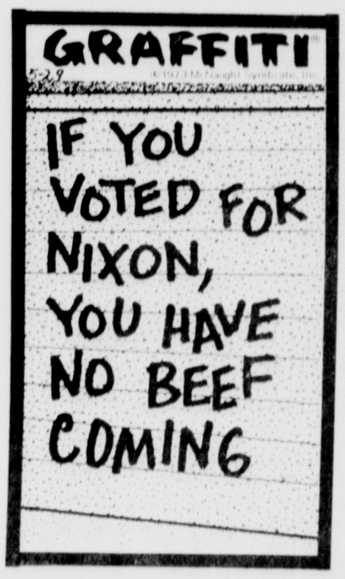

Memorial Day, originally Decoration Day, began as a tribute to Confederate and Yankee soldiers who died in the Civil War. Congress recently changed the date from May 30 to the last Monday in May to make a three-day holiday weekend.

Indicators show economic decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The country's economy showed a downward trend for the first time in 30 months in April, according to an important index of leading business indicators released by the Commerce Department today.

The index, based on eight categories of business performance, dropped six-tenths of one per cent in April to 161.5 per cent of the 1967 base of 100.

While economists will caution that it is too early to base trends on figures for one month, the figure nevertheless is seen to indicate the slowing of the economy that the administration predicted would occur about midyear.

24 persons die on Ohio highways

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Ohio Highway Patrol reported 24 persons killed on the state's roads during the 78-hour Memorial Day weekend—nine less than predicted by highway safety officials.

State Highway Safety Director Eugene P. O'Grady predictad that 33 persons would be killed on the state's roads during the three-day holiday. Thirty-two persons died over the holiday period last year.

Traffic deaths were recorded by the patrol beginning 6 p.m. Friday and ending at midnight Monday.

The dead:

FRIDAY

DELAWARE — Judith E. Pierce, 27, Delaware, in a one-car accident west of Ohio 315 on Delaware County Road 124.

RAVENNA—Richard R. Wear, 44, Niles in a one-car mishap on Interstate 76 two miles east of Ohio 14.

MILFORD—Jerri Chadwell, 20, Milford, in a two-car collision on U.S. 50 east of Milford in Clermont County.

NEWARK—Rodney Lee Cantor, Newark, in a single-car accident on Ohio 16 north of downtown Newark.

PORT CLINTON—Zigfried P. Ramos, 20, Lorain, when struck as he walked along Ohio 163 east of Port Clinton.

SATURDAY

DAYTON—George Wayne Humble, 30, Dayton, when his car hit a metal pole in Dayton.

CAMBRIDGE—Daniel W. Anderson, 19, Valinda, Calif., stationed in Millington, Tenn., in a one-car collision on Interstate 77 near Cambridge.

LOUISVILLE—Darius Jackson, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Jackson, Canton, when the car he was riding in collided with a truck at the intersection of Ohio 44 and 173 north of Louisville in Stark County.

AMSTERDAM — Ritchie Myers, 19, stationed at Ft. Carson, Colo., in a single-car accident two miles west of here on a Jefferson County road.

WARREN—William H. Simmons, 7, Warren, a passenger in a single-car accident in Warren.

SUNDAY

MONTGOMERY COUNTY — Katherine D. Browner, 44, Springfield, and Dennison G. Graine, 55, Yellow Springs, in a one-car accident on Ohio 49 in Montgomery County.

STARK COUNTY — Gary A. Simendinger, 14, Canton, in a two-car accident just west of U. S. 62 in Stark County.

Traffic crashes claim 473 lives

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Traffic accidents claimed 473 lives around the nation during the three-day Memorial Day weekend.

The National Safety Council had estimated 550 to 650 persons would die in traffic mishaps during the period that began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight Monday, local time.

The Associated Press counted 565 traffic deaths during the 1972 Memorial Day weekend, also three days. The record toll for a three-day observance of the holiday was 597 in 1969.

Reality of gasoline shortage underscored

By BOB MONROE
Associated Press Writer

Like the unwelcome thump of a flat tire, the reality of the gas shortage now begins to prey on the minds of motorists accustomed to driving as though there were always more fuel tomorrow.

Warnings went out early that drivers who took to the highways for the Memorial Day weekend might have to shop around for gas to get home.

Most of them made it because there are still huge quantities of gasoline available. But the locked service stations and gas rationing encountered by many underscore that the supply is not quite enough.

Demand for gas has been increasing seven per cent a year, and traffic counts continue to grow. At the same time, many major oil companies say they do not have enough crude oil and have begun allocations to dealers based on 1972 sales.

"Not many months ago we were hounded by salesmen wanting to sell fuel. Now you have to scrounge all over the place," says Ray Alderson of Yellow Freightways in Kansas City.

Transit officials seek bids for fuel and get no replies. State troopers in Florida have been ordered to cut back mileage. Taxi drivers in a Des Moines, Iowa, fleet have been told not to turn on their air conditioners.

The effects of the shortage have been felt or feared for weeks by many whose livelihood depends directly or indirectly on motor fuel. But there is little evidence that car owners have curbed personal driving.

Most drivers contacted in a pre-weekend Associated Press survey said they did not plan any changes in driving habits or vacation plans. The question is whether they will have to.

A handful of stations were limiting customers to five gallons over the weekend. Many independent and major stations have cut back hours or closed Sundays.

The Office of Emergency Preparedness last week reported 882 of the estimated 220,000 stations in the country were closed for lack of gas. Another 1,863 were threatened with shutdowns, the OEP said.

Generally, the independents are most affected. They captured a quarter of the market over the past decade by buying surplus gas from major oil companies and selling it at 2 to 10 cents a gallon less than the standards.

One federal official calls them "a very helpful competitive spur." Under a voluntary allocation plan that the administration announced three weeks ago, the major oil companies were urged to "share the shortage" among their stations and the independents.

Industry sources say the shortage is essentially the result of limited supplies of crude oil and limited refinery capacity.

An opposite view is voiced by California Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, a Democrat. He notes that U.S. refineries operated "at less than 75 per cent capacity last year" and listed record first quarter profits this year.

Is it coincidence that the shortage occurred "during a period when the oil industry is pressing for the Alaska pipeline, relaxation of other environmental safeguards, resumption of offshore drilling ... and preferential tax loopholes?" he asks.

While the debate goes on, Illinois officials have set up a hot line for farmers needing fuel. An Iowa gas tank company is selling more storage tanks to farmers than ever before.

Lack of competition in bids for bulk fuel supplies forced Los Angeles County to accept a lone bid for gasoline at a 67 per cent increase.

The driving crunch lies ahead this summer, and no one is sure what will happen. Some industry analysts predict the shortage will last into the mid 70s because it will take that long to expand refinery capacity.

Deaths, Funerals

Earl C. Storm

Services for Earl Calvin Storm, 52, of 618 S. Fayette St., will be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Morman) in Norwood Cincinnati.

Mr. Storm, officer manager and accountant for the Robertson Fence Co. in Mount Sterling for the past 14 years and branch president of the Wilmington branch of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, became suddenly ill at home Sunday afternoon while preparing to attend commencement exercises at Washington Senior High School and died shortly after being admitted to Bethesda Hospital in Cincinnati at 6 p.m. Death was due to an apparent heart attack.

Surviving are his wife Ramay; three sons, Roger, of Cleveland, Kevin L., a junior at Ohio State University, Brian L., a member of this years graduating class at Washington Senior High School; a daughter, Parma M., a freshman at WSHS; his mother, Mrs. Susan Moore Storm, of Cincinnati; three sisters, Mrs. Evelyn Rowekamp, Mrs. Lillian Baldwin and Mrs. Sue Harness, and one brother, Jack Storm, all of Cincinnati. His father, Russell C. Storm, and a brother, Leland, are deceased.

Friends may call at the Hoddap Funeral Home on Vine Street in Cincinnati from 6 to 8 p.m. Tuesday. Burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery, Glendale.

Charles A. Landrum

Charles A. Landrum, 84, formerly of 715 Maple St., died at 5:55 p.m. Monday in Pike County Hospital, Waverly. He had recently gone to Pike County to live with a son, George, in Latham.

A Fayette County resident for 75 years, he was last employed by the Hamm Fertilizer Co., superseded by the present Agrico facility.

Mr. Landrum, who was preceded in death by his wife, the former Malinda Kinzer, in 1966, is survived by two sons, George, of Latham, and James, of 321 Rose Ave. He also leaves two grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Services will be held at 1 p.m. Thursday in the Parrett Funeral Home with the Rev. Lewis Viar, of Smith Chapel, Latham, officiating. Burial will be in Washington Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home after 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Mrs. Maggie Longerbone

NEW HOLLAND — Services for Mrs. Maggie Longerbone, 90, will be held at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home, New Holland, with the Rev. Paul Hooks, of Lancaster, officiating. Mrs. Longerbone died at 2:30 a.m. Sunday in the home of a daughter, Mrs. Clark, (Eva) Gillenwater, 140 S. East St., after an illness of one month.

Born near Waterloo, she had spent most of her life in that community before moving to New Holland in 1970. She was the widow of Harley Longerbone, who died in 1959, and was a member of the Waterloo Church of Christ in Christian Union.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Gillenwater and Mrs. Gladys Hatfield, the latter of Circleville; two son, Homer and James, both of Columbus; nine grandchildren; 17 great-grandchildren; six great-great-grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. Faye Fulton and Mrs. Lena Oyer, both of Columbus.

Friends may call at the funeral home after 3 p.m. Tuesday. Burial will be in Waterloo Cemetery.

Mrs. Arthur Grover

MOUNT STERLING — Services for Mrs. Lillian May Grover, 72, Rt. 1, Williamsport, who died Saturday night in Doctor's West Hospital, Columbus, were held at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Porter Funeral Home with the Rev. Kenneth Chapin, pastor of the Five Points Methodist Church, officiating. Burial was in Darbyville Cemetery.

Born in Jackson County, Mrs. Grover was a member of the Five Points Methodist Church.

She is survived by her husband, Arthur; a son, Warren, of Circleville; a daughter, Mrs. Joseph (Helen) Armentrout, of Williamsport; three grandchildren and a great-grandchild; a sister, Mrs. Iva Williams, and a brother, Wayne Duhl, both of Kansas.

Mrs. Maggie M. Beekman

Mrs. Maggie M. Beekman, 82, of 1803 Ohio Rt. 41NW, was found dead at her home at 11 a.m. Tuesday. She was the widow of Oscar Beekman who died in 1960.

Arrangements for services will be made under the direction of the Gerstner-Kinzer Funeral Home.

Glenn E. Smith

NEW HOLLAND — Glenn E. Smith, 70, of New Holland, died at 10:15 a.m. Monday in Fayette Memorial Hospital. He had been in failing health for five years and a patient in the hospital for the past month.

A lifelong resident of Clarksburg and New Holland, he had been an attendant at the Chillicothe Veterans Hospital and Orient State Institute for many years. He also had been active in New Holland Lodge No. 392, F & A.M.

Mr. Smith is survived by his wife, the former Helen Gates; two sons Joseph, of Duke Plaza, and Jerry, of 2011 Heritage Dr., both of Washington C.H.; grandchildren; a brother, Harold Smith, of Bogus Rd.; a half-brother, Ralph Dixon, of Columbus Ave., and a sister, Mrs. Edna Moore, of Largo, Fla.

Services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Thursday in the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home, New Holland, with the Rev. Printis Spear, officiating. Burial will be in New Holland Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home after 3 p.m. Wednesday.

David Funk

NEW HOLLAND — David Funk, 3-day-old son of Donald and Sharon Wilson Funk, of New Holland, died at 1:30 a.m. Monday in Children's Hospital, Columbus.

Surviving, besides the parents, are a sister, Donna, at home; his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wilson, of Clarksburg; his maternal great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson, of Clarksburg, his paternal grandfather, Thomas Funk, of Williamsport, and his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Minnie Deitschlie, of Cincinnati.

Graveside services will be held at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, in Brown's Chapel Cemetery, Clarksburg, with the Rev. Alben Jones officiating. Friends may call at the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home, New Holland, from 7 until 9 p.m. Tuesday.

HOWARD CLINE — Services for Howard Cline, 72, of Adrian, Mich., were held at 1 p.m. Saturday in the Littleton Funeral Home, Sabina, with the Rev. Joe Lorimor, pastor of the Church of Christ, officiating. Mr. Cline, a former resident of Sabina, died Wednesday in an Adrian nursing home.

Mrs. Walter Stackhouse was at the organ. Pallbearers for the burial in Sabina Cemetery were Robert Stewart, Hugh and Homer Wilson, Richard Pavey, Russell Allen and Donald Morris.

MRS. RAY FISHER — Funeral services for Mrs. Salana S. Fisher, 73, of 46 Janes St., Jeffersonville, were held at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Jeffersonville United Methodist Church, with the Rev. Charles W. Hill officiating. Mrs. Fisher, the wife of Ray E. Fisher, died Friday in her home.

Mrs. Kenneth Spahr was the organist. Burial was in Fairview Cemetery under direction of the Morrow Funeral Home, with Thurman Warnock Jr., Kenneth Spahr, Robert Owens, Jerry Spahr, Clarence Knecht and Ray Bentley as the pallbearers.

MRS. KATIE COX — Services for Mrs. Katie Cox, 84, of Kingston, were held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home here, with the Rev. Arthur George officiating. Mrs. Cox, the widow of Sam Cox and a former resident of 614 Gibbs Ave., died Thursday in Chillicothe Hospital.

Pallbearers for the burial in Washington Cemetery were Roger Baughn, Lonnie Campbell, Bobbie Baughn, Herschel Snyder, Max T. Bobst and Lloyd Alexander.

SYLVESTER COYLE — Services for Sylvester Coyle, 67, of 1293 Dayton Ave., were held at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the Gerstner-Kinzer Funeral Home with Duane O. Powell officiating. Mr. Coyle, a retired agent for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, died Friday.

Pallbearers for the burial in Byer Cemetery, near Wellston, were DeWitt Quick, Joe Holdren, Richard Dearth, George Franunfelder, Ralph Coyle, Edward Barnett and Junior Peters.

Some POWs face charges by leader

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon officials expect a former U.S. POW leader to file aiding-the-enemy charges soon, perhaps today, against a small group of soldiers and Marines he commanded in a North Vietnamese prison.

Unless he changes his mind, Air Force Col. Theodore W. Guy's filing of formal charges against seven to 10 Army men and Marines would be the first such action against any of the 566 returned military POWs.

Besides aiding-the-enemy charges, military sources said Guy would accuse the soldiers and Marines of disobedience of orders and disrespect to superior officers.

More than a month ago, the 44-year-old Guy denounced some POWs as cowards "who openly collaborated with the enemy" and caused physical harm to some of their comrades. He declined to name them, saying at the time, "Those who did collaborate with the enemy or went against the Code of Conduct will be identified by me and, after all the evidence is in, I will decide whether charges will be placed."

On Guy's insistence, an informal investigation was started.

Pentagon officials had tried to promote a forgive and forget attitude among the POWs, but there is no way under the Code of Military Justice that they could prevent an officer or enlisted man from pressing charges.

The filing of charges does not necessarily mean that the accused will stand trial before courts-martial. That is determined by military officials on the basis of a formal investigation, after which they could elect to drop the charges.

Guy, who spent five years as a prisoner of the North Vietnamese, was senior ranking officer at a Hanoi prison compound called "The Plantation."

He was senior officer over 108 men, ranging in rank from private to colonel, who had been captured in South Vietnam and Laos.

Guy has claimed he was turned in by other American prisoners and beaten and tortured because of his efforts to set up communications among the POWs and to organize camp life and discipline. Other former POWs suffered as he did, he said.

According to Guy, some POWs accepted favored treatment from their North Vietnamese captors, in the form of extra rations and greater freedom within the compound walls, and "turned their backs on us."

"I intend to do everything in my power to weed these people out of the system," Guy said.

Urge caution on fund cutoff

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration backers urged restraint today in Senate debate on legislation to cut off all money for continued U.S. bombing in Cambodia.

Senate action already had been delayed two weeks during negotiations in Paris and Saigon seeking full compliance with the Jan. 27 Vietnam ceasefire agreement.

The Senate Appropriations Committee, in an amendment added to a $3.2 billion supplemental appropriations bill May 15, voted unanimously to prohibit the use of any money ever appropriated by Congress for further U.S. military activity in Cambodia and Laos.

Five days earlier the House, in its first antiwar vote of the Indochina conflict, voted 219-188 to prohibit the use of any of the supplemental appropriations in the bill for Cambodian air operations. The ban did not apply to prior appropriations.

The more extensive ban proposed in the Senate reflected a growing congressional concern that resumption of bombing in Cambodia constituted new hostilities undertaken without approval of Congress, at the risk of reinvolvement of United States forces in the Vietnam war.

Administration spokesmen defended the President's authority to order the bombing as an extension of his authority to negotiate and enforce the Vietnam cease-fire.

Early this month, the conference of Democratic senators endorsed a resolution urging legislative action to shut off funds for any military activity by the United States in Cambodia.

Senate Republican Whip Robert P. Griffin of Michigan said the interests of peace will not be served by undercutting current negotiations. He called upon the Senate to exercise "a bit of responsible restraint."

Nixon's home improvements had Secret Service push

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House says more than $100,000 in improvements made at President Nixon's San Clemente, Calif., estate during the past four years were requested by the Secret Service "for the protection of the President."

The projects included a new electric heating system for the President's Spanish-style mansion, a $3,360-storage shed, more than $50,000 worth of brick or redwood fences and a $13,000 bullet-proof windscreen alongside the presidential swimming pool.

Building permits were issued by the city of San Clemente for about $70,000 worth of government-financed improvements. The rest apparently was done without building permits.

The federally financed work was in addition to the $123,514 that the White House said last week the Nixons had spent themselves for improvements on their home and 5.9-acre homesite.

In a statement Friday, disclosing that Nixon had sold the bulk of his estate to one of his wealthy friends, New York industrialist Robert M. Abplanalp, the White House would not provide a breakdown on the $123,514 figure.

The transaction took place in December 1970—18 months after Nixon had purchased the ocean-side property with $625,000 loaned him by Abplanalp.

The loan was canceled in the subsequent transaction that left Nixon with a net investment of $374,514 for the house and 5.9 acres, and Abplanalp with an investment of $1.2 million for the remaining 23 acres.

The entire tract, including the portion now owned by Abplanalp, remains under Secret Service guard. It is immediately adjacent to a Coast Guard station, which serves as the site of the President's office and other buildings constituting the Western White House.

After the Associated Press reported Monday that the federal government had spent more than $100,000 for improvements on Nixon's estate, a White House spokesman issued a statement saying "All the work done at the Western White House as listed in The Associated Press story was requested by the Secret Service for protection of the President.

The cold front that brought showers and thundershowers to Ohio Memorial Day and early last night had moved to the East Coast by this morning.

But a weak low was expected to remain over the Great Lakes through tonight, through gradually weakening. The low will continue cloudy skies and a few light showers, especially in northern counties.

Today's highs were expected to be in the 60s to near 70, noticeably cooler than those Memorial Day.

A high pressure developing north of the Great Lakes was expected to gradually replace the low, and showers will end in northern Ohio tonight.

Meanwhile, a disturbance swinging eastward toward the Ohio Valley will bring the threat of more showers and thundershowers to central and southern counties tonight and Wednesday.

Rainfall amounts Memorial Day ranged from a half-inch at Findlay to a trace at some weather stations.

Temperatures at dawn today ranged from 56 at Toledo to 61 at Ironton.

A chance of showers about Saturday. Highs Thursday through Saturday in the 70s. Lows in the 50s.

Gasoline tax increase studied by U.S. officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz said today the Nixon administration is considering a proposal to raise gasoline taxes.

Shultz, speaking at a news conference for economic reporters, also indicated that the administration has under study other tax-increase proposals to help cool the rapidly expanding economy.

As for the gasoline tax, Shultz said it is "one of the many things we are reviewing all the time."

He said there are pluses and minuses connected with the proposal and stressed that no decision has been made. The federal tax now is four cents a gallon.

Stock list goes lower

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices moved lower today in what analysts termed a technical reaction to recent gains.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was off 4.44 at 926.40, after having risen some 44 points in the previous four sessions. On the New York Stock Exchange, advances led declines by 664 to 564.

In the news background was the government report that its composite index of leading economic indicators had declined in April for the first time in 30 months.

On the American Stock Exchange, the price-change index was up .04 at 22.80, while the Big Board index at noon was off .16 at 56.80.

GM recalls 189 costly automobiles

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors said today it is recalling about 165 of its 1973 Oldsmobile Toronados and 24 of its 1973 Cadillac Eldorados to check a possible steering linkage defect.

The company said some of the cars, all produced in early May, were assembled with steering linkage ball studs made from the wrong grade of steel. GM said the studs could break, causing loss of steering control.

GM discovered the error during its assembly operations and the firm said no failures, accidents or injuries have been traced to the defect.

Fatal helicopter crash said freak

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today described the crash of one of the presidential fleet helicopters that killed a Secret Service agent as "one of those freak accidents."

The crash occurred Saturday night in the Atlantic Ocean off the private island of Grand Cay off the Bahamas where Nixon was a guest of millionaire industrialist Robert Abplanalp.

"Great guys," the President said of the Secret Service agents who guard him. The accident took the life of J. Clifford Dietrich, 25, formerly of Greenwich, Conn., and slightly injured three Army crew members and six other agents.

Britain duels with Iceland in cod war

BRUSSELS (AP) — The United States and 12 North Atlantic allies urged Britain and Iceland today "to exercise the utmost restraint" in their cod war.

The appeal was made at a meeting of the North Atlantic Council, made up of permanent representatives of the United States, Britain, Iceland and the other 12 members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

An announcement said the council "took note" of Iceland's demand that NATO get the British government to remove its warships that are protecting British trawlers in the disputed waters Iceland is claiming outside the 12-mile limit.

The dispute between the British Conservative government and the leftist coalition headed by Prime Minister Olafur Johannesson threatens the NATO base in Iceland from which the alliance keeps track of Soviet submarines in the North Atlantic.

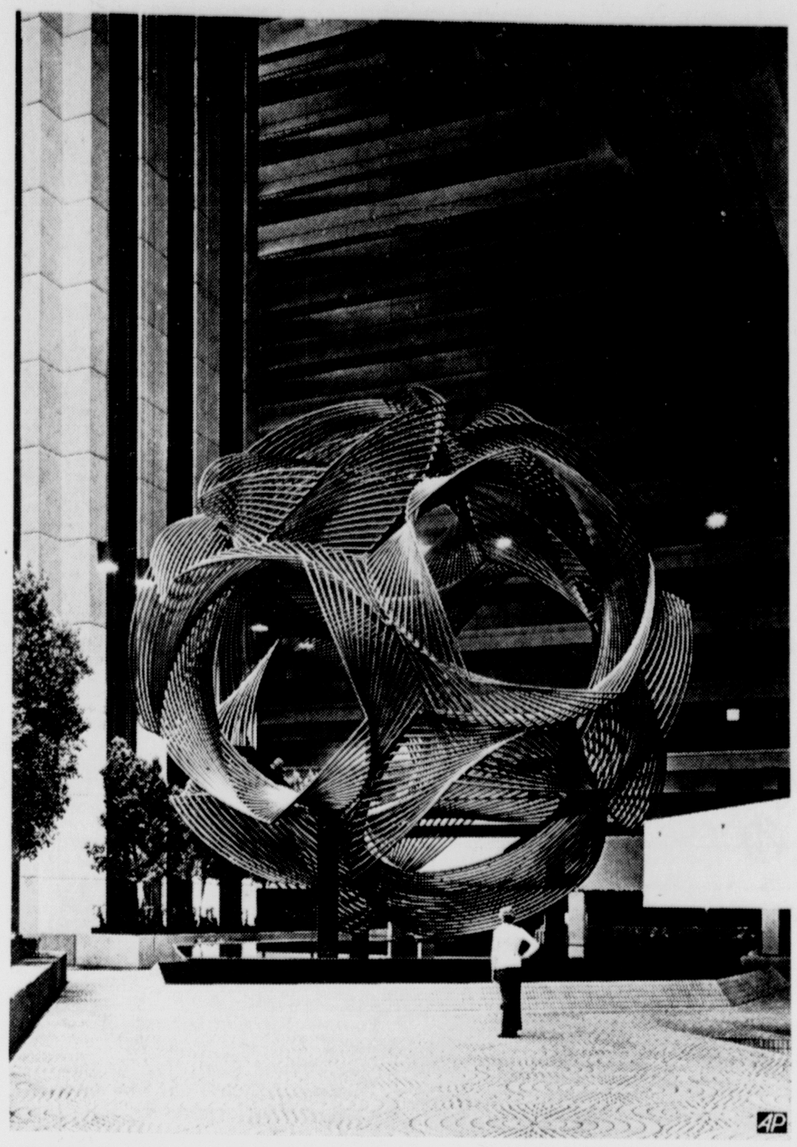

The demand followed the shelling Saturday of the trawler Everton by an Icelandic gunboat within the 50-mile territorial limit Iceland proclaimed last September.

Britain, West Germany and other nations whose fishermen traditionally fish those waters around Iceland reject the new 50-mile limit, saying Iceland has no right to expand its territorial waters unilaterally beyond the generally accepted 12-mile limit.

Iceland claims its vital fishing industry is threatened by foreign fishermen.

Japanese post deficit

TOKYO (AP) — Japan has posted a record deficit in its overall balance of payments for the second consecutive month. The net outflow for April totaled $1.16 billion, compared with a $1.09 billion deficit in March and a $157 million surplus a year earlier, the finance ministry reported Friday.

North Viet POW regulations disclosed

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The North Vietnamese captors of American servicemen were adamant: No writing on the prison walls. No noise. No discourtesy to the guards.

Regulations issued by the North Vietnamese in 1969 promised reward for prisoners who informed about violations and punishment for those who tried to oppose the will of their captors.

The regulations, which termed the American prisoners criminals, were posted in English in February 1969 in the "Hanoi Hilton," one of the Hanoi prisons in which American POWs were held.

The sheet containing the regulations was smuggled home by Navy Lt. Cmdr. David J. Rollins of Pioche, Nev., a prisoner for six years. He turned a copy over to reporters today.

The regulations read, in part:

"The criminals are under an obligation to give full and clear written or oral answers to all questions raised by the camp authorities. All attempts and tricks intended to evade answering further questions and acts directed to opposition by refusing to answer any questions will be considered manifestations of obstinacy and antagonism which deserves strict punishment....

"The criminals must demonstrate a cautious and polite attitude to officers and guards in the camp.... When the Vietnamese officers and guards come to the rooms for inspection ... the criminals must carefully and neatly put on their clothes, stand at attention, bow a greeting and await further orders. They may sit down only when permission is granted.

"The criminal must maintain silence in the detention rooms and not make any loud noises which can be heard outside. All schemes and attempts to gain information and achieve communication with the criminals living next door by intentionally talking loudly, tapping on walls or by other means will be strictly punished....

"The criminals must go to bed and arise in accordance with the orders signaled by the gong.

"During alerts, the criminals must take shelter without delay. If no foxhole is available, they must go under their beds and lay close to the wall....

"Any obstinacy or opposition, violation of the preceding provisions, or any scheme or attempt to get out of the detention camp without permission are all punishable. On the other hand, any criminal who strictly obeys the camp regulations and shows his true submission and repentance by his practical acts will be allowed to enjoy the humane treatment he deserves.

"Anyone so imbued with a sense of preventing violations and who reveals the identity of those who attempt to act in violation of the foregoing provisions will be properly rewarded. However, if any criminal is aware of any violation and deliberately tries to cover it up, he will be strictly punished when this is discovered.

"In order to assure the proper execution of the regulations, all the criminals in any detention room must be held responsible for any and all violations of the regulations committed in their room."

Insurgents raid Cambodian town

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — About 400 Cambodian insurgents raided a river town 19 miles northwest of here Monday night, killing the members of a dozen families and burning 50 houses, the military command said.

Field reports said 100 militiamen stationed in Prek Kdam, on the Tonle Sap River, fled when the insurgent forces entered the town.

The military command said the members of nine civilian families and three military families were killed and 26 other persons were wounded in the three-hour attack that began at midnight.

Field reports said most of the attackers were Chams, Cambodian Moslems opposed to the Phnom Penh government.

Prek Kdam is on Highway 5, the main highway from Phnom Penh to Cambodia's rice bowl in Battambang Province. The highway has been cut for months.

Also Monday night, another Mekong River supply convoy from South Vietnam arrived in Phnom Penh. Four of the 11 ships and barges were badly damaged.

U.S. fighter-bombers had pounded the 60 miles of river bank from the South Vietnamese border. But the convoy came under intense shelling from insurgent forces using 75mm guns two miles south of the government naval base at Neak Luong.

Intelligence reports say about 8,000 insurgent troops are moving into the area around Neak Luong, which is 32 miles southeast of Phnom Penh. The Cambodian command believes they are going to try to take the base.

In Saigon, the South Vietnamese command reported 41 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese and nine government soldiers killed Monday in three Communist attacks in the Mekong Delta and north of Saigon. A communique said another 30 government troops were wounded.

Dinner closes school year for Hi-Y Club

The annual Hi-Y Banquet, scheduled at the end of each school year to review the club's activities, was held in the Washington Senior High School cafeteria. Club members, their parents and guests attended the event.

Committee chairmen were recognized for their work during the year. Committee chairmen honored were: David Brown, Christmas tree; Bill Shaw, religion; Kevin Terry, activity; Don Wheat, program; Kevin Smith, sales; Jack Patton and Steve Hill, constitution and Jeff Wallace, Youth and Government. Each chairman explained what his committee did during the year, and introduced committee members.

Special recognition plaques were given to Common Pleas Court Judge Evelyn W. Coffman and Probate-Juvenile Court Judge Rollo M. Marchant for their help in the Youth and Goverment mock trials. Plaques were also presented to Gary Smith, Dennis Ulrich, Robert Simpson and John Bryan, attorneys who assisted with the trials. Special recognition was given to Donnie Smith, who sold the most magazines for the club.

Officers were elected for the 1973-74 school year. Chosen were: Tom Allen, president; Jim Smith, vice president; Donnie Smith, secretary; Rory Souther, treasurer, and Bill Shaw, chaplain. New officers were sworn by the outgoing officers.

Dave King, executive director of the West Virginia-Ohio YMCAs was the speaker. He presented the Honor Club award to the Washington Senior Hi-Y Club.

Garth Cox, club member, reported on the YMCA Conference on National Affairs held at Black Mountain, N.C. Austin Crusie and George Shoemaker, club advisers, congratulated the new officers and reviewed the past year's activities.

The meeting was ended with prayer by Bill Shaw, chaplain.

Ford meets Argentine demands

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Residents of a Buenos Aires shantytown line up today to receive 3,000 food packages from the Ford Motor Co.'s Argentine subsidiary.

The packages, delivered Monday to the local church, were part of the first installment of Ford's million-dollar protection payoff to the People's Revolutionary Army, whose guerrillas wounded two employes of the company during a kidnap attempt last week.

The company also delivered $400,000 to two children's hospitals. It also has promised to hand over 22 ambulances, a total of $180,000 worth of food for slum dwellers and $300,000 in school supplies for shantytowns.

Some Peronist youths opposed accepting the first food packages since they came from terrorist activities. But the leader of a liberal religious movement, the Rev. Carlos Mujica, told them:

"Now is not the time to quarrel about ideologies. Let's get this food to the people. At least the children will have tasted milk and cocoa once in their lives."

Meanwhile, Argentina's new Peronist president, Hector Campora, restored diplomatic relations with Cuba after an 11-year break and announced he would establish relations with the Communist governments of East Germany and North Korea.

Senators report farmers abused

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Agriculture Committee says farmers have been abused and ill-paid despite their "magnificent contribution" in providing America with an abundance of food and fiber.

The committee, in a newly published report on its farm bill, says farmers represent the largest U.S. industry and have assets of $339 billion, equal to three-fifths of the value of capital assets of all U.S. corporations.

"Estimates show that about one out of every five jobs in private employment is related to agriculture," the report said. "About two million people have jobs providing the supplies farmers use for production; 8-to-10 million people have jobs storing, transporting, processing and merchandising products of agriculture."

Further, the report said, farm exports are helping offset deficits in U.S. trade. Farm spending for new machinery and other production expense is pumping huge resources into the national economy.

The report asked what farmers receive for their contributions.

—"First, they have received criticism inspite of the miracle which they have performed in providing our nation and others with an abundance of food and fiber at fair and reasonable costs," the report said.

—"Second, they have received a record-high income of $19.2 billion in 1972. But this is only 12 per cent above the income received 25 years ago. In those intervening years net income declined to a low of $10.7 billion, and in every one of those 24 intervening years realized net income was less than it was in 1947.

—"Third, during the same period production expenses increased by 178 per cent and in 1972 amounted to $47.2 billion.

—"Fourth, they have been forced to go further and further into debt. In 1947 farmers owed $8.4 billion. Today farm debt is over $70 billion, an increase of over 733 per cent." the report said.

Lastly, the report said, farmers are subjected to the problems of weather, fuel shortages and to inflationary pressures common to all.

"But in spite of all these difficulties and adversities the farmers of this nation have continued to toil and sweat to provide the very life blood of our existence," the report said. "They deserve praise, not criticism, for presisting in the fact of almost insurmountable odds."

IRA wings form alliance; summer of unrest expected

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — An unexpected alliance of the Irish Republican Army's rival wings in Londonderry threatens a summer of heightened unrest in Northern Ideland's second largest city.

Leaders of the IRA's leftist Official faction and its nationalist Provisional wing met during the weekend with representatives of nonviolent nationalist groups and associates of Bernadette Devlin to plan a series of demonstrations.

The first will be a march on the Londonderry City Hall next Sunday protesting detention without trial of suspected terrorists. British paratroopers opened fire during a similar march in January 1972 and killed 13 civilians, adding the name of "Bloody Sunday" to the annals of Northern Ireland's communal warfare.

Other demonstrations on the program include a plan to rebuild the barricades around Roman Catholic areas of Londonderry for one day only— July 31. This will be the anniversary of Operation Motorman, in which the British army tore down the barricades and smashed into those IRA strongholds. They had been known as "no go" districts because until then the troops had stayed out and left the guerrillas in unchallenged control.

The deal between the rival wings of the IRA apparently was confined to Londonderry and to civil demonstrations rather than guerrilla activity. British sources believe the move stems from a desire to reassert control over the Bogside and Creggan, Londonderry's main Catholic areas.

Plan new dollar sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Services Administration is conducting another sale of silver dollars minted in the last century.

The sale starts Friday, with a closing date for bids of July 31, and includes coins minted at the now closed Carson City, Nev., mint in 1878, 1882, 1883, 1884, 1890 and 1891.

These are part of a large store of old cartwheels discovered a decade ago in an out-of-the-way vault in the Treasury. About 800,000 of the coins have been sold in earlier sales at $30 each.

For uncirculated dollars in the sale the minimum bid will be $15 for 1878 coins and $30 for the others. There also will be sales of scratched and tarnished coins from Carson City, and circulated and uncirculated coins from other mints at minimum bids of from $3 to $5.

Bid forms were made available at post offices and banks around the country.

Of the 202-mile Appalachian Highway System in Ohio, 111 miles are currently open to traffic, 12 miles under construction and 79 miles are unscheduled.

Oil, dollar crisis link reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high-ranking energy official warned today that rising oil imports pose "the major threat to the soundness and stability of the dollar over the next decade."

The warning came from Stephen A. Wakefield, assistant secretary of the interior for energy and minerals, in a speech in San Antonio, Tex.

The speech, released by his office here, was prepared for delivery at a meeting of the Texas Independent Producers' and Royalty Owners' Association.

Wakefield urged the independents to step up their oilproducing activities, particularly in the well-established onshore oil fields, to tap every available drop of oil from the United States' domestic reserves.

Wakefield said the public has become aware of an "energy crisis" and a "balance of payments crisis," but not of a relationship between the two.

"I submit that they are directly related," he said, "and that within the next year or two this relationship will be glaringly apparent to everyone.

"The major threat to the soundness and stability of the dollar over the next decade will come from the payment requirements for oil imports, which may range between $25 billion and $30 billion annually by 1585."

Opinion And Comment

Improper use of the CIA

One of the nastier sidelights of Watergate is the indication that White House aides sought to use the Central Intelligence Agency as a part of a coverup operation. The same can be said of testimony, reportedly corroborated by a onetime CIA chief, that the spy agency's resources were used to help carry out the burglary of the office of Dr. Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Fresh light on this facet of the political espionage case has been shed by former CIA Director Richard Helms under interrogation by the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on intelligence activities. The subcommittee chairman, Sen. John L. McClellan, tells us that Helms confirmed earlier accounts of requests made to the CIA by important figures on the White House staff.

The law forbids domestic operations by the CIA. This wise restriction appears to have been violated by the CIA's cooperation with those who burglarized the psychiatrist's office in search of records on Ellsberg.

McClellan is right in his judgment that requests for CIA help, including those the agency resisted, were "possibly illegal and certainly of the gravest impropriety."

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

Chou reiterates distrust of Soviets

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another column resulting from Mr. Childs' long discussion with Premier Chou En-lai.

PEKING — When warships of the Soviet fleet sailed past China's front door through the Taiwan Strait it stirred a wave of speculation throughout Asia. The response from United States command headquarters in Hawaii was a statement that American ships were still patrolling the waters between the Chinese mainland and the island of Taiwan that is Chiang Kai-shek's redoubt.

For the man who bears such a heavy responsibility for the management of both foreign and domestic policy in the People's Republic this was one more proof of what he has long believed. Premier Chou En-lai, in a discussion with this reporter lasting more than three hours, explained his conviction that the confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union has been transferred from the Middle East to South Asia.

His conviction is grounded in an unshakable distrust of Soviet motives. Chou believes that the intent of the Kremlin hierarchy, led by Leonid Brezhnev, is to lull the West into a false security while the Soviets pursue their goal of hegemony everywhere.

AMERICANS who argue for a reduction or even the entire elimination of the American forces stationed in Germany are, in Chou's view, naive. How, he asks, can there be any assurance that if Western troops are pulled back, the large Soviet concentrations in the five satellite powers will be reduced?

Chou is profoundly skeptical of the agreements signed in Moscow by Nixon and Brezhnev a year ago. Despite those agreements, he says, gesturing with his expressive hands, the nuclear arms race goes on up and up at a terrible cost. And there can be no reason to believe that it will not end in a nuclear war.

As for China's policy, the premier is confident that a Soviet strike across the northern border, so long a major threat, has been deterred. The deterrance has been achieved by successful diplomacy on the one hand and by extensive and costly measurements of preparedness — a strong army, rapid nuclear missile development, tunnel digging — on the other hand.

The agreements signed with the United States and Japan, underwritten by the personal missions to Peking of President Nixon and Japan's Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, have removed the threat of a two-or even a three-front war.

THE NIGHTMARE of such a war, however fantastic and improbable it may seem to the outsider, is what Chou and others at the top of the New China have lived with for many years. Through the '30s and into the '40s Japan waged a savage war of conquest. Chiang Kai-shek conserved his forces for the civil war that followed.

Then in the '50s, after the Chinese had successfully repulsed American troops in Korea at the Yalu River, came the Dulles policy of trying to bring China down by isolating her and cutting off any exchange with the outside world. No wonder, then, that Chou and his colleagues have lived so long with the nightmare of fear.

On the diplomatic level India has several times approached Peking with a desire to talk. But Chou says that negotiation will not be possible until 90,000 Pakistan prisoners still held by India out of the war of late 1971 are repatriated.

A border issue must be settled, with India holding a large chunk of Chinese territory south of the McMahon Line.

The key to peace, however, is Indochina and the premier confesses he is baffled by American policy in Cambodia. The American bombing he sees as a futile attempt to hold a small place that was once a green oasis.

WHY, HE ASKS, should the United States support Lon Nol in Phnom Penh who is no old friend of the United States? If Prince Sihanouk, who has the complete backing of the People's Republic, could be returned, he maintains, Cambodia would be an independent and neutral state.

In this way the peace settlement in Indochina, which Chou sees as a gratifying development, could be further implemented.

As the premier looks at American policy in Asia, the error as been in trying to hold small places and thereby sacrificing the large. The American involvement in Cambodia is, after all, only three years old, dating from the Nixon incursion. Why should the conflict there not be settled peacefully?

An earthy peasant figure of speech says a lot about the American error: Do not sacrifice the melon for the sesame seed.

Since the Nixon mission the premier understands the United States, and in his relationship with Henry Kissinger there is friendship. Yet, the tragedy of Cambodia and the threat to peace of the continued bombing cannot be ignored.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Anticipating the energy crisis

A state governor, Meldrim Thomson of New Hampshire, has taken the bit between his teeth in an attempt to solve the energy crisis.

Angered by the delays caused by the environmentalists in hearings on a proposed nuclear power plant before a Site Evaluation Committee, the governor (1) said he would do everything he can to help atomic power plants get into action both in his own state and in neighboring Maine and Vermont and (2) he has re-emphasized a pledge to bring an oil refinery into New Hampshire with connecting deep water offshore facilities to import bulk fuel from the Middle East.

The Thomson attitude is in marked contrast to that of other politicians, who have yet to comprehend the revulsion that is bound to ripple through a fuel-dependent nation when its homes go unheated for a winter and when the price of gasoline has jumped to 60 or 70 cents a gallon.

Thomson may not have heard about the anti-ecologist bumper sticker that is blossoming in some places: "Let the bastards freeze in the dark." But when it crops in New Hampshire he will not be surprised.

THE NATION as a whole needs a few more foresighted Meldrim Thomsons if it is to get through the next decade. The attempt to accommodate our needs for ecological purity to our urgent demands for heat, light, transportation and industrial power is up against a series of time binds that will have everybody hopping long before the decade of the Seventies is out.

Bind Number One: the so-called Muskie amendments the the Clean Air Act cannot possibly be met by 1975-76, which was the original deadline set for getting 97 per cent of the hydrocarbons, 96 per cent of carbon monoxide, and 93 per cent of oxides of nitrogen out of all our car motors. The Japanese can meet such standards in the 8 per cent of their Mazda car production runs that are exported to the U.S., but they can't do it for the 92 per cent of the autos intended for home usage.

The Ford Motor Co., putting the pressure on, might meet the Muskie purity standards for 8 per cent of its own runs, but it would take the U.S. achine tool industry 12 years to create the capital goods needed to produce relatively clean Wankel engines for the totlality of Detroit's production.

Bind Number Two: With the exception of Gov. Thomson's New Hampshire, our Northeastern states (or their political representatives, at any rate) can't summon the will to break the deadlock between the ecologists and the oil importers. It now takes 16 small tankers to bring the amount of oil into the Linden, N.J., area that might be transported by one jumbo tanker if there were only a deep water oil transfer spigot 16 miles out ot sea.

The 16 small tankers, maneuvering close to shore, are all potential collision hazards. A jumbo tanker, discharging its cargo well out to sea, is a collision hazard, too. But oil spilled 16 miles from the coat is less of a menace than oil spilled in close proximity to New York and Newark bays.

The use of jumbo tankers and deep-water unloading would also save us a lot of dollar exchange now going for expensive transport.

BIND NUMBER THREE: We have talked so long about the oil pipeline in Alaska and the possibility of drilling productive wells on the continental shelf off New England, not to mention new refineries on the East Coast, that the Arabs now have a 10-year period in which they can either hold us up for unconscionable crude oil prices or blackmail us out of our efforts to solve the mid-East crisis without letting Israel down.

Meanwhile, other nations have no compunctions about building deep water oil ports or offshore transfer spigot stations; and the British, the Norwegians and the Dutch hardly waited a single minute before drilling for oil and gas in the North Sea. If there are spills in the tempestuous outer North Sea, the British and the Norwegians will learn how to cope with them as they go along. Meanwhile, they won't be freezing in the dark in Aberdeen, Scotland, or in Norway's Oslo.

The gas stations in New England are already limiting new customers to 10 gallons at the pump. If it's this way in May, what will it be in August, when people are really trying to get out of the city for a breath of air or a look at the mountains?

Gov. Thomson of New Hampshire is the first prophetic voice in a high administrative place, and the country will be hearing more of him as the energy crisis grows worse.

The average American husband contributes about 1.6 hours each day, or 11 hours each week, to household chores. The amount does not change much even if the wife has a job out of the home. This information comes from a 1970 poll by the Institute of Life Insurance.

"I always make six carbons, so I'm bound to find one of them."

Hal Boyle . . . Remarks for librarians

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks a lady librarian gets tired of hearing:

"What have you got left on the shelf where you hide the really racy stuff?"

"I don't want any of your books, kid. You're the one I'd like the check out. What would you like to do tonight?"

"Why are you always shushing people so it's so quiet in here you can hear a pin drop? Who wants to listen to a pin drop, anyway?"

"Do you have any sure-fire books on how to make money after 65? My husband is retiring next month."

"I found this copy of "Forever Amber" in the children's section. Hasn't it been misplaced — or am I just that far behind the times?"

"There are a couple of high school kids smooching behind the nonfiction stacks. Aren't you going to do something about it?"

"No, I don't want any books, lady. I just want a place where I can sit down and take a nap. I'm homeless."

"Garbage, garbage, garbage! That's all they write nowadays. If a man like Charles Dickens were alive today, he'd have to earn a living writing for seed catalogues."

"Whom do I report a dirty old man to? No, he didn't say anything to me, but he just sits across the reference table from me and leers whenever our knees touch."

"Why Elsie Dimmer, don't tell me you've been working at the library here ever since we got out of college! Whatever became of your plans to go to Broadway and become an actress?"

"Please, Miss Dimmer, can't you just forget I owe the library 55 cents for returning my books late? If I have to pay you I won't have enough money left to go to the movies and meet my boy friend."

"What about those nice books about the Bobbsey Twins? Did they ever grow up? I think one of the reasons I was so unprepared for marriage was that I was still reading about the Bobbsey Twins until I was 16."

Dear Abby:

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Loafer son no longer a 'minor' problem

DEAR ABBY: Our son was given every opportunity for as much education as he wanted, plus room and board without costing him a quarter, but as the kids say today, "he blew it."

Now he comes and goes as he pleases, lounges around the house, reading, listening to records, eating like a king, contributing nothing, and making long speeches about what is wrong with the world. We told him to please get out until he either gets a job or goes back to school and completes his education. So far, neither alternatives appeal to him.

He says that he is a minor and we have to take care of him until he is 21. That means another eight months, and I don't think we can take it. Any suggestions?

HAD IT IN DETROIT

DEAR HAD IT: In Detroit your son is an adult at 18, and he has no more right to live on your property than a stranger. You can give him the official 30 day notice to move out of your home, and if he refuses, the court will advise him that he has 10 days to move, after which, they will "help" him.

You don't live in Detroit-you live in Atlanta, Ga., or Muscatine, Ia., or Boston, Mass.? Well, ring up your local Legal Aid Society and find out what the law in your community says.

DEAR ABBY: I have a beautiful 22-year-old daughter. She has always had many boy friends and girl friends until about a year ago when she met this one girl at school. Since then, nothing has been the same.

My daughter has dropped all her other friends and she associates only with this one girl. They are together morning, noon, and night. They have all their classes together, and after school this friend comes home with her, eats dinner here, and on weekends she spends the nights here.

They never have dates, but it doesn't seem to bother them-they are so wrapped up with each other. It just doesn't seem normal to me.

Abby, I am beginning to wonder about the relationship between these two girls. I love my daughter more than my own life. What should I do?

HEARTSICK MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Let your daughter know you love her and accept her as she is. There is no more convincing proof of your love.

DEAR ABBY: What would you say about a guy who is so egotistical he flies the American flag on his birthday? He was in World War II, and all he ever did for his country was get a dishonorable discharge.

Isn't there a law against flying the American flag whenever you feel like it? And if so, what is the penalty, and where do I turn this conceited bum in?

Nothing would give me more pleasure. Thank you.

GALVESTON, TEX.

DEAR GALVESTON: You'd better find another way to punish the guy. There is no law against flying the American flag anytime, or all the time.

DEAR ABBY: Re the letter from the housewife who said her husband got all kinds of offers from willing women to have coffee and "something" while making a delivery: I've been installing phones for five years, and the most I've ever been offered was a cup of coffee and a piece of cake.

I hope all wives whose husbands make deliveries and service calls don't think their husbands are fooling around. They aren't. Believe me, I know.

NOTHING ON THE SIDE

CONFIDENTIAL TO LOREN: Superstar misses you. Please call your mother collect immediately.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, May 29, the 149th day of 1973. There are 216 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1453, the capital of the Byzantine Empire, Constantinople, was captured by the Turks. The date is listed by some historians as the end of the Middle Ages.

On this date:

In 1736, the American patriot, Patrick Henry, was born in Hanover County, Va.

In 1790, Rhode Island became the last of the 13 original colonies to ratify the U.S. Constitution.

In 1848, Wisconsin joined the Union as the 30th state.

In 1917, the 35th American president, John F. Kennedy, was born in Brookline, Mass.

In 1943, the Americans defeated the Japanese in the Pacific war Battle of Attu in the Aleutians.

In 1953, Edmond Hillary of New Zealand and Tensing Norkay of Nepal became the first climbers to reach the top of the world's highest mountain, Mt. Everest.

Ten years ago: President John F. Kennedy was honored as "father of the year" on his 46th birthday.

Five years ago: In South Vietnam, quiet was returning to suburbs of Saigon after a series of attacks by enemy troops.

One year ago: In Moscow, President Nixon and Soviet Communist party Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev signed a declaration pledging an era of peaceful coexistence between the United States and U.S.S.R.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

A brilliant young organist, Anne Merrill Stewart, of Columbus, pupil of Dr. Wilbur Held of the Ohio State University, will repeat her graduating recital here in the First Presbyterian Church next Thursday May 31 at 8 p.m. (originally announced for Sunday, the date has been changed to Thursday).

When Anne received the message that she was invited to play in Washington C.H., her response was so delighted that it seems unusually urgent to have a good audience for such a gracious performer.

Miss Stewart has been accepted for graduate study at both the Eastman School of Music and the Yale University School of Music, and she expects to study at Yale. She has been serving as organist in the Parkview United Methodist Church in Columbus and during the past season has played recitals in Trinity Episcopal Church and the First Congregational Church, both of which have new instruments of great interest.

I'm hoping and trusting that no one will miss Thursday evening's concert. One might say it is rated G. There is no admission charge, although adults may make a contribution if they wish, to help defray some expenses.

Sometimes feet that drag when going out of an evening miraculously lighten after an encounter with fine music, a wonderful personality and mutual enjoyment. It could happen this week. Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Presbyterian Church.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

In reference to your recent picture of Rock Bridge and the resulting "Letter to the Editor" in regard to channelization.

We too enjoyed the picture of Rock Bridge; however, there are some things upstream which aren't as nice! Such things as expensive tile drainage systems with decreased efficiency that are in danger of being ruined because the outlet is now below the bottom of the silted in, grown-over streams; or fields that lay wet for days after each rain delaying farm work or drowning crops — or flooding after heavy rains!

Because many people and buildings were involved, the Corps of Engineers channelized Paint Creek in Washington C. H. and solved the city's immediate flooding problem. Farmers weren't eligible for the Corps help and still have the same problems Washington C. H. had before the Corps project was completed. Washington C. H. is still plagued with drainage problems which will have to be remedied in the future.

Watershed projects in the past were done as efficiently and cheaply as possible with no consideration for changes in the environment. Those planned today try to damage as little as possible and replace as much as possible that which is damaged.

In the future we must have essential drainage and flood control. We could have this and still retain many trees, ledges, pools and other so called natural features if everyone would help and cooperate in the planning rather than put so much effort in fighting watershed work!

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

We wish to take this opportunity to thank people publicly for the support given the youth programs of the Senior Hi-Y Club at Washington Senior High.

The support of community members for our Christmas Tree drive and clothing drive was very generous. The response of churches, within the city, as our club attended various religious services, was cooperative and inviting. The Youth In Government Program of the club would not have been possible without the advice and assistance of Judge Coffman, Judge Marchant, and attorneys John Bryan, Robert Simpson, Gary Smith and Dennis Ulrich. While in Columbus for the model legislative and judicial sessions, the youth attorneys of our club were complimented by Ohio Attorney General William Brown and his staff for their excellent preparation and presentations, which reflects the work of the above-mentioned advisers.

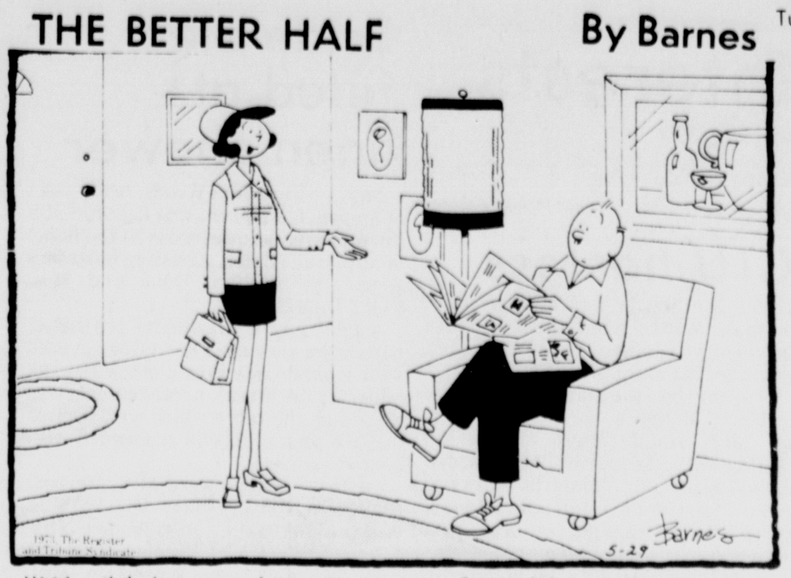

Additionally, several community organizations have given both moral and financial support to the work of the Hi-Y: The Lions Club, Kiwanis, Belle Aire PTA, The Twenty Club and the American Legion Auxiliary.

Finally, we thank The Record-Herald for news coverage of the club's activities.

A major aspect of community growth and solidarity is the support and encouragement given to the youth.

Help for criminal offenders eyed

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Help for the mentally disturbed criminal offender is the goal of a newly created system of clinics the state has set up with federal assistance.

The newest of five clinics opens in Cincinnati this month.

The Hamilton County Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board will operate it.

The state provided about $33,000 for the forensic psychiatric facility to go with a grant of $46,000 from the federal government under the Safe Streets Act of 1968.

Similar earlier grants made possible the establishment of clinics in Dayton, Springfield, Columbus, and Toledo. No more are planned in the immediate future officials said, because the latest grant is the final one available under the act.

Dr. Kenneth Gaver, director of the Ohio Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, said the community-based facilities are "part of the department's overall effort to treat the offender on the local level rather than in large state institutions." He called it the same approach that is being taken in other mental health and retardation programs.

Gaver said the centers will provide out-patient treatment and will not involve any type of confinement, although the Cincinnati clinic will provide emergency psychiatric services for the Hamilton County jail.

Dr. Lowell Cunningham, commissioner of the Division of Forensic Psychiatric, said, "We will have the opportunity to see the patient when he first enters our system.

"This gives us a chance to observe him before he appears in the courts for decisions on what should be done. It provides the courts with evaluation reports on the patient."

Cunningham said the clinics will provide "continuity of care" for patients visited during their confinement and added: "We will be able to treat the offender after he is paroled and returned to the community.

Under the plan, local health boards will work closely with the forensic psychiatry division. Education programs will be conducted to train probation officers of the cities and common pleas court how to better deal with probationers.

Mystery illness said hysteria

BERRY, Ala. (AP) — A mysterious illness that afflicted more than 80 pupils and teachers at an elementary school in this northwest Alabama town has been diagnosed as a case of mass hysteria.

That was the conclusion reached by a state health officer Friday after a two-week investigation of the incident. A psychiatrist who has lived among the residents most of her life agreed that the illness was imagined and not real.

Dr. Inez Fowler, the psychiatrist, said those who had the illness, characterized by an itching rash, dizziness and nausea, were not actually sick — they just thought they were.

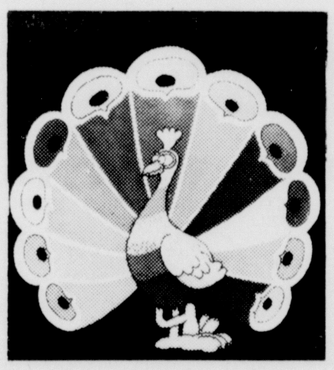

The first self-powered, trackless, wheeled-vehicle in the nation is believed to have been adapted from a Newark, Ohio, steam traction engine in 1858 by Joseph McCune, a Jefferson County farmer.

DCCW entertains graduates

The Diocese of Catholic Church Women of St. Colman's Catholic Church entertained the graduates of the church after Communion Mass on Sunday at breakfast in the Sulky Restaurant.

Mrs. Charles Wright, president of DCCW, welcomed the guests. The Rev. Richard J. Connelly spoke to the graduates and had each one introduce himself and tell of his or her future plans. Msgr. Leonard Fick gave a brief talk on the value of knowledge.

Those present were Kathy Binzel, Jeanne Gad, Diane Kimmet, Colleen Langen, Shirley Mayer, Margaret and Marilyn O'Flynn, Patty Smith, Babs Moore, Lee Black, Tim Calentine, John Johnson, Bobby Lutz, Don Mayer, Pat Sullivan, Tom Rodgers and Kenneth Pettit.

Also Msgr. Fick, Father Connelly, Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Mark O'Flynn and Mrs. Raldon Smith.

Mrs. Ellis DAR hostess

The Martha Washington Committee on Indian Affairs, Washington C. H. Daughters of the American Revolution, held a carry-in dinner at the home of Mrs. Charles Ellis Monday evening.

A brief business meeting conducted by Mrs. Cecil Van Zant, followed the dinner. Members discussed the tour to the Johnson Farm near Greenville on June 7. Members will take a canal boat ride on this tour.

There were 12 persons present for the dinner.

Art showing opens Thursday at Fayette Center

MRS. LUISA OWEN

Mrs. Luisa Owen of Yellow Springs will have a showing of stitchery and drawings in the Fayette Center Gallery at the Fayette County Bank beginning Thursday. The show will run through July 19.

Mrs. Owen was born in Yugoslavia, but her mother was an American citizen. Having spent three years in a concentration camp until she was 12 years old, she lived in a coal mine with her mother, who was forced to work at hard labor in the mine. They came to the United States when Mrs. Owens was 16 and she enrolled in a high school in Cincinnati, where she was later winner of an art scholarship to the Cincinnati Art Institute. She also attended Wright State University, Dayton, where she is presently an art instructor.

She will be a judge at the Fayette County Fair in the Fine Arts section.

Cleveland was the first city in the nation to use electric traffic signals, which were erected at the intersection of Euclid Avenue and East 105th Street.

Mrs. Custer WCTU hostess

Mrs. Paris Custer extended hospitality to the Washington C.H. Women's Temperance Union at her home Friday afternoon. Mrs. Florence Inskeep brought devotions, and used for her theme "Hidden Talent." "If one has a task to do, he should not hide his talent," she said. She read a poem by Helen Steiner Rice and closed with prayer.

Mrs. Cloyce Copley conducted the meeting and reports were heard. Mrs. Hugh Smith presented the program. She read "Little Things in Life," and Miss Marian Christopher read an article, "This is My Country." She also announced that a liquor ad appeared in a recent issue of Reader's Digest. Members were urged to write a letter of protest.

Mrs. J.G. Jordan read that a stiffer penalty is to be placed in effect for drunken driving. The fine will be from $500 to $2,500, and when a total of 24 points is reached, drivers' licenses will be suspended for six months. A recent article in a Columbus newspaper stated that slightly more than half of the highway fatalities are due to drunken drivers. An article was read by Mrs. Thomas Willis about Ohio State University permitting alcohol beverages on campus.

A poem by the late Mr. Frank Grubbs, "Mother's Day," was read, and Mrs. Ralph Hays closed the meeting with the poem "My Garden Hints." She read: "Plant five rows of peas: patience, preparedness, promptness, perseverance and perceptiveness. Plant four rows of lettuce: let us be faithful to duty, let us be true to our obligations, let us be unselfish, and let us obey rules and love one another. Plant four rows of squash; squash petty jealousies, gossip, criticism and indifference. No garden is complete without turnips: turn up for meetings, turn up with new ideas, and turn up with a determination to make everything count for everything good and worthwhile."

A dessert course was served by Mrs. Inskeep and Mrs. B.E. Kelley. Mrs. Hays will entertain the Union on June 29 and will be assisted by Mrs. Ora Finley and Mrs. Dean Torbett. Mrs. Kelley will bring devotions and the program.

Attend swim show

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Cowdery accompanied by Miss Lucy Randolph, CCC-E, recently attended the Synchronized Swim Show in the Upper Arlington Natatorium presented by the Columbus Coralina Swim Club. The show featured state and regional AAUW championship team of which Mr. and Mrs. Cowdery's granddaughter, Miss Jill Vincent, is a member. She also swam her solo routine which won her the 13 and 14-year-old age group title and regional championship.

The show was presented in celebration of the team placing ninth in the recent AAUW synchronized swim competition held in Hershey, Pa.

This is the first time any team from Ohio has placed in the top 10 nationally. They will compete in further national competition in Cypress Gardens, Fla., in July, and later in San Francisco, Calif.

Dance held at Country Club

Forty couples danced to the music of Luther Bolen and his band Saturday evening at the Washington Country Club. Decorations were of a patriotic theme in red, white and blue.

Mr. and Mrs. Burnham Light were co-chairmen, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thrailkill and Mr. and Mrs. Darryl Stewart.

A potluck dinner for members and their guests was held Monday evening at the country club.

PERSONALS

Mrs. Vada Moats, 926 S. Fayette St., has returned home after spending several days with her son and daughter-in-law and family, Mr. and Mrs. James Moats, in Madison, W. Va. While there, they celebrated the ninth birthday of her grandson, Doug Moats.

Miss Anne Stewart of Columbus was a luncheon guest Monday noon in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Case. Miss Stewart, organist at Parkview United Methodist Church in Columbus, will be guest recitalist in First Presbyterian Church here at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Some brides prefer having their receptions at home surrounded by everything that is familiar, but this does require more planning.

Bride-elect feted at linen shower

Miss Patricia Ann Woods, bride-elect of Steven J. Johnson, was honored at a linen shower held Saturday in the home of Mrs. O.C. Kibler. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. William Dunn and Mrs. Pearl Breakfield.

A pink and white theme prevailed. Gifts were arranged on a table covered with a handmade lace cloth with pink underlay. A floral arrangement was placed on the table which was located under a pink umbrella suspended with pink streamers.

Contest winners were Mrs. Herbert Hoppes and Miss Nancy Woods. Miss Woods thanked the guests for her gifts.

Refreshments, in keeping with the color scheme, were served to Mrs. Lowell Woods, mother of the bride-elect; Miss Nancy Woods, Mrs. William Johnson, mother of the prospective groom; Mrs. Brance Johnson, Mrs. Donald Bowdle, Mrs. James Braun, Mrs. Harry Penwell, Mrs. Donald Hidy, Mrs. Earl Russell, Mrs. Earl Rea, Miss Peggy Breakfield, Mrs. Lee Reisinger, Miss Linda Reisinger, Mrs. Howard Barney, Mrs. Jerry Hoppes, Mrs. Frank Holdren, Mrs. Everett Baird, Mrs. Lawrence Hoppes, Mrs. Herbert Hoppes, Mrs. Kibler, Mrs. Breakfield and Mrs. Dunn.

Coulters host class meeting

Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Coulter were hosts at a hamburger fry and potluck dinner when members of the Good Fellowship Class of First Christian Church assembled at their home Monday.

There were 16 members and one guest, Mrs. Gloria Karnatz, present. Mrs. Coulter presented devotions using "Prayer" for her topic. She also read from Dr. Norman Vincent Peale's writings. The group sang two hymns, and a brief business meeting was conducted by Kenneth Blair. Organ music was provided for entertainment.

Crusaders Class to meet Saturday

The Christian Crusaders Class of South Side Church of Christ will meet in Fellowship Hall at 6:30 p.m. Saturday. A covered dish dinner will be held preceding the meeting.

Hostesses for the evening will be Mrs. Frank Coulter, Mrs. Alice Beedy and Mrs. Margaret Emrick. Frank Coulter will present devotions and there will be surprise entertainment.

MONEY DOES MATTER . . .

By J. W. Wallace

SPENDING TOO MUCH FOR FOOD? A FEW HELPFUL TIPS . . .

If, for food, you are spending more than 30 per cent of your gross income after payroll deductions and all Federal and State income taxes (this is called "spendable income") then you are probably spending too much. It would seem that more care is needed in planning your food expenditures.

Could you possibly buy larger and more economical amounts, make better use of left-overs, take more advantage of specials, watch for coupons, refund "deals", and avoid impulse buying?

Do you carefully plan and prepare a shopping list in advance and make sure that the check-out girl rings up the right price for each item?

And, watch the packaging! Check weights against prices. Very often the largest package isn't the best buy.

Take a little more time, shop carefully, and perhaps you, too, can keep within the safer 22 to 29 per cent range for food purchases.

Congratulations to -

Brian Storm and Bob Osborn on being awarded top honors at the annual Blue Lions track banquet.

H. B. Dixon on being elected commander of the Paul H. Hughey, Post 25, American Legion, for the coming year.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The NBC Television network, which gave us the "Today" show in 1952 and "Tonight" in 1954, plans "Tomorrow," a late-hour interview show, starting this fall.

The host of the one-hour program will be Tom Snyder, a Milwaukee, Wis., native. He's been the 6 p.m. news anchorman since 1970 at KNBC-TV, a Los Angeles area station owned by NBC.

"Tomorrow" is aimed at earlier risers or night owls, depending on one's point of view. It'll start at 1 a.m. Tuesday through Friday right after the Monday-through Thursday "Tonight" shows.

"Tomorrow" is described by NBC as a "sophisticated talk show" that will tackle controversial, adult subjects. Snyder will discuss these subjects with one or more experts and various personalities.

Some of the shows will cover the lighter side of life, according to NBC, which says "Tomorrow" will be taped without an audience at the network's studios in Burbank, Calif.

The idea for the show was developed by Mort Werner, NBC's senior vice president for program planning and one of the developers of the successful "Today" and "Tonight" shows.

When the show begins, probably in October, it will mark the first time a network has regularly scheduled broadcasting past 1 a.m. on weekdays, although NBC has been starting its "Midnight Special" pop music show at 1 a.m. every Saturday since Feb. 3 this year.

"Tomorrow" will end only five hours before the "Today" show begins and could lead to even more network programming in the predawn hours on weekdays.

As Werner put it, "who knows what's going to happen from 2 to 3 a.m. if we're successful from 1 to 2?"

Changes also are afoot at the CBS Television network. But they involve a change of anchormen on the CBS Morning News, a program we always have considered a good, well-edited hour of news.

CBS says John Hart, anchorman of the show since August 1970, and his Washington-based co-anchorman, Nelson Benton, are being reassigned. The change is expected by midsummer at the latest.

They'll be replaced by another two-member anchor team, one of whom will be a woman. Their names are expected to be announced in several weeks, a CBS spokesman said.

Richard S. Salant, CBS News president, reported the change earlier this month to a CBS affiliates meeting in Los Angeles. He said the decision to change was hard to make, but that "our support was eroding." He said in an interview later he meant that a number of CBS affiliates now either aren't carrying the show — which appears opposite the first hour of NBC's "Today" — or are broadcasting only 30 minutes of it.

Sex scandal still boiling in Britain

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath's government continued to insist today that no more of its ministers are involved in a sex scandal despite newspaper reports to the contrary.

Two government ministers resigned last week because Scotland Yard found out they had been consorting with call girls. But the government on Monday night denied a report in two Sunday papers that a third minister—and possibly a fourth—had been mixed up with call girls.

One of the papers, The People, said call girl Norma Levy had given it the name of the third man and said he visited her three times at $125 a visit. She reportedly said she couldn't be positive about the fourth man until she saw a picture of him. Mrs. Levy was reported to have taken refuge in Morocco, which has no extradition treaty with Britain.

The names of the men were not disclosed, but the paper said it passed them along to the government.

Heath flew to West Germany Monday for a brief vacation, but his office announced Monday night that Scotland Yard's investigations had produced "no evidence of any kind" to support the allegations that more members of the government might be involved.

Government sources reported Heath had called in the third man named by Mrs. Levy and the minister categorically denied that he had been one of her customers.

Eye asylum for Soviet jet pilot

BONN, Germany (AP) — The West German government today is considering an application for asylum from a young Soviet pilot who parachuted from his plane moments before it crashed.

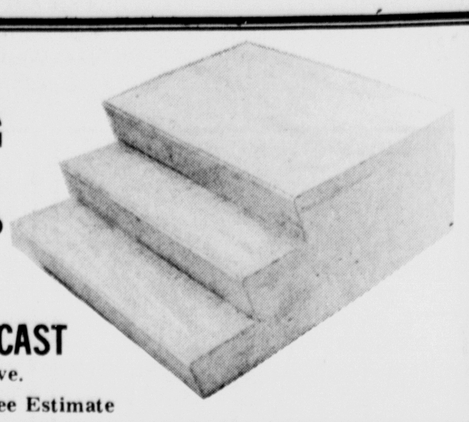

A spokesman said the government was investigating the motives of Lt. Yevgeny Lvoich, 21, who asked for asylum after his SU7 fighter crashed Sunday about 23 miles inside West Germany near Brunswick.

Asylum is granted routinely to run-of-the-mill defectors. But Lvoich is the first Soviet pilot known to have defected since 1967, when the pilot of a MIG17 made a wheels-up landing in a Bavarian meadow and asked for asylum in the United States.

Authorities were investigating whether Lvoich crossed the border with the intention of defecting or if the request was prompted by the crash.

Lvoich agreed to meet today with a Soviet diplomat in the presence of a West German official.

Nixon invites congressmen to foreign policy briefing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Back in Washington for a day, President Nixon invited key Congress members of both parties to a White House foreign policy briefing session today.

Nixon, who returned to the capital Monday night after spending Memorial Day weekend in Florida and the Bahamas, will be leaving town again Wednesday for summit talks in Iceland with French President Georges Pompidou.

The President arranged to have Henry A. Kissinger, his special assistant for national security affairs, brief the congressional delegation on the Pompidou talks and on Kissinger's recent conversations in Paris with North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers, who returned Monday night from a 17-day tour of eight hemisphere countries, also scheduled a briefing for the senators and House members following a private session with Nixon.

The briefings were announced by Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren, who was the only White House spokesman available to reporters during the President's weekend trip.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler was reported to have flown back to Washington with Nixon on Air Force One, but newsmen on the plane did not see him aboard nor did they see him leave the craft upon its arrival here.

Rogers also was scheduled to travel to Iceland with the President.

Claim FBI has impeded jury probe

LOS ANGELES (AP) — FBI agents have impeded a Los Angeles County grand jury probe of the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

But a Justice Department official, Kevin Maroney, told the paper that a problem regarding FBI agents' telling witnesses not to submit to questioning by investigators has been resolved.

Marine Corps Commandant Robert E. Cushman Jr. is scheduled to begin testimony today before the grand jury. He was the deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency at the time of the break-in.

Cushman was to testify before the probe officially begins because of prior Marine Corps commitments.

Maroney said: "There was some misunderstanding, but it is straightened out now. Any witness who was under the impression that the FBI did not want them talking to other investigators has now been told otherwise."

The grand jury is to begin officially an investigation June 5 on the break-in at the Beverly Hills office of Dr. Lewis J. Fielding, Ellsberg's psychiatrist. Testimony at Ellsberg's Pentagon papers trial disclosed that men hired by a White House security unit had broken into the offices in September 1971 in an unsuccessful effort to secure Ellsberg's records.

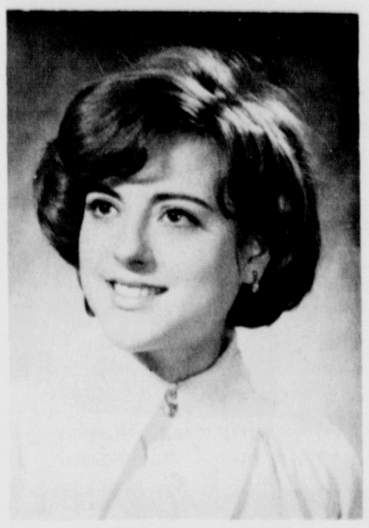

A federal court judge several weeks ago dismissed charges of espionage, conspiracy and theft against Ellsberg and codefendant Anthony Russo for copying the top secret Pentagon study of the Vietnam war.

Organist to present recital Thursday

Miss Anne Merrill Stewart, a senior organ student at Ohio State University, will present a recital at 8 p.m. Thursday in the First Presbyterian Church sanctuary. The presentation will be the Washington Organ Club's final concert of the 1972-73 season.

There will be no admission charge for this concert, although a free-will offering will be taken to help defray the expense of the concert.

Miss Stewart has been a member of David Craighead's master class in organ at Kettering and has been a member of Mirrors and Chimes women's honoraries while attending Ohio State University. She will graduate from Ohio State this quarter, and has been accepted by the Eastmen and Yale Colleges of Music. She plans to spend this summer in Cuernavaca, Mexico, and will attend Yale University's College of Music in the fall.

THE RECITAL will be presented on the recently enlarged organ in First Presbyterian Church and will include selections presented by Miss Stewart in her recital for her Bachelor of Music degree. Her graduating recital was presented May 21 in North Broadway United Methodist Church, Columbus.

Immediately following the presentation here, the Organ Club will hold its regular meeting which was postponed in April. The meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Earl Hartley and will be the last meeting of the season. Officers will be elected.

The organ club has presented two classical and three popular programs this season and is attempting to renovate and enlarge the pipe organ in Washington Junior High School. Reports on the progress and future plans will be the main discussion items at the business meeting. New and associate memberships will be presented.

Postcard arrives 59 years late

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A postcard mailed from Cincinnati to Durant, Iowa, finally found its destination—59 years later.

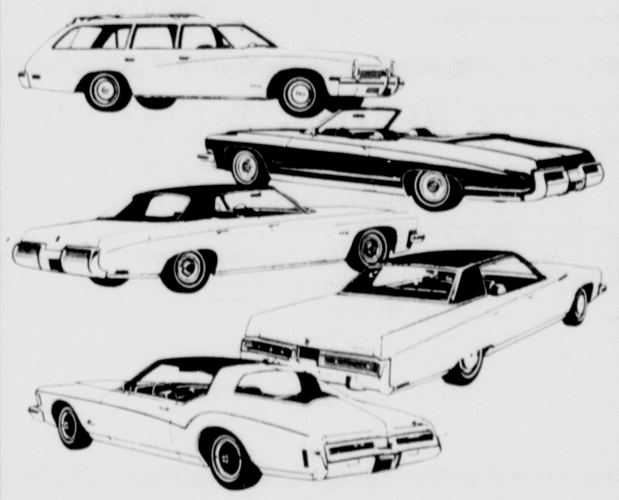

The postcard, sent June 18, 1914, was mailed by Dr. James Irvin to his wife. Both are now dead.

A postmaster said the card was spotted when it carried insufficient postage, a one cent stamp. The same card costs six cents today.

Indiana students learn practical arts

By MARMIE TUERFF
Fort Wayne News-Sentinel

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — Four years ago while an undergraduate at Ball State University, Muncie, Ind., Nora Bennon took a course on woods, metals and plastics, just "for kicks."

Today, however, she's teaching practical arts, a combination shop and art class, to seventh grade students at Jefferson Junior High School here.

Miss Bennon admits she had to brush up on types of tools used in shop work and on the methods of construction. But she boasts her students passed a test about shop tools that some male teachers failed.

She has uesed her artistic talents to make posters explaining the rules of safety and different use of tools.

Both boys and girls are enrolled in the once all-male, nine-week course on basics of woodwork, implements and industrial trades.

"We learned together," Miss Bennon said. "As the students told me their interests, I got the books out to answer their questions."

EACH STUDENT has a project to complete during the nine weeks. "It's up to the student what he wants to do." Some are working with wood and others metal.

The projects range from a zodiac sign to a "World's Greatest Mother" plaque.

Asked if discipline has been a problem, Miss Bennon said "No, partially because some of the students have a crush on me and that makes them work harder."

"I never begin class until they've all taken a seat. Once it took them 20 minutes to quiet down. It didn't happen again. Then they knew I wasn't bluffing."

In addition to the shop class, the young teacher holds art club two evenings a week, sketches in watercolor and ink and weaves with paper, leather, metal and yarn.

A display of jewelry she has designed and made has been on public view in the Fort Wayne area.

Boating accidents strike suddenly and viciously. The division of watercraft of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources says it's a good idea to have distress flares in boats in case of an emergency. Six red hand flares and six smoke flares stowed in a watertight container make a good emergency kit.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Policeman's Blunder

Officer Harrison halted a speeding motorist and gave him a ticket. But he failed to notice that the man was intoxiated.

Scarcely five minutes later, the same motorist drove his car through a red traffic light and knocked down a woman pedestrian.

Could the woman hold the city legally liable for the accident because of the officer's blunder:

"The city is supposed to provide police protection," she argued in a court hearing. "That's what we pay taxes for. If the officer hadn't let that drunken driver get away, I would never have gotten hurt."

But the court disagreed, saying the law simply does not recognize this kind of a claim.

It is true that all members of the community are entitled to reasonable police protection. But this is a general, not a specific, right.

It does not mean that each victim of a crime, if he can point to some police error, can collect damages from the city government.

THE REASONING is mainly pragmatic. Courts fear that if such claims were allowed, the financial burden on cities would be staggering.

Nevertheless, under certain circumstances, a person may indeed have a special right to police protection.

Consider the problem of the person who is an informer or a material witness in a forthcoming trial. If he is in danger, the city is likely to be held responsible for his safety.

"Otherwise," said one court, "it might become difficult to convince the citizen to cooperate with law enforcement officers."

In one unusual case, the family of a suicide victim tried to blame the city because the police had missed a chance to prevent the tragedy. They said officers had come out to investigate a family quarrel, then left with things still unsettled.

But the city was exonerated. The court said even if the officers should have stayed longer, they still could not fairly have foreseen that the man would take his own life.

Russian roulette fatal to youth

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—An 18-year-old Liberty youth, R. Robert Pike, was killed Sunday while involved in Russian Roulette at a party, police said.

Witnesses told police Pike had brought a pistol to the party and was talking about Russian Roulette when he put the gun to his head and pulled the trigger.

The incident continues under investigation.

Penney reports rising income

SEATTLE, Wash. — The J.C. Penney Company, Inc. reports a 23.9 per cent increase in net income for the first quarter over the same 1972 period. The company had net earnings of $24.5 million for the 13 weeks ended April 28 against $19.8 million last year. This amounted to net income per share of 43 cents compared with 35 cents in 1972.

As previously reported, the department store and catalog chain's sales for the quarter rose 17.5 per cent to a record $1,299.6 million from $1,106.0 million, an increase of $193.6 million.

Discussing the first-quarter performance at the annual stockholders' meeting here, Chairman William M. Batten noted that the same factors which influenced 1972 results figured prominently in the quarter-leverage from a strong sales gain and effective expense control.

He attributed the volume increase to a high level of consumer spending coupled with a strong Penney promotional program and generally favorable weather which gave added impetus to buying for the late Easter.

Turning to the remainder of the year, Batten said that the company anticipates a "relatively good second quarter. The apprehension of a number of economists and the downturn in consumer confidence reflected in surveys lead us to be somewhat more cautious about the latter half of the year. But, on balance, we expect 1973 to be another record year for the Penney Company."

BANK AFFILIATION

IRONTON — Announcement has been made that the board of directors of The Citizens National Bank of Ironton has voted in favor of a proposal to affiliate with BancOhio Corp., a statewide banking organization headquartered in Columbus.

George M. Wileman, DDS, acting president of Citizens National Bank, and Philip F. Searle, president and chief executive officer of BancOhio, said that the affiliation proposal provides for a cash purchase by BancOhio of the shares of Citizens National Bank. Terms of the agreement were not available at the time of announcement.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 30

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

Curb tendencies toward combativeness. You can be your independent self without being arrogant — and you'll gain more.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

Personal relationships under something of a cloud. As with Aries, there are tendencies toward argumentativess. Be especially tactful in situations where money is involved.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

With further thought, you now see possibilities in hitherto barren areas of achievement so, if you're in the mood to take a chance, go ahead. Success likely.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

Some difficulty in "communication" likely. Be especially careful in what you tell another "confidentially." It could boomerang.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Some unprecedented situations or unusual propositions indicated. Study well but postpone taking direct action for 48 hours.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

As with many now, you can expect some tension in personal matters. Don't lose your perspective. and, above all, ignore vague rumors. They are just that and nothing more.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Care needed in routine activities. Make no drastic changes arbitrarily, and be especially careful about details. There's a tendency to let the mind wander when it shouldn't.

SCOPRIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

A sudden flash of intuition in a romantic matter will be right on target. Follow through and recent barriers to happiness will fall.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

An idea which comes to you in the afternoon will have great financial potentials and, to enliven matters still further, an associate will show you now to carry it out successfully.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Don't be discouraged if your efforts seem unappreciated. Instead, draw attention to them — but in a subtle manner.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Travel under especially beneficent influences. In fact, some exciting circumstances attending a short trip will give you a big lift.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Your intuition still in fine working order. A good day for capitalizing on unusual ideas, experimenting generally.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a brilliant mind, a lively imagination and a warm and outgoing personality. You are highly idealistic and unusually sensitive. Try to curb the latter trait, since you could suffer unnecessarily over fancied slights. Exceptionally versatile, you could succeed in many fields, by your great achievements may come through music or in the literary world — especially as writer of short stories, reporter, editor, advertising or promotional copy-writer. You could also excel on the stage or in the legal profession, where you could become an outstanding trial lawyer.

Chillicothewoman dies in Arkansas auto accident

POCAHONTAS, Ark. (AP) — A 54-year-old Ohio woman and an 18-year-old Pocahontas resident were killed in a two-car crash on U. S. 62 about six miles west of here Monday.

State police identified the victims as Mrs. Corda Collins of Chillicothe, Ohio, and Jerry T. Williams, the local resident.

Authorities said the crash occurred when a car driven by Williams crossed the centerline and struck a car driven by Donald Collins, 54, of Chillicothe.

Officers said Collins and Greg Collins, 16, also of Chillicothe, were hospitalized at Memphis. Police said Randy Collins, 20, and Cindy Francis, 20, both of Chillicothe, were hospitalized at Pocahontas.

Lazarus rites set in Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Funeral services were to be held today for Fred Lazarus Jr., one of the nation's pioneers in retail merchandizing.

Lazarus, 88, who died Sunday, formed Federated Department Stores in 1929 and directed its growth for three decades. He was chairman of the executive committee at the time of his death.

Federated, with more than 200 stores, is the nation's largest department store chain.

He began his retailing career in Columbus, Ohio.

PET SHOP PALS — Two Siamese kittens have adopted a new mother in the form of Prissie, 2-year-old St. Bernard. The kittens' mother was stolen from pet shop at Salinas, Calif., and Prissie was on hand to take over.

Author likes to read it and tell it as it was

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Helene Hanff is an avid reader and a prolific writer. And what she prefers both to read and to write is nonfiction.

"I find the real world much more interesting than made up things," explains the author of television scripts, encyclopedia articles, speeches, magazine articles and books, the latest of which is "The Duchess of Bloomsbury Street." "I never can get interested in things that didn't happen to people who didn't live.

"I like books in the first person by someone who lived somewhere at some time, a place and time that I will never see," she continues. "I don't care if it's Sam Pepys in 1600 or someone today. I like people to tell me in a book what it's like to be someone else."

And in fair exchange she has told her readers what it's like to be Helene Hanff, a woman who so enjoys rare and old books that she once gave up the purchase of a much-needed winter coat to acquire a 14-volume edition of the Bible.

"They had beautiful heavy paper and were found in pigskin. I only had $6 left in the bank after I paid for them, but I craved those books," she recalls.

THAT SET and some 400 other books that she craved during the next 20 years she ordered from a small London bookshop, thus establishing a lively transatlantic correspondence. A few years ago she published "84, Charing Cross Road," a collection of the letters exchanged between her and the staff of Marks & Co. at that address.

"All that time I tried to get to London to see the shop and meet the people I knew so well through letters," says Miss Hanff, who had even sent them gift packages of canned meat, dried eggs and other items scarce in postwar England. "But something always happened. Once it was paying the dentist; once it was having to move to a new apartment; once it was a TV show that startled us all by going on all summer."

But thanks to an advance from the publisher of the British edition of "84," she has finally made it. And now, in answer to all the fan mail asking if she ever got to London she has written the new book, "The Duchess of Bloomsbury Street," about that trip.

HEADQUARTERED at Bloomsbury Street hotel and treated like visiting royalty, Miss Hanff at last stood in front of 84, Charing Cross Road.

"It was frustrating," she admits. "For one thing, I wasn't alone. There was a press girl, a photographer, a reporter, a sales manager, everybody staring and waiting for my reaction. It was raining and I'd just gotten in the night before. I didn't have a chance to have a reaction, really."

But London was all she had dreamed it would be. "I had always wanted to see London the way a parish priest wants to see Rome before he dies. The more I read descriptions of London the more it became a kind of obsession."

She finds that city runs at a "much slower, much gentler much more relaxed" pace than New York City and concedes that she would miss the excitement and bustle of her life here.

MISS HANFF has been a full-time writer since she came to New York from Phildelphia with a playwrighting fellowship at age 22. "I wrote enough bad plays to paper the walls of a large museum, but nobody ever produced them," she says.

"I broke into TV and was comfortably settled when TV pulled and moved to Hollywood, where I didn't want to go. Then I started writing magazine articles and children's history books.

"I work a 9 to 5 day like everybody else," she adds. "You hit dry spells when you really climb walls, and then you start cleaning keyholes and scrubbing outside window ledges to get away from the typewriter for 10 minutes."

Oregon residents proud of progressive legislation

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Gov. Tom McCall calls Oregonians "a team of independent thinkers."

"Oregon people think for themselves, they don't wait for direction from Washington, D.C. They don't want Big Daddy to lead them," says state Sen. Ed Potts of Grants Pass.

The Republican governor and the Democratic legislator share the viewpoint that Oregon is a progressive state whose residents seek imaginative solutions to current problems.

The state, 31st in population and 10th in size among the 50 states, has enacted some laws and programs that have stimulated debate among other states, especially in the field of the environment.

Oregon, for example, is the only state that prohibits throwaway bottles for most beverages.

In the 1960s, Oregon led the nation in restricting billboards along its highways — before the federal Highway Beautification Act took effect.

Oregon was one of the first states to gain approval for its clean air implementation plan and its water discharge permit program from the federal Environmental Potection Agency.

But Oregon's critics point out that the state's history is not one of uninterrupted advancement.

The state in the 1860s repealed its ratification of the 14th Amendment and remained on record until this year as disapproving that original equal rights amendment to the Constitution.

The development of mass transportation has lagged in the 135-mile-long Willamette River Valley, where more than 60 per cent of the state's 2,000,000 residents live.

Even audiences in a state which considers itself independent are sometimes startled to hear McCall's appeal to discourage tourism and migration into his state. His theme: Oregon's great but too many people will just spoil it, so why not go elsewhere and leave our beloved state to us and our children?

The state's progressive reputation has apparently undone McCall's campaign. For in 1972, the state attracted 100,000 new residents.

Jasper PTO ends season

MILLEDGEVILLE — The last meeting of the Jasper Parent-Teacher Organization has been held at Milledgeville School. Next year's officers will be Marion Stockwell, the new president, replacing Gary Herdman, Sid Woodrow, vice president, Sondra Woodrow, secretary, and Joan Lovell, treasurer.

At the final meeting it was decided that the first and second graders will have a picnic and party, Tuesday, rather than the trip to the zoo that was considered previously.

Several maintenance projects were discussed and a committee was appointed to evaluate the need and cost of each. The proposed improvements are floor tile in the first and second grade rooms and hall, an acoustical ceiling and reflooring of the fifth and sixth grade rooms.

Miss Fichthorn's first grade class received "Benzoo the Bengal" for having the best adult representation, and at the close of the meeting the first and second graders entertained the group with songs.

The pacific Ocean, 64,186,300 square miles, is the largest in the world.

Youth Activities

AH-WEE-KA-NUN-KU

The meeting was called to order by Janie Schatz for the Ah-Wee-Ka, Nun-Ku who also led the pledges. Edie Seymore collected dues.

Plans were discussed for a lawn-party. The date will be set later. Gina Brown was elected sports and games leader.

CONCORD SWINE 4-H

The meeting of the Concord Swine 4-H Club took place in the home of Keith Downing and was called to order by David Arnold, president. Mike Sollars led the pledges. Roll call was answered by members telling the breed of hogs each member has. Twenty members were present.

Melissa Mark agave a health report on "Healthy Gums." Joe Garland gave the safety report on "Driving and Riding Bicycles."

Project books were given to members. July 15 is the project tour date.

Jeff Sollars and Keith Montgomery were in charge of adjournment. The next meeting will be in the home of Lu Ann, Kelly, Mike and Mark Smith's at 8 p.m. on June 5.

The members played softball for recreation.

TO LO HO RE CA CF

Melissa Leeth opened the To-Lo-Ho-Re-Ca Camp Fire meeting by giving the Sign of the Fire answered by the girls. Tonda Smith, vice president, led the Pledge of Allegiance and Lisa Clemans read the minutes of the last meeting. Joyce Brown called the roll and collected dues and Jodi Fillmore said the prayer.

Camp money and camp bulletins were turned in. Beads were given to three girls. Girls passing another rank in trail seekers had their books marked. Positions for marching in the Memorial Day Parade were assigned and the girls practiced marching outside on the basketball court.

Refreshments were served to 14 members by Tonya Burnett. Hostesses for next weeks' meeting will be Jodi Fillmore and Angela Oyer. Assisting Mrs. Ralph Tate with the meeting was Mrs. William Pressler.

ORDINANCE NO 41-73

AN ORDINANCE TO PROVIDE FOR THE ISSUANCE OF A NOTE IN ANTICIPATION OF THE ISSUANCE OF BONDS TO PAY THE CITY'S PORTION OF THE COST OF IMPROVING, IN COOPERATION WITH THE STATE OF OHIO, ELM STREET AND TEMPLE STREET BY WIDENING AND PAVING AND BY CONSTRUCTING CURBS, GUTTERS AND STORMS SEWERS, TOGETHER WITH ALL NECESSARY APPURTENANCES, AND DECLARING AN EMERGENCY.

WHEREAS, pursuant to Ordinance Nos. 32-70, 30-71 and 39-72, passed by this Council on June 10, 1970, June 9, 1971 and June 14, 1972, respectively, notes of the City were issued for the purpose hereinafter stated, the currently outstanding note being in the principal amount of $30,000, being dated June 23, 1972, which note will mature on June 22, 1973; and

WHEREAS, this Council determines that there is on hand $10,000 available for the purpose of retiring a portion of said note at maturity and that a new note should be issued to retire the balance of the outstanding note; and

WHEREAS, the Auditor, as fiscal officer of this City, has heretofore certified to this Council that the estimated life of the improvements contemplated is at least five years, that the maximum maturity of the bonds hereinafter referred to is twenty years, and that the maximum maturity of notes to be issued in anticipation of said bonds is June 26, 1975 or one year if sold privately;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED by the Council of the City of Washington, Fayette County, Ohio:

Section 1. That it is hereby declared necessary to issue bonds of the City of Washington in the principal sum of $30,000 for the purpose of paying the City's portion of the cost of improving, in cooperation with the State of Ohio, Elm Street and Temple Street by widening and paving and by constructing curbs, gutters and storm sewers, together with all necessary appurtenances.

Section 2. That said bonds shall be dated approximately July 1, 1974, shall bear interest at the estimated rate of five and one-half per centum (5-1/2 per cent) per annum, payable semi-annually, until the principal sum is paid, and shall mature in twenty substantially equal annual installments after the issuance thereof.

Section 3. That for the purpose aforesaid and to retire the outstanding note, it is necessary to issue and this Council hereby determines that a note in the principal amount of $20,000 shall be issued.

Section 4. Such anticipatory note shall bear interest at the rate of four and one-quarter per centum (4-1/4 per cent) per annum, payable at maturity. Such note shall be dated June 22, 1973, and shall mature on or before one year from such date.

Section 5. Such note shall be executed by the City Manager and Auditor and bear the seal of the corporation. It shall be payable at the office of The Washington Savings Bank, Washington Court House, Ohio, and shall express upon its face the purpose for which it is issued and that it is issued pursuant to this ordinance.

Section 6. Subject to the rejection of said note by the Treasurer for investment in the Bond Retirement Fund, said note shall be and hereby is awarded and sold to The Washington Savings Bank, Washington Court House, Ohio, at the par value thereof; and the Treasurer is hereby authorized and directed to deliver said note, when executed, to said purchaser upon payment of such purchase price and accrued interest to the date of delivery. The proceeds of such sale, except any premium and accrued interest, shall be paid into the proper fund and used for the purpose aforesaid and for no other purpose. Any premium and accrued interest shall be transferred to the Bond Retirement Fund to be applied in the payment of the principal and interest of said note in the manner provided by law.

The City hereby covenants that it will restrict the use of the proceeds of the note in such manner and to such extent, if any, as may b e necessary, after taking into account reasonable expectations at the time the debt is incurred, so that it will not constitute arbitrage bonds under Section 103(d) of the Internal Revenue Code and the regulations prescribed under that section. The fiscal officer or any other officer, including the clerk, having responsibility with respect to the issuance of this note is authorized and directed to give an appropriate certificate on behalf of the City, for inclusion in the transcript of proceedings, setting forth the facts, estimates and circumstances and reasonable expectations pertaining to said Section 103(d) and regulations thereunder.

Section 7. Said note shall be the full general obligation of the City and the full faith, credit and revenue of said City are hereby pledged for the prompt payment of the same. The par value to be received from the sale of the bonds anticipated by said note and any excess funds resulting from the issuance of said note shall to the extent necessary be used only for retirement of said note at maturity, together with interest thereon, and is hereby pledged for such purpose.

Section 8. During the year or years while such note runs there shall be levied on all the taxable property in said City, in addition to all other taxes, a direct tax annually not less than that which would have been levied if bonds had been issued therefor without the prior issue of said note. Said tax shall be and is hereby ordered computed, certified, levied, and extended upon the tax duplicate and collected by the same officers, in the same manner and at the same time that taxes for general purposes for each of said years are certified, extended and collected. Said tax shall be placed before and in preference to all other items and for the full amount thereof. The funds derived from said tax levied hereby required shall be placed in a separate and distinct fund, which, together with the interest collected on the same, shall be irrevocably pledged for the payment of the principal and interest of said note or the bonds in anticipation of which it is issued when and as the same falls due.

Section 9. It is hereby determined and recited that all acts, conditions and things necessary to be done, precedent to and in the issuing of said note in order to make it a legal, valid and binding obligation of the City of Washington, have happened, been done and performed in regular and due form and as required by law; and that no limitation of indebtedness or taxation, either statutory or constitutional, will have been exceeded in the issuance of said note.

Section 10. The Clerk is hereby directed to forward a certified copy of this ordinance to the Count Auditor.

Section 11. This ordinance is hereby declared to be an emergency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health, safety and welfare of said City and for the further reason that the immediate issuance and sale of the note herein authorized is necessary to enable the City to retire the existing note and thereby preserve its credit; wherefore, this ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and immediately after its passage.

'Lost' girl was home

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Walter A. Robb, acting chief ranger of Cleveland's Metroplitan Park system, says he has learned there actually was a young girl in the waters of Rocky River where his men spent six hours in a futile search Sunday.

But the girl was safe at home while rangers, firemen, two scuba divers and police from two suburbs searched the river near the Rockcliff Ford bridge in Rocky River Reservation.

Robb said he received a telephone call today from a member of the family of 12-year-old Misty Kuberak of Lakewood saying Misty was the girl who was seen in trouble in the river.

Robb said he was told that Misty had been wading in the water and was swept through a sluiceway at the ford. The park ranger says she managed to get out of the water by herself and went home.

Meanwhile, witnesses who saw her swept through the sluiceway had called for help.

Aussie leader to stop in U.S.

CANBERRA (AP) — Prime Minister Gough Whitlam says the relationship between Australia and the United States is so close that he doesn't have to wait for an official invitation to visit Washington.

Whitlam said today he would visit Washington on his way from Mexico to Canada to attend a conference in early August.

The Australian prime minister was asked in parliament whether he had been invited by President Nixon to the White House. There has been a marked coolness in relations between the two countries caused by Whitlam's criticism of Nixon's Vietnam bombing policy early this year.

Canadian imports rise

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada imported $794 million more goods from the United States in the first quarter of 1973 than it did in the first quarter of last year, Statistics Canada reports. Total imports were $5.24 billion, up from $4.23 billion for the 1972 period.

South Viets OK truce proposals

SAIGON (AP) — Government sources said today that the South Vietnamese government has agreed in principle to a detailed timetable for a true Vietnam cease-fire.

The agreement, worked out in Paris by Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho, calls for both Saigon and the Viet Cong to order all their units to stop shooting, the sources said.

The sources said Saigon has requested some modifications and made some counterproposals. They did not elaborate.

These sources predicted the following developments:

—Kissinger and Tho will officially announce their agreement on strengthening the original cease-fire accord at the conclusion of their next round of talks in Paris scheduled to begin June 6.

—The United States will halt all air reconnaissance missions over North Vietnam.

—Twenty-four hours after the announcement, the Saigon government and the Viet Cong will order opposing battlefield commanders to cease their fire.

—Five to 10 days later, Saigon and the Viet Cong will grant guarantees of privileges and immunities for members of the two-party Joint Military Commission. The two sides will fully deploy observers into the field to keep the peace.

—Within five to 10 days, the United States will resume operations to remove mines from North Vietnamese waters and also will resume economic talks with Hanoi.

—Within three months, zones of control will be delineated.

—Within six months, a National Council of National Reconciliation and Concord must be established and an election procedure set up to shape the political future of South Vietnam. Under terms of the original agreement signed in Paris Jan. 27, this was supposed to have been accomplished by the end of April.

—Military commanders of the opposing parties will meet to establish safety corridors through the respective zones of control.

—Respect for the demilitarized zone and a withdrawal of troops and war equipment from the buffer zone. Demobilization of forces by both sides.

—The establishment of legitimate ports of entry for the replacement of war materiels by each side on a one-for-one basis.

—The release of the remaining Vietnamese military and civilian prisoners of war.

The sources said terms of the agreement were communicated to President Nguyen Van Thieu by William H. Sullivan, Kissinger's aide in the Paris talks with Tho. Sullivan was in Saigon for three days last week.

Recover bodies of 2 brothers

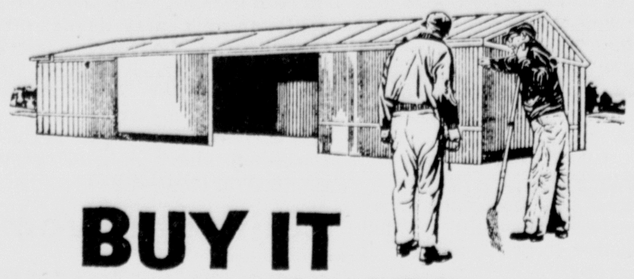

LUDLOW, Ky. (AP) — The bodies of two young brothers, reported missing Sunday, were found Monday in Ludlow Lagoon, police said.

Police identified the boys as Ricky Lancaster, 12, and Lonnie Lancaster Jr., 12, of Ludlow.

Their mother reported the boys missed Sunday night after they failed to return from an afternoon fishing trip.

The Ohio Environmental Protection Agency urges Ohioans to contribute to environmental improvement by joining and supporting local, state, and national environmental groups.

WASHINGTON REPORT

From

WILLIAM H. HARSHA

Representative To Congress
6th District, Ohio

WASHINGTON — The House and Senate Conference Committee on the highway bill has been meeting daily — morning, noon and evening — for approximately two weeks to try to resolve and compromise the differences between the two versions.

There were some 75 differences in the House and Senate-passed highway bills.

During this two-week period of intense negotiation between the House and Senate, the conferees have reached agreement on approximately 74 of the major differences. The only real hangup left is the determination of how the mass transit proposal shall be funded.

In the House bill, the mass transit proposal was to be funded out of the general funds; in the Senate bill, the mass transit proposal was to be funded out of the highway trust fund.

Now, the highway trust fund has been set aside, and taxes have been charged to go into this fund by the highway users, so that there would be enough money to build and repair highways as they were needed.

There has been the charge that the highway trust fund was inaugurated and instituted and designed solely for the purposes of creating and constructing the interstate system. This is a complete misunderstanding of what the federal law provides.

According to the law, the highway trust fund shall be used first for the construction of the federal-aid highway system, and secondly, if there is money available after that, it shall be used to construct the interstate system.

The primary emphasis is on the construction of the federal-aid system which includes the primary and secondary highways that are in the national forests and public lands. Therefore, the idea that the trust fund was created solely for the construction of the interstate system is indeed a misconception.

OTHER PROPONENTS of funding mass transit out of the trust fund argue that there is a large surplus in the trust fund and that this should be used to finance mass transit. This, again, is a fallacy and a result of misinformation.

There is no surplus in the trust fund. There is a balance on a given date because highway contracts are awarded over a period of time and they are paid for as work is completed. So, while on a given date there may be a balance in the trust fund because obligations have not become due, obligations have been incurred but are paid on a monthly, six month or other periodic basis.

As a mater of fact, there are enough obligations against this trust fund to require the need of one-and-a-half times the money that is available in the trust fund. In any event, there will be less than half the amount necessary in the trust fund just to repair our highways. So, this misaprehension must be straightened out.

The proponents of mass transit also argue that mass transit will go a long way towards relieving air pollution and highway congestion, making highways more amenable to automobile traffic and moving traffic faster.

Yet, the Administration, which supports using trust fund monies for mass transit, has conducted a very exhaustive and extensive transportatiion study which ultimately reached the following conclusion: If large sums of money are diverted from the highway trust fund to mass transit, there will be no appreciable diminution of air pollution and there would be a considerable increase in highway fatalities.

So, the argument that mass transit will alleviate the air pollution problem just simply does not hold water when you base it upon the facts and upon the studies that are made by those who are knowledgeable in the field.

FURTHERMORE, I do not believe that anybody would be willing to sacrifice the lives of human beings for some highway travelers. I do not think that is the right priority.

I think that if there is any additional money to be used, it should be used first for the saving of lives and secondly for the convenience of the traveling public.

One other outstanding feature of this whole argument is the fact that mass transit has been held out as the panacea of all the ills of highway congestion.

Let me point out, however, that the very cities having mass transit facilities are the ones suffering the greatest highway congestion and the greatest air pollution.

For example, the cities of New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago have had mass transit systems in operation for a number of years. Now, if mass transit is the panacea of all these transportation ills, why is it that these cities with mass transit, have all the problems attended with highway congestion?

I do not believe they can responsibly answer that charge. As a matter of fact, many of the mass transit systems — the great bulk of them — are not even operating in the black. Most of them are operating in the red, and there is some $500 million in operating subsidies or deficiencies this year.

Three hundred and fifty million dollars of this amount comes from Boston and New York alone where there is capacity ridership on their mass transit systems.

It appears, therefore, that mass transit is not the panacea of all the ills of highway congestion; however, be that as it may, the House and Senate conferees will meet again in early June and try to work out their remaining differences so that a Federal-aid Highway Act of 1973 ultimately can be passed.

Fear of institutional trading hits market

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A deep fear of institutional trading has spread through the securities industry, which only a few years ago scorned the individual investor and scrambled for the big block commissions.

The individual wasn't paying his way, was the common excuse for declining the odd lot business of the small investor in favor of the huge commissions paid by insurance companies and banks and pension and mutual funds.

But now the attitude of many industry leaders is 180 degrees different. They fear institutional trading will ruin the markets. They are courting individuals.

There are some interesting reasons for this. One of them is that liquidity, or the ability to smoothly match buy-sell orders, requires many investors willing to trade at various prices. When the traders are only a handful of institutions, the price spread grows and the market is convulsed. Not everyone on Wall Street was heartened, for example, by the 29.42 point leap in the Dow Jones industrial average last Thursday. Rather than seeing it as evidence of strength, they viewed it as an institutional aberration.

Too often, they say, the institutions not only own the same stocks but buy them at much the same time and sell them almost in unison. Playing games with each other, and without liquidity, they produce wide price swings.

John Whitehead, chairman of the Security Industry Association, provided some remarkable figures on concentration of ownership at a recent meeting of that brokers' organization:

"One of our largest banks," he said, "received over $1 billion in retirement and pension fund money to invest last year. It placed 65 per cent of that amount in just seven stocks, another 20 per cent into eight other stocks and the balance into less than 15 other issues."

While this may be exceptional behavior, it isn't unique. The assets of scores of institutions are concentrated in the same list of less than 50 stocks, while other, very worthwhile companies, are ignored.

These ignored companies now are highly distressed about the lack of interest in their shares, which have plummeted to the lowest price-earnings ratios — the number of times per-share earnings at which the stock sells — in many years.

For the first time in decades, some of them are seriously concerned about their ability to raise capital, or at least to raise it without incurring prohibitive costs. Some companies with "normal" P-E ratios of 12 to 18 are selling for 6 to 9.

So that is one reason: The concentration of investing power in a relative few produces extremes of price in some corporate issues and results in a vast number of other issues being all but forgotten.

But there is another aspect to this situation that some people might think represents poetic justice. It concerns the fact that on orders of more than $300,000 the rates are now negotiated rather than fixed, as they were a few years ago.

It results in this scenario, related by Whitehead:

"Broker: By the way, Mr. Institution, we think we should charge you 8 cents a share on the excess over $300,000.

"Institution: John, I only want to pay 4 cents. I never pay more than that.

"Broker: But, Mr. Institution, we had to position half the block ourselves, we got you a price only one-eighth below the last sale, and, if you'll remember, your original purchase of the stock was based on our research recommendation.

"Instituion: Well, I don't know about research. That's another department. But as I told you, John, 4 cents is all I'm going to pay. There are lots of others who will do it for that.

"Broker: Well, all right. But next time we've just got to do better. By the way, do you have any other blocks we can work on?"

Concluded Whitehead: "I say to you that this is not 'negotiation.' It is "dictation."

Others would call it rate competition. It didn't exist when the brokers were courting the institutional trade. Back then they agreed upon prices.

Heart Chapter leaders confer

Approximately 250 representatives and trustees of the Central Ohio Heart Chapter met recently at the Christopher Inn, Columbus, for their twenty-fifth annual session. Mrs. Benjamin Wood, of 554 Mayfair Dr., who recently became a resident here, attended as a representative of Clinton County, her former home.

A number of speakers gave informative lectures prior to the meeting of the board of trustees. The speakers included Miss Berit Brattnas of the Royal Swedish Consulate, New York; Mrs. Mary M. Winston, community program specialist, American Heart Association, N.Y.; Dr. Robert Kaplan, professor of health education at Ohio State University, Dr. Thomas F. Ferris, professor of medicine, Ohio State University and director of division of renal diseases, Ohio State University Hospital, and Dr. Monroe Cole, associate professor of neurology at Case Western Reserve University of Medicine, Cleveland.

Story teller masters her art in novels, books for children

By EVE SHARBUTT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Marijane Meaker tells stories for a living.

She uses several names and different styles, but the fortyish blonde author says she doesn't rely on gimmicks. She regards writing as a profession, just like bricklaying.

"I like to tell stories. I don't think about changing gears to different kinds of writing audiences," said the author of suspense thrillers, children's books and a favorably reviewed novel.

A native of upstate New York, Marijane always wanted to be a writer. She went to journalism school at the University of Missouri because "I always believed you had to earn your living." But she didn't pass economics, and switched her major to English. Then she came to New York to make her fortune and promptly lost, according to her count, nine jobs in a row.

"Then I sold my first pocket book. I write mysteries because that was the only thing that got reviewed in pocket book. And I didn't use my real name because Marijane was considered good for gothic romances, but not gutsy enough for mysteries," she said.

AS VIN PACKER, she wrote "why-done-its," not who-done-its. She analyzed famous cases.

"I could never do clues or blood and guts. Suspense is my field," she added.

Always a prolific writer, Marijane says it is hard to find new fields "in my old age." But she has written a non-fiction book on suicide.

"Businessmen, writers and artists commit suicide," she said, "But not musicians or sportsstars of renown. Then I started a novel about my home town, everyone does. Then finally I wrote "Shockproof Sidney Skate," a very today look at a young man with a homosexual parent.

"I thought kids raised by homosexuals were no more hung up than other kids. I believe homosexuality is usually a reaction against a very straight upbringing. I just don't think it matters."

"Shockproof" was favorably reviewed and is now on a soft cover best seller list.

MARIJANE is also the author of three successful children's books about contemporary living.

"I got involved in that because of dope addicts in the neighborhood. I felt victimized. And a woman close by was involved in rehabilitation work, although her own daughter had obesity problems and was getting fatter and fatter. It was putting out the fire in the house across the street, symptomatic of America," she said.

"I've always thought as a journalist. I write about the subleties of money and women. I've never written a good sex scene. I always steal from other writers. Other people are more talented in that area."

Marijane writes four hours a day, in the afternoon.

"I've always been disappointed that I couldn't get up in the morning but I've always been insomniac. I listen to all-night radio and then can't get up in the morning. And when I'm not writing, I read," she said, "just like the busman's holiday."

She reads everything from seed catalogues to novels to the suspense novels of Georges Simenon "because his one sentence paragraphs interest me.

"It's hard to find interesting novels, very hard. Someone once said all writers were alcoholics and hypochondriacs and perhaps it's so."

SHE SAID her conservative parents were upset about the language in her novel "Shockproof." "They hated it because they don't like dirty words," she said. "They don't mind violence in the mysteries."

Now that the author is pretty much a success in several fields, she only wants to write novels. "And I'm only just learning to write them," she added.

"We're so oversaturated with sex that I think the new area for writers to study is lifestyles. But I'll always add a bit of social awareness. I still think as a journalist, and I'll do what I want to do."

Storm nabs two state track titles

Blue Lion ace selected top Class AA trackster in Ohio

BY MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald Sports Editor

You know, of course, that all high school athletes live with their little fantasies. The ultimate dream of every schoolboy is to become a state champion.

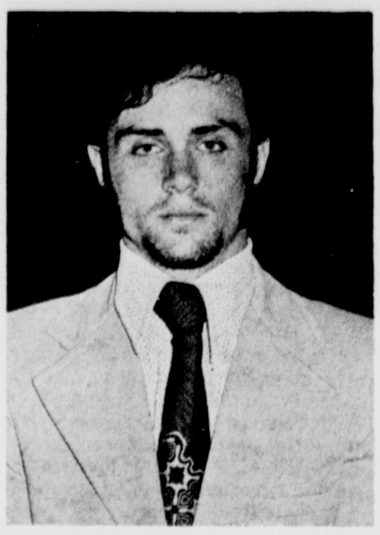

Brian Storm attained that elusive goal, and thus, became the greatest trackster in Washington C. H.'s history with an incredible performance in the 66th annual Ohio High School Athletic Association's state schoolboy track meet held Saturday afternoon at Ohio State University in Columbus.

Besides winning not one, but two individual state championships, Storm was named one of three outstanding individual performers in the state meet.

The Washington C. H.'s speedster captured titles in the 100 and 220-yard dashes to pace second-year coach John Armstrong's Blue Lion track team to a respectable fifth-place finish in the state.

Storm matched Ohio's Class AA 100-yard dash record with a sizzling 9.7 clocking to win that event. The senior whiz would have eclipsed the state record if he had not stumbled coming out of the starting blocks.

Despite the unfortunate start, Storm, who was five yards behind the pack at the 50-yard line, won the event in a record-matching time. He joins Eric Penick, of Gates Mills Gilmour, and Glen Harkrader, of Middletown Fenwick, in the state 100-yard dash record book. Both Penick and Harkrader ran the 100-yard dash in 9.7 during the 1971 state track meet.

BRIAN STORM

In winning the 100-yard dash, Storm defeated Larry Jackson, of Columbus Mifflin, the defending state 100-yard dash champion, a trackster Storm has had a personal rivalry with for two years. Dave Paul, of Brookville, was second in the 100-yard dash in 9.7 and Jackson was clocked at 9.9 along with three other performers.

Storm, a two-time South Central Ohio League track champ, was clocked at 22.3 in the 220-yard dash event, again topping both Paul and Jackson.

The two clockings turned in by Storm also shattered Washington C. H. school records, set by the Blue Lion star when he finished third a year ago in the state track meet.

The two victories earned Storm the most valuable Class AA state athlete award. Bob Hennings, of Cleveland Collinwood in Class AAA and Otis Jenkins, of Lorain Clearview, in Class A were also named outstanding individual performers by sportswriters.

Ironically, Hennings and Jenkins, like Storm, swept the 100 and 220-yard dash titles in their respective divisions.

On the basis of his brilliant performance, Storm received an invitation to participate in the annual Ohio Classic track meet which will be held at Mansfield Saturday. Storm will compete in the 100-yard dash at the Ohio Classic along with other top sprinters in the state. Only top Ohio high school coaches and athletes are invited to participate.

Washington C. H., behind Storm's outstanding performances, missed landing a fourth place state berth by only one point.

Brookville, a Montgomery County school near Dayton, captured its first Class AA championship with 33 points to 25 for second place Warren LaBrae. Louisville Aquinas, the pre-meet favorite in the Class AA realm, wound up third with 23 points. Blanchester was fourth with 21 points and then Washington C. H. (20), Warrensville Heights and Dayton Jefferson (18), Cadiz (17) and Circleville (16).

The fifth place finish sent Washington C. H. to its first win of the season over rival Circleville, the four-time South Central Ohio League track king.

Storm, who nabbed Class AA sectional and district titles this year as well as being named the Blue Lions' most valuable trackster, overshadowed the performances of three other SCOL spikers who participated in the state track meet.

Tom Frericks, Circleville's senior strongboy, was second in both the shot put and discus; Jim Buck, Hillsboro's distance ace, placed third in the 880-yard run and Tim Shumaker, of Wilmington, was fourth in the Class AAA shot put.

Cleveland Glenville won the Class AAA track title for the sixth time in the last nine seasons by rolling up 42 points to runnerup Cleveland Collinwood's 34.

Lorain Clearview, which finished second in the state meet last spring, moved up to first place in the Class A branch, scoring 45 points. Clearview's total foiled a bid by Marion Pleasant to become the first school to win three state titles in one school year. Pleasant, which had won the small school football playoffs and the state basketball tournament crown, finished second with 36 points.

Jenkins, who along with Storm and Hennings were the most valuable participants, set one of the seven meet records Saturday when he ran the 220 in 22.2 and also finished second in the long jump.

No records fell in Class AAA, despite warm, sunny weather in Ohio Stadium. Three other records were shattered in Class A and three more were wiped out in Class AA.

The Class AA marks went to Don Althouse, of Paulding, with 59-5 in the shot put) Steve James, of Cortland Lakeview, with 175-7 in the discus, and Blanchester's Bill McLaughlin, who ran the half mile in 1:53.2.

The Class A records belonged to Phil Trask of Columbus Grove, who ran the 440 in 48.8; Ron Dunfee of Stewart Federal Hocking, with a two-mile time of 9:29.6, and Skip Lakia of Fairport Harbor Harding and Larry Fortner of Lorain Clearview who cleared 6-6½ in the high jump. Lakia, however, was awarded first place because of fewer misses.

Mansfield Malabar finished third in Class AAA with 24 points followed by Canton McKinley 19, Middletown 18, Brecksville 16, Bay Village 14 and Sandusky 13.

Columbus Grove took third spot in Class A with 19 points, followed by Kirtland, Cleveland-Cuyahoga Heights and Cortland Maplewood 18 and Spencerville and Frankfort Adena of Ross County 16.

Wood notches 13th victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wilbur Wood pitched a sixhitter Monday night. In two games, that is, not one.

"Wilbur Wonderful" added a pair of victories to his imposing total with his latest work of art, 6-3 and 4-0 decisions over the befuddled Cleveland Indians.

The White Sox' Left Arm went five innings in the first game, continuation of a 16-inning suspended affair from Saturday night, and gave up two hits and one unearned run. He fired a four-hitter in the regulation game to bring his record to 13-3, the best by far in the majors.

Incidentally, his 13 victories are half the White Sox' total.

In the other American League games, the Minnesota Twins defeated the Baltimore Orioles 10-3; the California Angels beat the Milwaukee Brewers 7-4; the Detroit Tigers nipped the Oakland A's 4-3 and the Kansas City Royals turned back the Boston Red Sox 5-4. Rain postponed a contest between the New York Yankees and Texas Rangers.

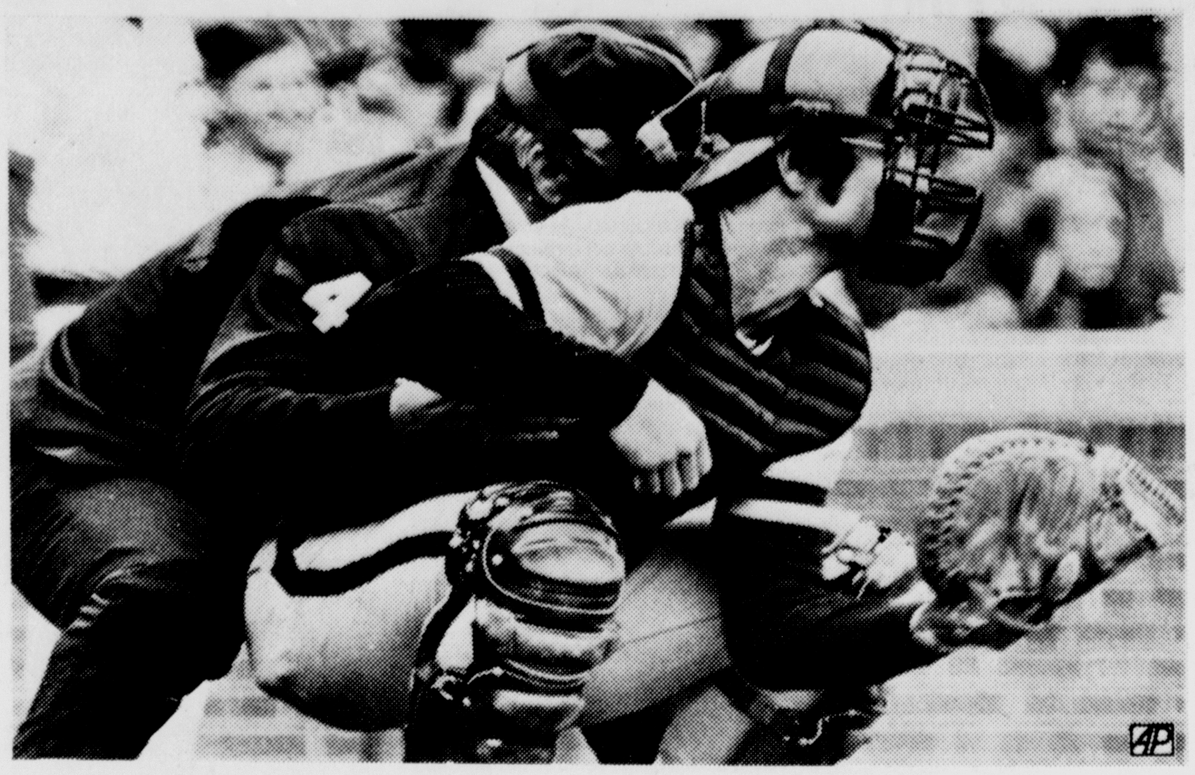

Jim Kaat, aided by a six-run third inning, scattered 12 hits in Minnesota's victory over Baltimore. The left-hander survived a shaky start and two homers by Bobby Grich to notch his sixth victory in eight decisions.

Steve Braun belted two bases-empty homers for the Twins, one in the fifth and another in the seventh. Also included in Minnesota's 12-hit attack was a two-run homer by George Mitterwald, a 435-foot shot into the right-field bullpen.

Harmon Killebrew's two-run triple highlighted Minnesota's game-breaking third inning.

Pinch-hitters Tom McCraw and Winton Illenas came off the bench to drive in runs in the seventh inning, rallying California over Milwaukee.

Norm Cash's two-run homer helped Detroit to a 4-0 lead and the Tigers held on to beat Oakland for Joe Coleman's ninth victory. Coleman hadn't given up a hit in the nationally televised game until a two-out double by Sal Bando.

Bourque slugs metric homer

Disputed hit cracks Cincy's 3-game skid

CINCINNATI (AP) — Stocky Pat Bourque got baseball's first metric home run Monday, but the Cincinnati Reds got the break—by inches—to end a three-game skid against the Chicago Cubs.

The slump-ridden Reds scored the disputed run in a 6-5 victory in the ninth inning when Joe Morgan laced a drive off the glove of a lunging Bourque at first base.

"That ball was six inches foul when it hit next to the bag," protested Bourque, "and it was two feet foul by the time it got to me."

Earlier the 220-pound Bourque slammed a drive over the right field fence at 330 feet or 100.58 meters. It was the first home run since Cincinnati officials announced Saturday they were introducing the metric system to baseball.

"What's the big deal about a metric homer," asked the 26- year-old Worcester, Mass., native. "Maybe it's big here in Cincinnati, but it doesn't mean that much to me."

It was the second major league homer for the Cubs' second-year player.

Morgan's game-winning single sparked rage from Cub players and coaches who stormed around umpire Augie Donatelli to argue the call.

"I almost didn't dive for it because I knew it was going foul," said Bourque. "I was just going to let it go."

But Morgan disagreed.

"I guarantee the films will show it was fair," said Morgan.

The ball bounced off Bourque's glove and when he stumbled while retrieving it in foul territory, Darrel Chaney raced home from second with the winning run that snapped the Reds' longest losing streak of the season.

The Cubs had won the first three games of the series, including a pair of back-to-back shutouts.

"The way we've been scoring runs," said Morgan, "we better get 'em any way we can."

A first-inning run on Johnny Bench's sacrifice fly ended a string of 19 scoreless innings for the Reds.

Chicago's Billy Williams hit a solo homer for the Cubs in the fifth—his sixth of the year—to give the Cubs a 5-4 lead. But the Reds tied it when second baseman Glen Beckert bobbled a grounder, allowing a runner to score from second.

San Diego move awaits NL okay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joseph Danzansky, the supermarket president, could barely constrain his enthusiasm Monday over the San Diego Padres becoming a Washington-based team. It most likely will be next season though remotely possible this season after the All-Star Game.

Danzansky, who headed the three-man group that purchased the baseball club for $12 million, told newsmen they shouldn't go overboard just yet because he said, the National League hierarchy hasn't approved the deal.

"It's not quite a celebration," Danzansky told a hastily called news conference. "That's why there are only bloody marys in stead of champagne. This is more of a prayer meeting."

DANZANSKY, who has been trying to obtain a team for the nation's capital for two years, said the sale was consumated May 5 in San Diego when he signed a three-page contract.

The deal called for a deposit, believed to be $100,000; adequate financing; stadium lease and National League approval, all to come within 45 days from the contract signing date, or by June 19.

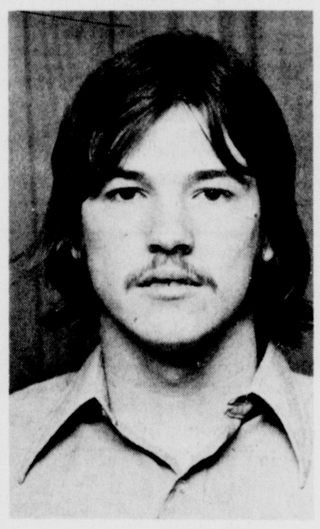

He said his group met with the Armory Board, which runs RFK Stadium, and worked out a 12-year contract calling for basically, 10 cents per head up to 1 million customers and 30 cents a head over that.

The club also will take the concession receipts for the entire 12 months except that it will pay the Armory Board 33 1-3 per cent for events other than baseball, including the Washington Redskin football games.

The last obstacle, Danzansky said, was approval by the National League, which must be unanimous vote by the owners.

Danzansky said he had asked Padres' president E.J. "Buzzie" Bavasi and his son, Peter, to join the club in Washington to "run the team on the field. They're young and they're developing. If Buzzie decides to come, the playing field is his responsibility. We'll stay out of it."

He said he would like to see the Padres move to Washington this season, if the National League would approve, but admitted chances are quite slim on that happening.

DAVE DeWEESE

DeWeese earns second letter

ADA — Dave DeWeese, a former Washington C.H. Blue Lion and South Central Ohio League track whiz, received his second varsity letter this spring as a member of Ohio Northern University's track team.

DeWeese, a sophomore pole vaulter who set Washington C.H. and SCOL records two years ago, collected 29 team points. He was one of only three Polar Bear tracksters to qualify for the Ohio Conference track championships.

The Ohio Northern pole vault ace is the son of Mr. George DeWeese, 312 Western Ave.

Ohio Northern finished eleventh in the Ohio Conference meet and ended the spring campaign with a 3-3 dual record.

Dayton's Salt Walther critically hurt

Crash, rain delay Indy 500

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The 57th running of the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race was rescheduled for today with the pall of a fiery, wrenching crash and an ensuing torrential downpour still hanging over the ancient Speedway.

The crash came on the main straightaway only seconds after the lead cars of the 33-car field had started the rain-delayed race. It stunned the immense crowd of more than 300,000 persons who had waited for four hours.

The race was rescheduled for 10 a.m., EDT. The National Weather Service predicted a 30 per cent chance of showers.

One driver, David "Salt" Walther, 25, of Dayton, Ohio, was hospitalized by injuries received in the accident, as were nine spectators. Walther was listed in critical condition with burns on 40 per cent of his body, a broken left wrist and a possible back injury.

Dr. Thomas Hanna, head of the Speedway medical staff and in charge of the infield hospital, said most of the injured spectators suffered burns.

Drivers Mike Hiss and John Martin received minor injuries and were expected to be in the field today if their cars could be repaired in time.

Crews of the cars damaged in the wreck—which involved nine vehicles—and Speedway repair crews worked throughout the night to get both the cars and the track ready for the race.

Walther's car rammed into the wall, turned upside down and exploded into flames. The crash sent a shower of debris that dented several other cars and flew into the front rows of the crowd only about 20 feet from the track.

The crash sheared off two steel poles supporting a cable and wire mesh fence above the wall, but the cables kept the cars and bigger pieces of wreckage from going into the grandstand.

Only Walther's McLaren was ruled out of the race.

Martin and Hiss both said they felt their crews would have their Eagle automobiles ready to go. Lee Kunzman's Eagle was questionable since it sustained heavy damage, but the crew insisted it would be ready.

The race was scheduled to be a total restart, with rows of three where possible, and drivers moving up to fill the empty spaces.

There were four showers, the final one only 20 minutes after the crash.

The front row—polesitter Johnny Rutherford and former champions Bobby Unser and Mark Donohue—was not involved in the accident, nor were three other former champions, three-time winner A.J. Foyt, Mario Andretti and Al Unser.

Indy's lack of roll cages annoys Gary Bettenhausen

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — "How much longer are we going to let this go on?" fumed Gary Bettenhausen, probing the wreckage of David "Salt" Walther's 77 McLaren-Offy in the Speedway's Gasoline Alley.

"We'll keep on having serious injuries and deaths until we put roll cages on these cars. I've been fighting for them for a long time. The drivers are 90 per cent in favor of them. Still nothing is done.

"Look how many deaths we've had from cars that land upside down. I'm one of the few guys to walk away from such a wreck. But the guys are just too proud or something to go for the cages."

The 25-year-old Walther was the chief casualty in a nine-car accident Monday on the first lap of the rain-delayed—and ultimately postponed—Indianapolis 500.

His car hit the outside wall, severed two support poles, flipped over, spun and burst into flames before the startled eyes of spectators in the main grandstand.

The driver was pulled from the burning machine and flown by helicopter to nearby Methodist Hospital. He was reported in stable but serious condition from burns on 40 per cent of his body and a broken left wrist.

An hour after the flaming crash, after most of the 350,000 spectators had begun streaming out of the massive complex to await Tuesday's second try at the race, Walther's garage on the north end of the alley was as grim as a wake.

Inside, in a funeral atmosphere, a concerned Bettenhausen, whose own father had crashed and died on the old brick and concrete oval, and Walther's chief mechanic, Tom Smith, probed the wreckage of "No. 77" with the care of a surgeon.

Roll cages—the need for them—were an integral part of Bettenhausen's analysis. The Indy type cars have a high headrest, which partly protects the driver, but not cages, bars built a foot or so high around the driver's seat.

"They are compulsory now on sprint cars and midget cars, every kind of car except these," Bettenhausen said. "I remember one year six men were killed in sprint races when their cars turned over. Since the cages were installed, I know of only two."

Art Pollard, killed in a practice spin prior to this year's time trials, was in a similar accident. Bettenhausen had his car turn eight flips before landing upside down in 1969 at Milwaukee.

"I was just lucky," he said.

"Later I told one of the drivers that we should have protective cages, and he just laughed at me. I felt like knocking his teeth in."

CHAMPION WRIST WRESTLER — Jill Edwards, 18-year-old from Seattle, went from novice to world champion in seven flicks of an "uneducated" wrist. The blonde bookkeeper said, "It's really kind of a gas" after she won the women's world wrist wrestling championship last weekend in Petaluma, Calif.

Junior champ track meet set Saturday

The annual junior champ track meet, sponsored by the Washington C. H. Jaycees, will be held Saturday at Gardner Park Stadium.

Don Gibbs, who is serving as chairman of the Jaycees annual project, said the track meet is open to all youngsters in Fayette County ages 9-16 for competition in four divisions.

Registration will start at 8:30 a.m. Saturday at Gardner Park with the meet immediately following. Gibbs said there will be no pre-registration this year as in past years.

AWARDS WILL be presented to the top three youngsters in each event of the four divisions of competition. The divisions are pee-wee (9-10), junior (11-12), prep (13-14) and intermediate (15-16). The intermediate division is for boys only.

Boys and girls will compete in the 50 and 100-yard dashes, running and standing broad jump and baseball throw in the pee-wee division. The boys will compete in the 50, 100 and 220-yard dashes, running broad jump, softball throw and high jump in the junior division. The girls will compete in the same events, with the exception of the 220-yard dash.

In the prep division, the events are the 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes, broad jump, high jump and shot put. The girls will have a softball throw and will not compete in the 440-yard dash. The intermediate division, for boys only, will have the 100, 220, 440 and 880-yard dashes, broad jump, high jump and shot put.

Messersmith matches mark

For it's 1...2...3 strikes you're out at the old ball game.

At least, that's the way it always was until Andy Messersmith and Joe Ferguson of the Los Angeles Dodgers decided to play a different tune Monday night.

Messersmith became the first pitcher in modern national league history to fan the first six batters at the start of a game, and matched the major league standard as he pitched the first inning of the Dodgers' 5-1 victory over the Phillies.

In the second inning, the only trouble was that Messersmith was playing fast ball and catcher Ferguson was playing passed ball.

Greg Luzinski struck out but reached first when the third strike got away from Ferguson. Bill Robinson and Mike Schmidt also fanned. Then Luzinski took second on another passed ball before Bob Boone broke the strikeout string with an outfield fly.

Messersmith, who finished with 12 strikeouts, picked up No. 7 by getting Unser again in the third...and again the pitch escaped Ferguson for another passed ball...and again a batter struck out only to wind up on first base.

Elsewhere, the San Francisco Giants held off the New York Mets 6-5, the Cincinnati Reds nipped the Chicago Cubs 6-5, the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Houston Astros 4-2, the St. Louis Cardinals edged the Atlanta Braves 3-2 and the Montreal Expos knocked off the San Diego-Washington Lame Ducks 7-6 on Clyde Mashore's three-run pinch homer with two out in the ninth inning.

Bobby Bonds belted a home run on the first pitch thrown by rookie Tommy Moore and added a run-scoring single when the Giants scored four times in the second en route to their victory over the Mets.

Juan Marichal boosted his lifetime record against New York to 26-5. He lost his shutout bid on John Milner's two-run homer in the sixth.

Joe Morgan singled home the winning run with one out in the ninth inning, providing the Reds with a comeback 6-5 victory over the Cubs.

Dock Ellis, with help from three relievers, halted his personal five-game losing streak in the Pirates' victory over Houston.

Rick Wise drove in what proved to be the winning run and pitched the Cardinals over the Braves with ninth-inning relief help.

Mashore's game-winning blow for Montreal followed two-out singles by Hal Breeden and John Boccabella and made him the 18th player in major league history to hit two consecutive pinch homers.

Rain clogs holiday golf action at WCC

Rain hampered golfers at the Washington Country Club over the Memorial Day weekend.

The two-man team best ball event was rained out Sunday. Club pro Tony Capuana said the event has been rescheduled for June 3 and interested golfers may register at the pro shop.

Rain also forced postponement of the Memorial Day mixed scotch twosome event. The mixed scotch twosome has been rescheduled for June 10.

GARY SHAFFER fired an actual score of 72 to ser the pace for the annual five-man team best ball event held Monday at Washington Country Club.

The quintet, led by Shaffer, fired a remarkable 17-under-par score of 55 on the wet Country Club links. Other members of the winning team and their scores were John Wylie 90, Carl Elberfeld 86, Walter Rettig 100, and Dave Ellis, 98.

Allen Willoughby swatted a 74 and Birch Rice carded a 76.

Jeri Vo victorious in Scioto Downs race

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Jeri Vo was the feature winner by a nose Monday night at Scioto Downs, pacing the mile in 2:09 4-5.

The winner paid $8.80, $5.20 and $3, while Adios Can, who placed, returned $5.20 and $2.80. Show Philander, who showed, paid $2.40.

The 7-2 daily double of Mystery Trip and Lakewood Bud was worth $725.80.

The attendance was 6,101; handle $292,688.

Dixie Donna wins River Downs race

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A crowd of 10,096 watched Monday as Dixie Donna, a 15-1 longshot, won the 7½-furlong Memorial Day Handicap at River Downs.

The winner returned $32.80, $12.20 and $6.20. She was timed in 1:41 1-5.

Willie Sue paid $39 and $8.80. The show horse was Babington's Image at $4.

Purple Loom and Pet Bullet, 4-8, returned $126 in the daily double.

Handle from the season-high crowd was $734,905.

UC player charged

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Two University of Cincinnati football players from Kansas appeared in Hamilton County Criminal Court Monday on charges of possession of marijuana.

Alan Nation, 20, and Ronald Sorenson, 21, had their cases continued until June 11 by Judge Paul George.

Nicklaus easy Atlanta golf classic victor

ATLANTA (AP) — For more than a decade, Jack Nicklaus has been getting ahead of everyone else in professional golf. Now, it seems, he is even getting ahead of himself.

He's well ahead of the pace he established last year when he won seven titles—the most of his career in a single season—accumulated a record $320,542, and won Player of the Year honors.

And he's far ahead of his own timetable of preparations for defense of his U.S. Open Championship at Oakmont, Pa., June 14-17, his next big goal of the season.

"I'm really surprised I played this well," Nicklaus said after a front-running victory in the Atlanta Golf Classic last weekend, a triumph that was so easy the rest of the field admittedly was playing for second place, and runner-up Tom Weiskopf suggested Nicklaus should give the other pros some handicap strokes.

He once led by as many as nine strokes, and finished with a 272 total, a record 16-underpar on the tough, hilly Atlanta Country Club course.

His victory was worth $30,000 from the total purse of $150,000 and enabled him to regain his customary spot atop the season's money winning list with $176,064. Idle Bruce Crampton dropped back to second with $167,551.

In winning a record-tying 13 major championships and 48 American tour titles, Nicklaus has followed a program of rigid discipline in his scheduling, a program built around and aimed toward the major titles— the Masters, U.S. and British Opens and the PGA.

Learn To Drive This Summer

Without spending all of your valuable time.

A driver education course taught in a public school during the summer must last a minimum of four weeks. The Maximum time is often six to eight weeks.

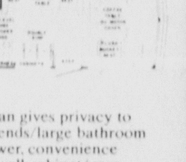

A commercial driving school has no time regulation on the length of the course. An average teenager can often complete the course of study in two weeks and the in-car instruction can be scheduled at the student's convenience.

Cigarette habits going up in smoke?

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Cigarette smoking is going underground although it may be less harrassing to try to kick the habit than to find places where one can smoke in private.

So says Jacquelyn Rogers of Phillipsburg, N. J., a heavy smoker for 22 years, who is helping other smokers to resist cigarettes using a program she had devised for herself.

The California legislature, for example, is considering a "1973 Nonsmokers' Bill of Rights" that would establish nonsmoking areas in public buildings.

"Smoking became a cultural thing and it has come full circle — it is no longer considered nice to smoke. Many people, especially intellectuals, are going to great pains to conceal their identity with cigarettes — even hiding them in other people's desks," Mrs. Rogers learned in conducting her seminars for Smokenders, the organization founded five years ago by her and her husband Jon, a dentist.

HOUSEWIVES often are heavy smokers because they are more successful in squeezing in smoking time at home, and they are likely to find it harder to give up than most smokers, she explained.

Mrs. Rogers has worked with more than 1,800 people and she has given additional training to students who have helped another 6,000 in seminars conducted in the Northeast, although now they are expanding to other states and a chapter has been formed in Arizona.

"Smoking is more than a nasty little habit," she remarked. "A number of students say they continued after several heart attacks and warnings by doctors. They simply couldn't stop. Involvement may be physiological, psychological, automatic and social. But it can be dealt with . . ."

A significant test for cut-off potential that might be tried at home is this one: Go 5 or 10 minutes without the usual cigarette and coping with the delayed action may put you on the road to ending the habit.

"But one shouldn't feel sorry for herself eyeing cigarettes and watching the clock during the time the urge is being delayed. Self-pity should do something — play with the dog, play a record, clean out a drawer . . ."

A YOUTHFUL-LOOKING, earnest mother of four, Mrs. Rogers is sympathetic to the pangs suffered by her students. She had tried every method of quitting cigarettes including psychiatry and hypnosis.

She wasn't even fazed by the laboratory horror pictures of the lungs and digestive system brought home by her husband, she says. But when her children were teenagers — three are now in college, and one is 12 — she began researching every available book and pamphlet on the subject.

Opening lead - king of clubs.

Bridge is often a struggle between good luck and good play. To win when suits break favorably and finesses succeed is no great accomplishment, but to win when suits break unfavorably — or finesses lose — is clearly a mark of good management.

Consider this deal where South got to six hearts with a minimum of formality. He reasoned that partner — having jumped to three hearts — had the equivalent of an opening bid in support of hearts, and he consequently knew that his own 19 high-card points would give him a good shot at the slam.

West led the king of clubs and the contract appeared to depend solely on finding the missing diamonds divided 3-2. In that case the only loser would be a diamond.

But after winning the club with the ace, drawing two rounds of trumps and cashing the A-K of diamonds, declarer discovered to his horror that the diamonds were divided 4-1 and that he would evidently have to lose two diamond tricks and go down one.

But South did not throw in the sponge prematurely. He saw that he had a perfectly legitimate chance for the slam, and he adjusted his play so as to overcome the poor diamond division.

He ruffed a club in dummy, cashed the A-K of spades, and ruffed dummy's last spade. He then led the ten of clubs and permitted West to win the trick with the queen, at the same time discarding a diamond from dummy.

West was now in bad shape. He had to return a spade or a club, and, in either case, South would discard dummy's last diamond as he ruffed the return in his hand. As a result, South's only loser proved to be a club — so he brought home the slam despite the diamond division.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Hoarseness Can Be Dangerous

I am a 13-year-old boy. For the past seven months I have been almost constantly hoarse.

I have attributed this to voice change, but now I am beginning to worry.

Is such prolonged hoarseness normal? Thank you.

A.S., Ohio

Dear A.:

My immediate reaction to your letter was admiration for the excellent way you have presented your problem.

Your mature judgment in seeking advice by letter is in conflict, however, with the fact that you and your parents have taken such a long time to find out the cause of your persistent hoarseness.

About the age of 13 the voice register of boys begins to change, but this should not be associated with hoarseness.

The larynx, or voice box, contains the two vocal cords with which we make sounds. These vocal cords come together when we speak or sing. They separate when we breathe.

Anything that interferes with the vocal cords as they vibrate against each other will produce hoarseness.

An ear, nose and throat specialist is particularly equipped to examine the vocal cords and quickly determine if any problem exists.

Most general doctors perform this examination, but usually choose to refer their patients to a throat specialist.

My own experience in cases such as yours is that vocal abuse due to the exuberance of youth is the most likely reason for continued hoarseness.

The yelling, the screaming at football, basketball and other games are responsible in most instances for swelling of the delicate lining of the vocal cords.

The spring and summer months are often accompanied by "Little League laryngitis," the aftermath of overenthusiastic cheering for one's team.

If no other cause for your hoarseness is found, rest your vocal cords as much as possible. Don't shout.

One more bit of advice. Some people falsely believe that whispering during periods of hoarseness spares their voice. This is a mistake, because whispering can actually put more strain on the vocal cords than well-modulated, controlled low speech.

While we're on the subject of laryngitis, let me tell my adult readers that there are many other causes besides vocal abuse.

A good rule of safety is that hoarseness that persists for more than a few weeks should be carefully investigated.

In Focus

by Charlie Pensyl

In the area of single lens reflex photography this business of through-the-lens metering is the subject for more confusion and misrepresentation than the Watergate soap-opera. First off we have the mis-named Spotmatic system in which the entire area, corner to corner and edge to edge, is measured thus giving a good all-over exposure idea. To me, this is the most sound system for the lensman who wants good all-over exposure. From there the intelligent photographer can fudge either over or under as he deems proper.

Leicaflex then comes along and measures the light only in the area of the little circle in the center of the viewfinder. A spot reading. In the hands of a pro, a lensman with plenty of savy, this sytem is far the most accurate since the photographer can take the reading off the face of the subject, or from the area within the picture which is the most important. However, in the hands of the tyro this system could lead to some poor exposures if the center spot was in an area which was not representative, exposure-wise. From the standpoint of sound photographic engineering these two systems are by far the best, each with its own areas of superiority.

From here the story gets ridiculous. There is the "Center-Weighted" system. This system assumes that the cameraman always places the subject in the center of the picture, and if you've ever attended CKFN you know that that's contrary to the laws of composition. O, yes, there's also the CLC system. This system uses two sensors reading top and bottom portions of the picture. It assumes we always take horizontal pix and always shoot landscapes where the sky is at the top edge. How about that? And there are several others just as ridiculous. Want further info? Come in.

Five persons hurt in area accidents

Heavy Memorial Day weekend traffic resulted in only nine traffic accidents in the city-county area, police and sheriff's departments reported.

Five persons were injured in the mishaps, four in one crash, and three drivers were cited for traffic law infractions.

Four Greenfield area residents were injured in a single car creash on Greenfield-Sabina Road, just north of the Fayette-Highland County line, Monday afternoon.

Sheriff's deputies said Mary R. Loaman, 51, RFD, Greenfield, was admitted to Greenfield Hospital with a fractured pelvis following the crash. The driver of the car, Robert L. Lowman, 17, and two other passengers all suffered minor bumps and bruises.

Officers said Lowman's car was northbound and failed to negotiate a sharp curve. The 1962 model car ran off the left side hitting a utility pole and tearing down four rods of fence on the James H. York farm.

Sheriff's deputies cited Lowman for reckless operation and driving with no operator's license. His car was moderately damaged.

POLICE CHARGED Emma M. Adams, 19, of 1031 Columbus Ave., with reckless operation following a single car crash near the Market-Delaware intersection Sunday afternoon.

Miss Adams suffered minor contusions and abrasions in the 4:47 p.m. mishap and was treated at Memorial Hospital.

According to police she was westbound on Market and attempted to turn right on Delaware. The car failed to complete the turn and rammed a tree in the yard of the Harold Hyer home, 632 E. Market St. The 1966 model car was extensively damaged.

OTHER accidents were:

POLICE

SATURDAY, 9:15 p.m. — Cars driven by Carolyn D. Junk, 51, Rt. 5, and Charles P. Bellar, 58, of 1147 Campbell St., collided on the Hidy Foods lot; damage minor.

MONDAY, 4:50 p.m. — Cars driven by Leroy J. Kettler, 62, Columbus, and Harry F. Lindsley, 68, Columbus were involved in a front-to-rear collision at the intersection of Court and Main streets; damage minor.

MONDAY, 9:50 p.m. — A semi-rig driven by Daniel N. Sheers, 27, Elizabeth, W. Va., bumped a sign post on the Borden Burger lot while making a delivery; damage slight.

SHERIFF

SUNDAY, 11:50 a.m. — Richard L. Augustus, 28, Springfield, was cited for failure to maintain assured clear distance after his car collided with the rear of another driven by Dianiah L. Brown, 26, Jeffersonville. The mishap occurred on Ohio 41-south of Carr Road; damage moderate.

SUNDAY, 5:55 p.m. — Cars driven by Margaret P. Clark, 38, Columbus, and Pearl E. Wright, 54, Mount Sterling, were involved in a collision on CCC Highway-E and Cook-Yankeetown Road; damage moderate.

MONDAY, 3 p.m. — Cars driven by Michael E. Davis, 19, Milledgeville, and Margaret Jackson, 40, Milledgeville, collided in Milledgeville; damage minor.

Mount Sterling stock dealer faces charges

MOUNT STERLING — John E. Ralston, of Mount Sterling, has been charged with violating accounting, record-keeping and fair trade practice requirements of the Packers and Stockyards Act, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Ralston is registered as a livestock dealer. He purchases feeder cattle in Southern Ohio, western West Virginia and Northern Kentucky, and resells to farmer feedlot operators in South-Central Ohio, according to the USDA.

USDA's Packers and Stockyards Administration charged in an administrative complaint that from May through July, 1972, Ralston:

— Billed and collected from farmer customers on the basis of false and incorrect weights in six different transactions.

— Issued acccountings to farmer customers on the invoice forms of a West Virginia market agency which were false and incorrect, in that the market agency had not made and issued the invoices; most of the weights and prices shown on the invoices exceeded the weights and prices at which the cattle had been sold to Ralston, and most of the purchases had not been made from the market agency shown on the invoice.

— Failed to maintain accounts and records sufficient to fully and correctly disclose all transactions involved in his dealer business.

Filing of the complaint does not prove that Ralston has violated the P&S Action, the USDA points out. He has a right to a hearing to determine whether the evidence supports the charges. If the charges are proved, he could be placed under a cease and desist order and his registration could be temporarily suspended.

Livestock dealers are prohibited — under the P&S Act — from engaging in any unfair or deceptive practices in the marketing of livestock.

The record in this case is open to the public. Copies of the complaint, P&S Docket 4798, may be obtained from the Information Officer, Packers and Stockyards Administration, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Damage reported in pair of fires

Jeffersonville firemen fought a blaze at the Robert Merriman home, Upper Jamestown Rd., Saturday night. Firemen said the furniture in the house apparently had caught fire while Merriman was asleep. He escaped without injury.

The home was heavily damaged.

Damage was estimated at $25 to the wiring on a 1964 model dump truck that caught fire Monday at the intersection of Walnut and Market streets. City firemen said Frank Elzey, driver for Cartwright Hauling, doused the flames with an extinguisher.

The blaze was blamed on a short in the ignition wiring.

Road, street crews slate spring chores

City, county and state crews will spend the week mowing and doing general spring maintenance chores.

County Engineer Charles P. Wagner said crews will be working on Railroad Street in Jeffersonville, and will be working on a culvert and a drainage project on Zimmerman Road as well as on a drainage project on Bloomingburg-New Holland Road at Knight Road. Workmen will also be spray-patching county highways throughout the county, in addition to mowing weeds.

Gene Fitzpatric, superintendent of the Ohio Highway Department in Washington C.H., said six mowers will be in operation and crews will be trimming along guard rails throughout the county. State crews also will be working on berms on Ohio 41, between Jeffersonville and Washington C.H., and will be widening an S-curve on Ohio 729, north of Jeffersonville. Work also is scheduled on the four-lane section of U.S. 35 at the I-71 interchange.

Bill Duncan, acting superintendent of the city's Service Department, said crews will be mowing, painting curbs in the downtown area and cleaning catch basins.

Find 2 youths in Ross County

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — Two boys who were the objects of a nine-hour search in Tar Hollow State Forest by scores of sheriff's deputies and volunteers were found unharmed Monday.

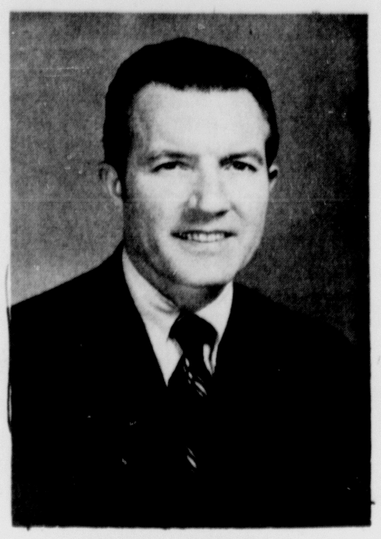

The boys, Fred Fuller, 13, and Rob Seagraves, 10, both of Columbus, became lost when they hiked away from their parents' campsite Sunday afternoon.

The Ross County sheriff's office said the boys slept in a lean-to they made of boards, limbs and leaves and then walked out of the woods to a farm home Monday morning.

JACK I. CRISWELL

Bell executive to speak at C. of C. event

Jack I. Criswell, general community relations manager for the Ohio Bell Telephone Co., will be the speaker at the annual meeting of the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce to be held June 5 in the Mahan Building.

The event will begin with a social hour at 6 p.m. and dinner at 7 p.m.

Bill pool, attendance chairman, has announced that the reservation deadline has been extended to 4 p.m. Friday. The meeting is open to the public, and ticket arrangements may be made at the Chamber office.

Jerry R. Sheppard, outgoing president, will present a review of the past year's activities. Incoming and outgoing directors will be recognized, and the 1973-74 program of work will be announced by President-elect Fred Domenico.

The guest list for the annual meeting includes Dr. and Mrs. Kwok-Kuen Wong, representatives of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce and the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development.

CRISWELL began his Bell System career as a salesman in 1946. In 1950, he accepted a position as staff representative with the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. in New York, and returned to Ohio Bell in 1954.

In 1965, he assumed the responsibility for establishing an economic development program for Ohio Bell, and was named general community relations manager in 1968. He is responsible for the direction of Ohio Bell community relations and urban affairs activities.

Criswell served on the Council for the Reorganization of Ohio State Government, better known as the "Little Hoover Commission," and is a member of the Ohio Economic Development Council.

176 WSHS seniors receive diplomas at indoor ceremony

A rainy holiday weekend dampened the spirits of those who didn't travel out of state, but in spite of the weather, the Class of 1973 at Washington Senior High School had cause to rejoice when their high school careers came to a close Sunday afternoon.

Forced indoors by Mother Nature, 176 seniors received diplomas at the baccalaureate - commencement exercises, attended by an estimated 1,400 persons. Superintendent Edwin M. Nestor made the presentation of diplomas after Thomas K. Rankin, assistant principal, had announced the recipients of scholarships and financial grants.

Valedictorian Allan Burrall and Class President Victor Aleshire addressed the seniors and guests, and music was provided by the Washington Senior Band. The baccalaureate service was conducted by the Rev. Charles Williams, of the Church of Christ in Christian Union, and the Rev. E. E. Burrall, of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church.

THE FOLLOWING seniors received scholarship awards: Pattie and Peggy Anderson, scholarship and grants from Ohio University; Alan Burrall, scholarship and grants from Wittenberg University, Outstanding Scholar award from Rotary, and Thomas G. Wood Memorial Grant; Sandra Cardiff, Business and Professional Woman's Club scholarship; Mike Domenico, scholarship from Miami University, Outstanding Athlete award from Rotary, "I Dare You Award," and county and district Leadership winner of Benevolent and Protective Order of the Elks No. 29; Albert Donahue, Washington Basketball Boosters Club scholarship; Jeanne Gad, Fayette Federation of Child Conservation League; Dennis Garrison, Fayette County Auto Dealers Association scholarship; Steven Hill, Armco scholarship, Rotary Service Above Self award, and South Side Church of Christ scholarship;

Melanie Hargo, Ohio State School of Cosmetology scholarship; Robin Henkle, Fayette County Tuberculosis Association scholarship; Michael Hughes, grant from Miami University; Randall Johnson, Kiwanis International scholarship; Patricia Jordin, Fayette County School of Practical Nursing scholarship; Colleen Langen, Ladies of St. Colman Catholic Church scholarship; Cynthia Lee, Kiwanis International scholarship;

Warren Lemke, Ellett Kaufman Memorial scholarship; Michael Melvin, Clarence A. Christman Jr., scholarship; Cynthia Mustine, I Dare You Award, and county Leadership award from the Benevolent and Protective Order of the Elks No. 29; Robert Osborne, Jesse Eyman Memorial scholarship; Michael Oyer, Washington Football Boosters Club scholarship; Sharon Robinett, the Stella Doster Hendryx Memorial scholarship; Deborah Rundblad, Senior Y-Teens scholarship; Christopher Shaper, Gerstner-Kinzer Funeral Home scholarship; Julie Shoemaker, Alpha Delta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma scholarship, and City Teachers Association scholarship; Kevin Smith, scholarship and grants from Otterbein College; Patricia Smith, Lions International scholarship; John Tatman, scholarship and grants from Earlham College; Ellen Upp, City Teachers Association scholarship, and Jodie Whittington, Fayette Grange No. 2675 scholarship.

School session in closing days

The restless days that end the school year are at hand for local students.

Thursday will be the last day of school for Miami Trace schools, city schools will close the year Friday afternoon.

These last days of school are especially important for high school students, who will be taking their final exams this week. Sophomores and juniors at Miami Trace will conclude their exams Wednesday before having an awards assembly on Thursday. Washington Senior High School will have final exams on Thursday and Friday.

On Tuesday, June 5, school bus service will be provided to take students to Washington Senior High to pick up their grade cards in their homerooms at 1:15 p.m.

Students at Miami Trace High School will be able to pick up their grades at the school office Monday through Wednesday of next week. Those who do not do so will receive their grade cards by mail.

Orphaned children return home buoyed by donations

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The four Baker children, stranded and orphaned here since the death of their father Thursday, say they'll return home to Hamilton, Ohio, Friday—thanks to Memorial Day kindness of their neighbors.

"We've got enough to go back now," said 14-year-old Marie in an interview Monday. "They've been sending money orders, checks and cash. One woman even sent $700."

The children's plight began when their father died, leaving them living in a cramped, rundown apartment. Their father's last request was to be buried beside his wife in his hometown of Hamilton, but the children had no money.

Local newspapers told their story and Marie, says enough funds have come in for her and her brothers—Bruce, 11; Mike, 10; and Dennis, 7—to return to relatives in Ohio.

"Our dad's body will be going back with us," said Marie. "He'll be buried in Greenwood Cemetery in Hamilton."

In addition to about 100 pledges of monetary contributions, three San Francisco funeral homes volunteered their services. The Comisky-Roche Funeral Home has arranged to ship the father's body.

James Schnake, an attorney from nearby Oakland, has volunteered to set up a trust for the overflow in contributions. "It seemed like somebody ought to do something," Schnake said.

The children's mother died a year ago.

They have an uncle in Hamilton.

Waste disposal topic at County Board meeting

Fayette County commissioners met Tuesday with Dr. William E. Covert, health commissioner, and Charles Funk, sanitarian, to discuss preliminary plans for a six-county solid waste disposal system.

The multi-county system, according to commissioners, is in the early planning stages and probably will not become a reality for another three years. Fayette County commissioners have expressed an interest in the plan.

The commissioners also met with a representative of an insurance company to discuss the county employes' medical and hospitalization insurance program.

The county dog warden reported that 26 complaints were investigated during the past week.

Object thrown from car injures Jeff boy, 16

JEFFERSONVILLE — An object thrown from a passing car injured a 16-year-old Jeffersonville youth walking on Main Street in the village Saturday night.

Sheriff's deputies said Sherman K. Strikott, Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, suffered a broken nose, a chipped tooth and face lacerations. He was treated at Memorial Hospital and later released.

Strikott told officers he was walking north on Main Street when someone threw something from a passing car.

Zoo uses films to spur births

LONDON (AP)—London's Chessington Zoo says it showed a movie of chimpanzees kissing and cuddling to a chimp named Cressida and she was "overcome with passion."

"Apes seem to respond in much the same way as humans to sex shows," said zoo official Andy Bowen after the experiment with a television documentary made four years ago by the British Broadcasting Corp.

Bowen said the zoo plans to show its chimps "more explicit" monkey movies and "we hope to have the patter of tiny chimpanzee feet here very soon."

Weekend law enforcement activity

Body of area man, missing since March 31, discovered

The badly decomposed body of a Mount Sterling area man, was discovered by three fishermen along Deer Creek, north of Cook-Yankeetown Road, Saturday afternoon.

Sheriff's deputies said the body of Joseph N. Snyder, 47, was identified from papers found at the scene. He had walked away from the Family Care Home, on Ohio 207, March 31, according to nursing home officials.

The body was discovered by three Columbus fishermen walking along the creek bank. They notified Mount Sterling police who notified Fayette County sheriff's deputies.

The body which had apparently been in the water for some time, was taken to Columbus for an autopsy. Officers said, however, that there were no indications of foul play.

A FRIDAY NIGHT burglary at the Union 76 store in Milledgeville, netted thieves 32 cartons of cigarettes and $40 in cash.

Officers said the store, operated by Betty Massie, 8277 Main St., was entered through a window at the rear of the building. Total loss in the burglary was set at $152.

An attempt was also made to enter the clubhouse at Buckeye Hills Country Club, Limes Road, Saturday night. Tom Robertson, club manager, told sheriff's deputies a large glass sliding door had been broken and attempts had been made to pry out the door casing. Damage was set at $125.

Marion Waddle, Rt. 2, reported that someone had removed the drain plug from the gas tank of a Miami Trace School bus parked at his home. Waddle said 40 to 50 gallons of gasoline ran out onto the ground. The incident occurred Sunday night.

Two tires and chrome wheels valued at $100 were stolen from the residence of Norman Troute, 804 Dayton Ave., Monday morning. The tires and wheels were on the front porch at the time, police said.

A large tent was stolen from the Mark Scott residence, 1136 E. Temple St., early Monday. The tent, valued at $75, was set up in the back yard.

APPROXIMATELY $25 in change was removed from a soft drink machine at the Sunshine Laundry, 122 East St., Saturday night. Police said the machine had been pried open. An attempt was also made to enter a change machine.

A soft drink machine at the National Trailer Convoy Inc., office, 305 W. Market St., was entered sometime Sunday night. Police said the thief had entered the building through an open basement window, then forced a door to get at the machine. About $5 in change was taken.

Someone knocked out a window at Sagar Store, 212 E. Elm St., Sunday night. Police said there was no entry. Damage was set at $15.

Pearl Self Jr., of 622 E. Elm St., reported that an object thrown from a passing car had broken out the right wing window on his car. Damage was set at $10.

Marvin Birch, 448 Broadway, told police someone entered his yard Friday night, and pulled up 19 geranium plants. An address sign was also damaged. Loss was set at $29.

John Hymer, of 220 Forest St., reported the theft of $10 in garden seeds and some small garden tools. Hymer said the items were removed from the rear seat of his unlocked car parked at his home Saturday night.

A 10-speed bicycle owned by Vicki Everhart, 431 E. Paint St., was stolen from the front porch of her home Saturday night. Loss was set at $30.

Jon Creamer, of 611 Sycamore St., reported the theft of two lawn chairs, valued at $12. He said the chairs were removed from under the house where he had been storing them since September.

Prosecutors eye Nixon testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government prosecutors reportedly would like President Nixon to testify on how the Watergate coverup could have been carried out without his knowledge, but are said to feel a subpoena would be of dubious constitutionality.

The Washington Post, quoting Justice Department sources, said today that the President's role in the scandal is the only key question remaining to be clarified in the grand jury investigation.

The prosecutors are reported to have told their superiors that evidence obtained thus far justifies questioning the President about how his closest aides could have kept knowledge of a coverup from him.

"The President should be given an opportunity to explain himself," the Post quoted a source as saying.

"The Watergate investigation has run smack into the Constitution. We now must deal with the question of how the President can be investigated ...," said a Justice Department source quoted in the story. According to the account, officials believe the Constitution prevents subpoenaing the President.

Meanwhile, Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said the Senate Watergate investigating committee will call former high-level administration officials to testify "by the end of June." Baker, vice chairman of the committee that resumes hearings June 5, said John N. Mitchell, H.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and John W. Dean III would not be called before then.

The Post's sources reported that prosecutors have recommended the indictments of Mitchell, former attorney general, and Haldeman and Ehrlichman, both White House aides who have resigned.

The Post's account brought a sharp retort from White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler. He said the story, if true, "reflects a shocking and irresponsible abuse of authority on the part of the prosecutors .... Grand jury proceedings are by law secret."

Ziegler said the White House has asked Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson and Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox "to investigate the circumstances of these anonymous charges against the President of the United States—and to do so immediately."

The Post quoted a source as saying "There is no bombshell tucked away. Rather there is an evidentiary pattern" that raises questions about the President's role. "No document does it," the source said.

CBS News has reported that Dean, White House Counsel who was fired by President Nixon, has been offered immunity from all charges except one of obstructing justice, if he testifies about "all he knows" concerning Watergate.

Ohio Constitution revisions eyed by commission

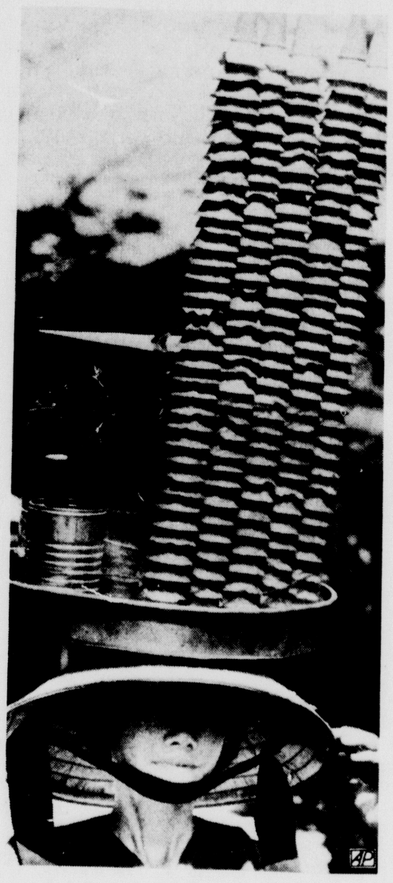

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Constitutional Revision Commission will hold a public hearing June 14 on proposals dealing with the powers and organization of county governments.

Amendments recommended by the commission's Local Government Committee would:

—Allow the legislature to recognize four different classes of counties in writing laws and extending limited "home rule" powers to county governments.

—Relax requirements for the adoption of county charters and update provisions for county charter commissions.

—Require that legislative action to change county boundaries be subject to automatic voter referendum.

The toll: 48 dead, $100 million damage

160 twisters rake nation!

By CRAIG AMMERMAN
Associated Press Writer

A record number of tornadoes dipped to earth from storm systems across the Midwest and South over the Memorial Day weekend, claiming at least 48 lives in multi-million dollar trails of destruction.

Several small towns were all but obliterated as about 160 tornadoes turned the long weekend into a holiday of horror for thousands.

Deaths were reported in 11 states from Oklahoma to Florida, and at least six other states reeled under heavy rains, high winds and flash floods.

The National Weather Service said the number of tornadoes reported between Saturday and Monday eclipsed any previous 72-hour period on record.

Among the victims of the weekend weather were farmers in the lower Mississippi Valley whose crops had been delayed for weeks by spring floods. The new rains dealt them another blow, and some counties in the region prepared to ask for the second time this year that they be declared a federal disaster area.

The weekend weather systems caused five deaths in Oklahoma, three in Kansas, seven in Missouri, three in Arkansas, ten in Tennessee, one in Mississippi, seven in Alabama, two in Georgia, one in Florida, seven in North Carolina and two in Virginia. In addition, six persons in North Carolina and one in Virginia were listed as missing and presumed drowned.

The storms began Saturday in eastern Oklahoma and continued into Monday night, when a tornado at Athens, Ga., took the life of one person and left more than 60 injured.

Reports from local officials indicated total losses would climb well above $100 million. The worst damage appeared to be in small towns such as Brent, Ala., and Keefeton, Okla., and in the city of Jonesboro, Ark.

The storms began their weekend of terror in Keefeton, a community of 400 in eastern Oklahoma. Officials said a funnel cloud dropped from the sky just west of town on Saturday and proceeded to make a half-mile-wide swath of destruction.

Destroyed was 75 per cent of Keefeton, including 150 homes, 125 cars and virtually all of the business district. Five persons, including four members of the same family who were rushing toward a shelter, were killed.

As the storms criss-crossed the Midwest and South during the weekend, a great many of the deaths resulted from drownings. Flash floods and wind-whipped lakes knocked out power, swept away homes and uprooted trees in state after state as the storms moved first southeast and then up the East Coast.

What is it?

Mystery 'blobs' appear in Texas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At three Dallas area homes, residents are watching a pulsating, cancerous blob of matter which mysteriously oozed from the ground, thus far defying definition.

Some 75 miles to the northwest, an armed sentry guards a graveyard where villagers say a spaceman was buried in 1897.

Investigators are holding what they say may be metal fragments from his spaceship.

The whole affair has become a science fiction buff's idea of heaven.

London newspapers have been asking more information along with reporters in Canada and Australia.

Scientists and universities are investigating, also.

The mysterious membrane began oozing from the backyard of a Garland, Tex., woman two weeks ago. Marie Harris described the strange material as reddish with thick bubbles on top...blackish mucous inside. It has multiplied itself by 16 times in two weeks.

It is foamy and turns colors when punctured. When the bubbles are broken, the "blob" appears to bleed a red and purplish material.

A North Dallas woman who refused to be identified said. "I'm scared to death. I have the same thing on my hedge. I can't kill it."

Edna Smith, who lives eight miles from Seagoville, a suburb east of Dallas, said she spotted a similar mass inching its way up a telephone pole. "It was red and pulsating, like the one I read about. For heaven's sake-what is it?"

Scientists from Growth International, a Colorado firm, are analyzing the membraneous matter in Mrs. Harris' yard.

GI scientist Arnold Pittman gathered spore specimens and shipped them to Colorado for laboratory tests. "Yes, it's growing. We put samples in a jar and before long we noticed pressure was building up inside," he said.

"Bacteria, if it is bacteria, have tremendous growth potential. Bacteria have more than 1,000 genes in each organism and under proper conditions can change to a complete different specie in a few seconds. Maybe that's what the thing is, a new mutation. But we really don't know what it is," he said.

Dittman said some bacteria grow from one billion spores to one billion tons in 24 hours.

"With its ability mutate, bacteria can adapt to any change or deficiency in growth conditions. I'm not saying that happens all the time," he said.

Mrs. Harris said heavy rains had obliterated the "blob" last Friday.

On Monday she said, "I looked again. Three more had grown in its place."

To the northwest, at Aurora, Tex., sightseers and newsman are being kept away from a small cemetery.

A guard at the graveyard Monday told one newsman, "I don't care if you're Jesus Christ. You can't come in."

Meanwhile, North Texas State University at Denton, and other schools, are examining metal fragments found where 1897 Dallas newspaper accounts say an unidentified flying object crashed.

Villages at Aurora and the Dallas newspaper reports say the badly mangled creature piloting the UFO was buried at the small cemetery now being guarded.

Professional metal and treasure hunters have examined metal fragments dug up at the site, tested and analysed them without learning their composition.

Hayden Hughes, head of the national UFO center at Oklahoma City, said Monday he plans a trip to Aurora to conduct his own investigation.

He confirmed that pieces of the unusual metal dug up at the reported crash site have been distributed to several universities for analysis.

Skylab crewmen to begin work with telescopes

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Skylab astronaut Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin today pointed a battery of telescopes at the sun, hoping to give scientists their best look yet at how this seething sphere of gases controls our solar system.

Physicists also hope the experiment will help unlock the secret of controlled thermonuclear fusion, the source of the sun's energy. This might aid in the search for an unlimited, pollution-free power source on earth.

While Kerwin tuned up the $107-million array, Charles Conrad Jr. and Paul J. Weitz assembled cameras and sensors which they'll use starting Wednesday to survey the earth's resources.

It was the fifth day of the planned 28-day orbital flight.

The telescopes are mounted on a large device that is extended away from the orbiting station on long metal arms. Kerwin operated them from a workshop console which Conrad calls so complex "it's like playing three 88-key piano boards at one time."

The astronauts on Monday completed setting up housekeeping in the laboratory, which is the size of a three-bedroom home, and began their first medical experiments.

A makeshift sunshade erected Saturday reduced temperatures to near 80 degrees, far below the 125 degrees recorded inside the cabin after a heat shield was ripped away during the launch of Skylab on May 14.

Flight controller Neil Hutchinson predicted the temperature would level out near 70 degrees within a day or two and make the workshop fully livable.

During a brief news conference televised to mission control Monday, Conrad replied, "You betcha," when asked if he felt they could complete the full four-week mission.

"If the temperatures keep going down, it's gonna get real pleasant in here. It's not bad now."

Kerwin, the first physician to fly in space, conducted three major medical experiments Monday. He drew blood from all three crewmen and then monitored Weitz on two devices.

One was a cylinder which fit over the lower half of Weitz' body and, with air evacuated, simulated gravity pressure like that experienced by a man standing on earth. Several measurements will be taken of each man during the mission to gain a running measurement of the deconditioning rate of the cardiovascular system (heart and blood vessels) in weightless space.

Memorial Day rites hindered by weather

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Somber, stormy weather across much of the country discouraged large turnouts for the nation's first Memorial Day ceremonies since all U.S. troops were withdrawn from Vietnam.

The dead of all wars were honored Monday in traditional parades and neighborhood wreath-laying observances, many of them conducted under umbrellas. Some activities were cancelled.

Special notice was paid in some places to victims, survivors and the missing soldiers of the war in Indochina.

At traditional parades in Michigan, hundreds of persons distributed leaflets demanding that North Vietnam account for 50 Michigan servicemen missing in action juring the war.

In New York City, the 106-year-old United War Veterans parade to the Soldiers and Sailors Monument overlooking the Hudson River changed from a march to a motorcade because of a downpour. About 200 persons listened to brief speeches, and a bugler sounded taps.

A World War I veteran, George Kaercher, 81, continued a 33-year tradition by leading students in placing flags on thousands of graves at Ft. Snelling Cemetery in Minneapolis, Minn.

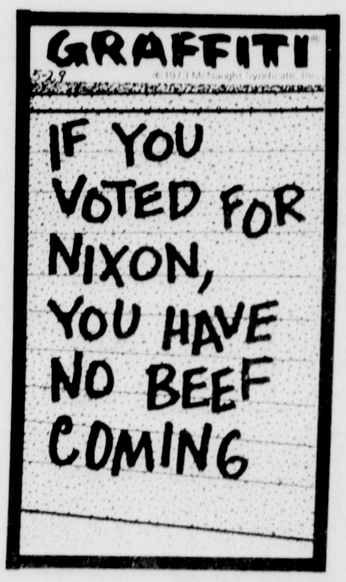

Memorial Day, originally Decoration Day, began as a tribute to Confederate and Yankee soldiers who died in the Civil War. Congress recently changed the date from May 30 to the last Monday in May to make a three-day holiday weekend.

Indicators show economic decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The country's economy showed a downward trend for the first time in 30 months in April, according to an important index of leading business indicators released by the Commerce Department today.

The index, based on eight categories of business performance, dropped six-tenths of one per cent in April to 161.5 per cent of the 1967 base of 100.

While economists will caution that it is too early to base trends on figures for one month, the figure nevertheless is seen to indicate the slowing of the economy that the administration predicted would occur about midyear.

Weather

Cloudy tonight with a chance of showers and thundershowers. Lows in the upper 40s to the mid 50s. Showers possible again Wednesday, highs in the 60s.

24 persons die on Ohio highways

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Ohio Highway Patrol reported 24 persons killed on the state's roads during the 78-hour Memorial Day weekend—nine less than predicted by highway safety officials.

State Highway Safety Director Eugene P. O'Grady predictad that 33 persons would be killed on the state's roads during the three-day holiday. Thirty-two persons died over the holiday period last year.

Traffic deaths were recorded by the patrol beginning 6 p.m. Friday and ending at midnight Monday.

The dead:

FRIDAY

DELAWARE — Judith E. Pierce, 27, Delaware, in a one-car accident west of Ohio 315 on Delaware County Road 124.

Traffic crashes claim 473 lives

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Traffic accidents claimed 473 lives around the nation during the three-day Memorial Day weekend.

The National Safety Council had estimated 550 to 650 persons would die in traffic mishaps during the period that began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight Monday, local time.

The Associated Press counted 565 traffic deaths during the 1972 Memorial Day weekend, also three days. The record toll for a three-day observance of the holiday was 597 in 1969.

Reality of gasoline shortage underscored

By BOB MONROE
Associated Press Writer

Like the unwelcome thump of a flat tire, the reality of the gas shortage now begins to prey on the minds of motorists accustomed to driving as though there were always more fuel tomorrow.

Warnings went out early that drivers who took to the highways for the Memorial Day weekend might have to shop around for gas to get home.

Most of them made it because there are still huge quantities of gasoline available. But the locked service stations and gas rationing encountered by many underscore that the supply is not quite enough.

Demand for gas has been increasing seven per cent a year, and traffic counts continue to grow. At the same time, many major oil companies say they do not have enough crude oil and have begun allocations to dealers based on 1972 sales.

"Not many months ago we were hounded by salesmen wanting to sell fuel. Now you have to scrounge all over the place," says Ray Alderson of Yellow Freightways in Kansas City.

Transit officials seek bids for fuel and get no replies. State troopers in Florida have been ordered to cut back mileage. Taxi drivers in a Des Moines, Iowa, fleet have been told not to turn on their air conditioners.

The effects of the shortage have been felt or feared for weeks by many whose livelihood depends directly or indirectly on motor fuel. But there is little evidence that car owners have curbed personal driving.

Most drivers contacted in a pre-weekend Associated Press survey said they did not plan any changes in driving habits or vacation plans. The question is whether they will have to.

A handful of stations were limiting customers to five gallons over the weekend. Many independent and major stations have cut back hours or closed Sundays.

The Office of Emergency Preparedness last week reported 882 of the estimated 220,000 stations in the country were closed for lack of gas. Another 1,863 were threatened with shutdowns, the OEP said.

Generally, the independents are most affected. They captured a quarter of the market over the past decade by buying surplus gas from major oil companies and selling it at 2 to 10 cents a gallon less than the standards.

One federal official calls them "a very helpful competitive spur." Under a voluntary allocation plan that the administration announced three weeks ago, the major oil companies were urged to "share the shortage" among their stations and the independents.

Industry sources say the shortage is essentially the result of limited supplies of crude oil and limited refinery capacity.

An opposite view is voiced by California Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, a Democrat. He notes that U.S. refineries operated "at less than 75 per cent capacity last year" and listed record first quarter profits this year.

Is it coincidence that the shortage occurred "during a period when the oil industry is pressing for the Alaska pipeline, relaxation of other environmental safeguards, resumption of offshore drilling ... and preferential tax loopholes?" he asks.

While the debate goes on, Illinois officials have set up a hot line for farmers needing fuel. An Iowa gas tank company is selling more storage tanks to farmers than ever before.

Lack of competition in bids for bulk fuel supplies forced Los Angeles County to accept a lone bid for gasoline at a 67 per cent increase.

The driving crunch lies ahead this summer, and no one is sure what will happen. Some industry analysts predict the shortage will last into the mid 70s because it will take that long to expand refinery capacity.

Deaths, Funerals

Earl C. Storm

Services for Earl Calvin Storm, 52, of 618 S. Fayette St., will be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Morman) in Norwood Cincinnati.

Some POWs face charges by leader

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon officials expect a former U.S. POW leader to file aiding-the-enemy charges soon, perhaps today, against a small group of soldiers and Marines he commanded in a North Vietnamese prison.

Unless he changes his mind, Air Force Col. Theodore W. Guy's filing of formal charges against seven to 10 Army men and Marines would be the first such action against any of the 566 returned military POWs.

Besides aiding-the-enemy charges, military sources said Guy would accuse the soldiers and Marines of disobedience of orders and disrespect to superior officers.

More than a month ago, the 44-year-old Guy denounced some POWs as cowards "who openly collaborated with the enemy" and caused physical harm to some of their comrades. He declined to name them, saying at the time, "Those who did collaborate with the enemy or went against the Code of Conduct will be identified by me and, after all the evidence is in, I will decide whether charges will be placed."

On Guy's insistence, an informal investigation was started.

Pentagon officials had tried to promote a forgive and forget attitude among the POWs, but there is no way under the Code of Military Justice that they could prevent an officer or enlisted man from pressing charges.

The filing of charges does not necessarily mean that the accused will stand trial before courts-martial. That is determined by military officials on the basis of a formal investigation, after which they could elect to drop the charges.

Guy, who spent five years as a prisoner of the North Vietnamese, was senior ranking officer at a Hanoi prison compound called "The Plantation."

He was senior officer over 108 men, ranging in rank from private to colonel, who had been captured in South Vietnam and Laos.

Guy has claimed he was turned in by other American prisoners and beaten and tortured because of his efforts to set up communications among the POWs and to organize camp life and discipline. Other former POWs suffered as he did, he said.

According to Guy, some POWs accepted favored treatment from their North Vietnamese captors, in the form of extra rations and greater freedom within the compound walls, and "turned their backs on us."

"I intend to do everything in my power to weed these people out of the system," Guy said.

Urge caution on fund cutoff

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration backers urged restraint today in Senate debate on legislation to cut off all money for continued U.S. bombing in Cambodia.

Senate action already had been delayed two weeks during negotiations in Paris and Saigon seeking full compliance with the Jan. 27 Vietnam ceasefire agreement.

The Senate Appropriations Committee, in an amendment added to a $3.2 billion supplemental appropriations bill May 15, voted unanimously to prohibit the use of any money ever appropriated by Congress for further U.S. military activity in Cambodia and Laos.

Five days earlier the House, in its first antiwar vote of the Indochina conflict, voted 219-188 to prohibit the use of any of the supplemental appropriations in the bill for Cambodian air operations. The ban did not apply to prior appropriations.

The more extensive ban proposed in the Senate reflected a growing congressional concern that resumption of bombing in Cambodia constituted new hostilities undertaken without approval of Congress, at the risk of reinvolvement of United States forces in the Vietnam war.

Administration spokesmen defended the President's authority to order the bombing as an extension of his authority to negotiate and enforce the Vietnam cease-fire.

Early this month, the conference of Democratic senators endorsed a resolution urging legislative action to shut off funds for any military activity by the United States in Cambodia.

Senate Republican Whip Robert P. Griffin of Michigan said the interests of peace will not be served by undercutting current negotiations. He called upon the Senate to exercise "a bit of responsible restraint."

Nixon's home improvements had Secret Service push

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House says more than $100,000 in improvements made at President Nixon's San Clemente, Calif., estate during the past four years were requested by the Secret Service "for the protection of the President."

The projects included a new electric heating system for the President's Spanish-style mansion, a $3,360-storage shed, more than $50,000 worth of brick or redwood fences and a $13,000 bullet-proof windscreen alongside the presidential swimming pool.

Building permits were issued by the city of San Clemente for about $70,000 worth of government-financed improvements. The rest apparently was done without building permits.

The federally financed work was in addition to the $123,514 that the White House said last week the Nixons had spent themselves for improvements on their home and 5.9-acre homesite.

In a statement Friday, disclosing that Nixon had sold the bulk of his estate to one of his wealthy friends, New York industrialist Robert M. Abplanalp, the White House would not provide a breakdown on the $123,514 figure.

The transaction took place in December 1970—18 months after Nixon had purchased the ocean-side property with $625,000 loaned him by Abplanalp.

The loan was canceled in the subsequent transaction that left Nixon with a net investment of $374,514 for the house and 5.9 acres, and Abplanalp with an investment of $1.2 million for the remaining 23 acres.

The entire tract, including the portion now owned by Abplanalp, remains under Secret Service guard. It is immediately adjacent to a Coast Guard station, which serves as the site of the President's office and other buildings constituting the Western White House.

After the Associated Press reported Monday that the federal government had spent more than $100,000 for improvements on Nixon's estate, a White House spokesman issued a statement saying "All the work done at the Western White House as listed in The Associated Press story was requested by the Secret Service for protection of the President.

The cold front that brought showers and thundershowers to Ohio Memorial Day and early last night had moved to the East Coast by this morning.

But a weak low was expected to remain over the Great Lakes through tonight, through gradually weakening. The low will continue cloudy skies and a few light showers, especially in northern counties.

Today's highs were expected to be in the 60s to near 70, noticeably cooler than those Memorial Day.

A high pressure developing north of the Great Lakes was expected to gradually replace the low, and showers will end in northern Ohio tonight.

Meanwhile, a disturbance swinging eastward toward the Ohio Valley will bring the threat of more showers and thundershowers to central and southern counties tonight and Wednesday.

Rainfall amounts Memorial Day ranged from a half-inch at Findlay to a trace at some weather stations.

Temperatures at dawn today ranged from 56 at Toledo to 61 at Ironton.

A chance of showers about Saturday. Highs Thursday through Saturday in the 70s. Lows in the 50s.

Gasoline tax increase studied by U.S. officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz said today the Nixon administration is considering a proposal to raise gasoline taxes.

Shultz, speaking at a news conference for economic reporters, also indicated that the administration has under study other tax-increase proposals to help cool the rapidly expanding economy.

As for the gasoline tax, Shultz said it is "one of the many things we are reviewing all the time."

He said there are pluses and minuses connected with the proposal and stressed that no decision has been made. The federal tax now is four cents a gallon.

Stock list goes lower

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices moved lower today in what analysts termed a technical reaction to recent gains.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was off 4.44 at 926.40, after having risen some 44 points in the previous four sessions. On the New York Stock Exchange, advances led declines by 664 to 564.

In the news background was the government report that its composite index of leading economic indicators had declined in April for the first time in 30 months.

On the American Stock Exchange, the price-change index was up .04 at 22.80, while the Big Board index at noon was off .16 at 56.80.

GM recalls 189 costly automobiles

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors said today it is recalling about 165 of its 1973 Oldsmobile Toronados and 24 of its 1973 Cadillac Eldorados to check a possible steering linkage defect.

The company said some of the cars, all produced in early May, were assembled with steering linkage ball studs made from the wrong grade of steel. GM said the studs could break, causing loss of steering control.

GM discovered the error during its assembly operations and the firm said no failures, accidents or injuries have been traced to the defect.

Fatal helicopter crash said freak

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today described the crash of one of the presidential fleet helicopters that killed a Secret Service agent as "one of those freak accidents."

The crash occurred Saturday night in the Atlantic Ocean off the private island of Grand Cay off the Bahamas where Nixon was a guest of millionaire industrialist Robert Abplanalp.

"Great guys," the President said of the Secret Service agents who guard him. The accident took the life of J. Clifford Dietrich, 25, formerly of Greenwich, Conn., and slightly injured three Army crew members and six other agents.

Britain duels with Iceland in cod war

BRUSSELS (AP) — The United States and 12 North Atlantic allies urged Britain and Iceland today "to exercise the utmost restraint" in their cod war.

The appeal was made at a meeting of the North Atlantic Council, made up of permanent representatives of the United States, Britain, Iceland and the other 12 members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

An announcement said the council "took note" of Iceland's demand that NATO get the British government to remove its warships that are protecting British trawlers in the disputed waters Iceland is claiming outside the 12-mile limit.

The dispute between the British Conservative government and the leftist coalition headed by Prime Minister Olafur Johannesson threatens the NATO base in Iceland from which the alliance keeps track of Soviet submarines in the North Atlantic.

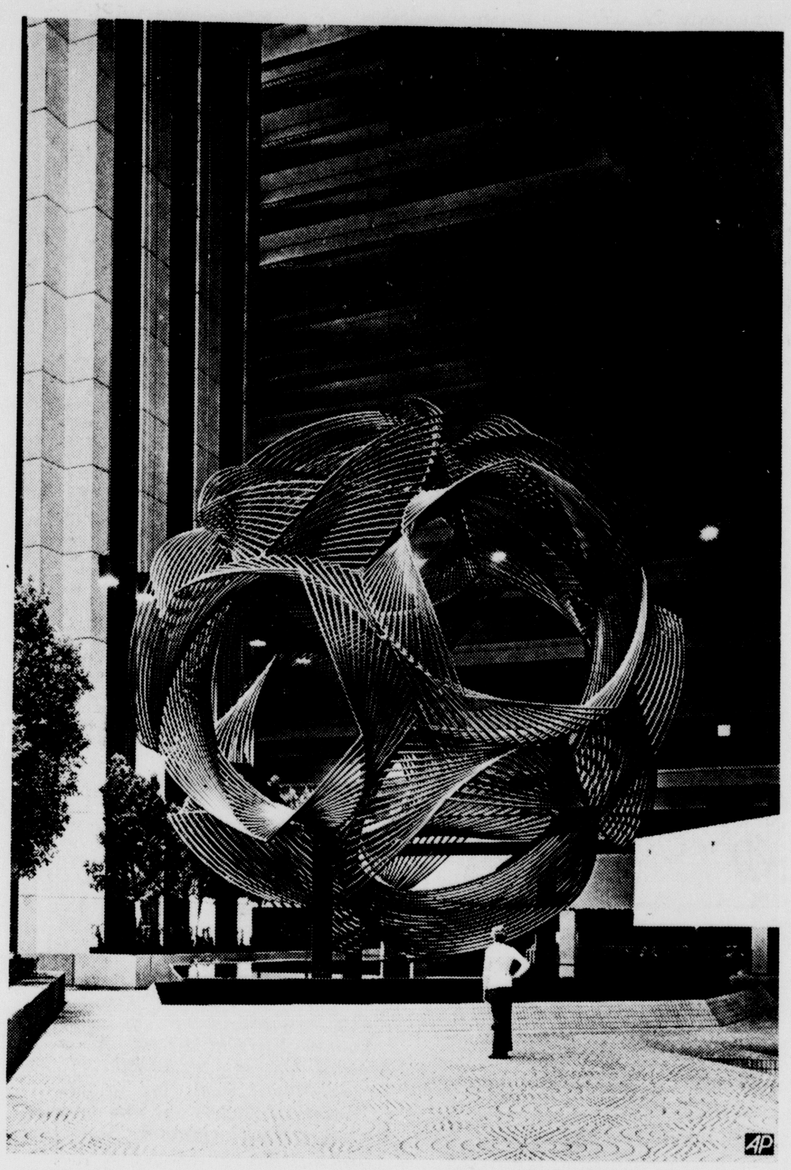

The demand followed the shelling Saturday of the trawler Everton by an Icelandic gunboat within the 50-mile territorial limit Iceland proclaimed last September.

Britain, West Germany and other nations whose fishermen traditionally fish those waters around Iceland reject the new 50-mile limit, saying Iceland has no right to expand its territorial waters unilaterally beyond the generally accepted 12-mile limit.

Iceland claims its vital fishing industry is threatened by foreign fishermen.

Japanese post deficit

TOKYO (AP) — Japan has posted a record deficit in its overall balance of payments for the second consecutive month. The net outflow for April totaled $1.16 billion, compared with a $1.09 billion deficit in March and a $157 million surplus a year earlier, the finance ministry reported Friday.

North Viet POW regulations disclosed

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The North Vietnamese captors of American servicemen were adamant: No writing on the prison walls. No noise. No discourtesy to the guards.

Regulations issued by the North Vietnamese in 1969 promised reward for prisoners who informed about violations and punishment for those who tried to oppose the will of their captors.

The regulations, which termed the American prisoners criminals, were posted in English in February 1969 in the "Hanoi Hilton," one of the Hanoi prisons in which American POWs were held.

The sheet containing the regulations was smuggled home by Navy Lt. Cmdr. David J. Rollins of Pioche, Nev., a prisoner for six years. He turned a copy over to reporters today.

The regulations read, in part:

"The criminals are under an obligation to give full and clear written or oral answers to all questions raised by the camp authorities. All attempts and tricks intended to evade answering further questions and acts directed to opposition by refusing to answer any questions will be considered manifestations of obstinacy and antagonism which deserves strict punishment....

"The criminals must demonstrate a cautious and polite attitude to officers and guards in the camp.... When the Vietnamese officers and guards come to the rooms for inspection ... the criminals must carefully and neatly put on their clothes, stand at attention, bow a greeting and await further orders. They may sit down only when permission is granted.

"The criminal must maintain silence in the detention rooms and not make any loud noises which can be heard outside. All schemes and attempts to gain information and achieve communication with the criminals living next door by intentionally talking loudly, tapping on walls or by other means will be strictly punished....

"The criminals must go to bed and arise in accordance with the orders signaled by the gong.

"During alerts, the criminals must take shelter without delay. If no foxhole is available, they must go under their beds and lay close to the wall....

"Any obstinacy or opposition, violation of the preceding provisions, or any scheme or attempt to get out of the detention camp without permission are all punishable. On the other hand, any criminal who strictly obeys the camp regulations and shows his true submission and repentance by his practical acts will be allowed to enjoy the humane treatment he deserves.

"Anyone so imbued with a sense of preventing violations and who reveals the identity of those who attempt to act in violation of the foregoing provisions will be properly rewarded. However, if any criminal is aware of any violation and deliberately tries to cover it up, he will be strictly punished when this is discovered.

"In order to assure the proper execution of the regulations, all the criminals in any detention room must be held responsible for any and all violations of the regulations committed in their room."

Insurgents raid Cambodian town

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — About 400 Cambodian insurgents raided a river town 19 miles northwest of here Monday night, killing the members of a dozen families and burning 50 houses, the military command said.

Field reports said 100 militiamen stationed in Prek Kdam, on the Tonle Sap River, fled when the insurgent forces entered the town.

The military command said the members of nine civilian families and three military families were killed and 26 other persons were wounded in the three-hour attack that began at midnight.

Field reports said most of the attackers were Chams, Cambodian Moslems opposed to the Phnom Penh government.

Prek Kdam is on Highway 5, the main highway from Phnom Penh to Cambodia's rice bowl in Battambang Province. The highway has been cut for months.

Also Monday night, another Mekong River supply convoy from South Vietnam arrived in Phnom Penh. Four of the 11 ships and barges were badly damaged.

U.S. fighter-bombers had pounded the 60 miles of river bank from the South Vietnamese border. But the convoy came under intense shelling from insurgent forces using 75mm guns two miles south of the government naval base at Neak Luong.

Intelligence reports say about 8,000 insurgent troops are moving into the area around Neak Luong, which is 32 miles southeast of Phnom Penh. The Cambodian command believes they are going to try to take the base.

In Saigon, the South Vietnamese command reported 41 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese and nine government soldiers killed Monday in three Communist attacks in the Mekong Delta and north of Saigon. A communique said another 30 government troops were wounded.

Dinner closes school year for Hi-Y Club

The annual Hi-Y Banquet, scheduled at the end of each school year to review the club's activities, was held in the Washington Senior High School cafeteria. Club members, their parents and guests attended the event.

Committee chairmen were recognized for their work during the year. Committee chairmen honored were: David Brown, Christmas tree; Bill Shaw, religion; Kevin Terry, activity; Don Wheat, program; Kevin Smith, sales; Jack Patton and Steve Hill, constitution and Jeff Wallace, Youth and Government. Each chairman explained what his committee did during the year, and introduced committee members.

Special recognition plaques were given to Common Pleas Court Judge Evelyn W. Coffman and Probate-Juvenile Court Judge Rollo M. Marchant for their help in the Youth and Goverment mock trials. Plaques were also presented to Gary Smith, Dennis Ulrich, Robert Simpson and John Bryan, attorneys who assisted with the trials. Special recognition was given to Donnie Smith, who sold the most magazines for the club.

Officers were elected for the 1973-74 school year. Chosen were: Tom Allen, president; Jim Smith, vice president; Donnie Smith, secretary; Rory Souther, treasurer, and Bill Shaw, chaplain. New officers were sworn by the outgoing officers.

Dave King, executive director of the West Virginia-Ohio YMCAs was the speaker. He presented the Honor Club award to the Washington Senior Hi-Y Club.

Garth Cox, club member, reported on the YMCA Conference on National Affairs held at Black Mountain, N.C. Austin Crusie and George Shoemaker, club advisers, congratulated the new officers and reviewed the past year's activities.

The meeting was ended with prayer by Bill Shaw, chaplain.

Ford meets Argentine demands

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Residents of a Buenos Aires shantytown line up today to receive 3,000 food packages from the Ford Motor Co.'s Argentine subsidiary.

The packages, delivered Monday to the local church, were part of the first installment of Ford's million-dollar protection payoff to the People's Revolutionary Army, whose guerrillas wounded two employes of the company during a kidnap attempt last week.

The company also delivered $400,000 to two children's hospitals. It also has promised to hand over 22 ambulances, a total of $180,000 worth of food for slum dwellers and $300,000 in school supplies for shantytowns.

Some Peronist youths opposed accepting the first food packages since they came from terrorist activities. But the leader of a liberal religious movement, the Rev. Carlos Mujica, told them:

"Now is not the time to quarrel about ideologies. Let's get this food to the people. At least the children will have tasted milk and cocoa once in their lives."

Meanwhile, Argentina's new Peronist president, Hector Campora, restored diplomatic relations with Cuba after an 11-year break and announced he would establish relations with the Communist governments of East Germany and North Korea.

Senators report farmers abused

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Agriculture Committee says farmers have been abused and ill-paid despite their "magnificent contribution" in providing America with an abundance of food and fiber.

The committee, in a newly published report on its farm bill, says farmers represent the largest U.S. industry and have assets of $339 billion, equal to three-fifths of the value of capital assets of all U.S. corporations.

"Estimates show that about one out of every five jobs in private employment is related to agriculture," the report said. "About two million people have jobs providing the supplies farmers use for production; 8-to-10 million people have jobs storing, transporting, processing and merchandising products of agriculture."

Further, the report said, farm exports are helping offset deficits in U.S. trade. Farm spending for new machinery and other production expense is pumping huge resources into the national economy.

The report asked what farmers receive for their contributions.

—"First, they have received criticism inspite of the miracle which they have performed in providing our nation and others with an abundance of food and fiber at fair and reasonable costs," the report said.

—"Second, they have received a record-high income of $19.2 billion in 1972. But this is only 12 per cent above the income received 25 years ago. In those intervening years net income declined to a low of $10.7 billion, and in every one of those 24 intervening years realized net income was less than it was in 1947.

—"Third, during the same period production expenses increased by 178 per cent and in 1972 amounted to $47.2 billion.

—"Fourth, they have been forced to go further and further into debt. In 1947 farmers owed $8.4 billion. Today farm debt is over $70 billion, an increase of over 733 per cent," the report said.

Lastly, the report said, farmers are subjected to the problems of weather, fuel shortages and to inflationary pressures common to all.

"But in spite of all these difficulties and adversities the farmers of this nation have continued to toil and sweat to provide the very life blood of our existence," the report said. "They deserve praise, not criticism, for presisting in the fact of almost insurmountable odds."

IRA wings form alliance; summer of unrest expected

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — An unexpected alliance of the Irish Republican Army's rival wings in Londonderry threatens a summer of heightened unrest in Northern Ideland's second largest city.

Leaders of the IRA's leftist Official faction and its nationalist Provisional wing met during the weekend with representatives of nonviolent nationalist groups and associates of Bernadette Devlin to plan a series of demonstrations.

The first will be a march on the Londonderry City Hall next Sunday protesting detention without trial of suspected terrorists. British paratroopers opened fire during a similar march in January 1972 and killed 13 civilians, adding the name of "Bloody Sunday" to the annals of Northern Ireland's communal warfare.

Other demonstrations on the program include a plan to rebuild the barricades around Roman Catholic areas of Londonderry for one day only— July 31. This will be the anniversary of Operation Motorman, in which the British army tore down the barricades and smashed into those IRA strongholds. They had been known as "no go" districts because until then the troops had stayed out and left the guerrillas in unchallenged control.

The deal between the rival wings of the IRA apparently was confined to Londonderry and to civil demonstrations rather than guerrilla activity. British sources believe the move stems from a desire to reassert control over the Bogside and Creggan, Londonderry's main Catholic areas.

Plan new dollar sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Services Administration is conducting another sale of silver dollars minted in the last century.

The sale starts Friday, with a closing date for bids of July 31, and includes coins minted at the now closed Carson City, Nev., mint in 1878, 1882, 1883, 1884, 1890 and 1891.

These are part of a large store of old cartwheels discovered a decade ago in an out-of-the-way vault in the Treasury. About 800,000 of the coins have been sold in earlier sales at $30 each.

For uncirculated dollars in the sale the minimum bid will be $15 for 1878 coins and $30 for the others. There also will be sales of scratched and tarnished coins from Carson City, and circulated and uncirculated coins from other mints at minimum bids of from $3 to $5.

Bid forms were made available at post offices and banks around the country.

Of the 202-mile Appalachian Highway System in Ohio, 111 miles are currently open to traffic, 12 miles under construction and 79 miles are unscheduled.

Oil, dollar crisis link reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high-ranking energy official warned today that rising oil imports pose "the major threat to the soundness and stability of the dollar over the next decade."

The warning came from Stephen A. Wakefield, assistant secretary of the interior for energy and minerals, in a speech in San Antonio, Tex.

The speech, released by his office here, was prepared for delivery at a meeting of the Texas Independent Producers' and Royalty Owners' Association.

Wakefield urged the independents to step up their oilproducing activities, particularly in the well-established onshore oil fields, to tap every available drop of oil from the United States' domestic reserves.

Wakefield said the public has become aware of an "energy crisis" and a "balance of payments crisis," but not of a relationship between the two.

"I submit that they are directly related," he said, "and that within the next year or two this relationship will be glaringly apparent to everyone.

"The major threat to the soundness and stability of the dollar over the next decade will come from the payment requirements for oil imports, which may range between $25 billion and $30 billion annually by 1585."

Opinion And Comment

Improper use of the CIA

One of the nastier sidelights of Watergate is the indication that White House aides sought to use the Central Intelligence Agency as a part of a coverup operation. The same can be said of testimony, reportedly corroborated by a onetime CIA chief, that the spy agency's resources were used to help carry out the burglary of the office of Dr. Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Fresh light on this facet of the political espionage case has been shed by former CIA Director Richard Helms under interrogation by the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on intelligence activities. The subcommittee chairman, Sen. John L. McClellan, tells us that Helms confirmed earlier accounts of requests made to the CIA by important figures on the White House staff.

The law forbids domestic operations by the CIA. This wise restriction appears to have been violated by the CIA's cooperation with those who burglarized the psychiatrist's office in search of records on Ellsberg.

McClellan is right in his judgment that requests for CIA help, including those the agency resisted, were "possibly illegal and certainly of the gravest impropriety."

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

Chou reiterates distrust of Soviets

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another column resulting from Mr. Childs' long discussion with Premier Chou En-lai.

PEKING — When warships of the Soviet fleet sailed past China's front door through the Taiwan Strait it stirred a wave of speculation throughout Asia. The response from United States command headquarters in Hawaii was a statement that American ships were still patrolling the waters between the Chinese mainland and the island of Taiwan that is Chiang Kai-shek's redoubt.

For the man who bears such a heavy responsibility for the management of both foreign and domestic policy in the People's Republic this was one more proof of what he has long believed. Premier Chou En-lai, in a discussion with this reporter lasting more than three hours, explained his conviction that the confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union has been transferred from the Middle East to South Asia.

His conviction is grounded in an unshakable distrust of Soviet motives. Chou believes that the intent of the Kremlin hierarchy, led by Leonid Brezhnev, is to lull the West into a false security while the Soviets pursue their goal of hegemony everywhere.

AMERICANS who argue for a reduction or even the entire elimination of the American forces stationed in Germany are, in Chou's view, naive. How, he asks, can there be any assurance that if Western troops are pulled back, the large Soviet concentrations in the five satellite powers will be reduced?

Chou is profoundly skeptical of the agreements signed in Moscow by Nixon and Brezhnev a year ago. Despite those agreements, he says, gesturing with his expressive hands, the nuclear arms race goes on up and up at a terrible cost. And there can be no reason to believe that it will not end in a nuclear war.

As for China's policy, the premier is confident that a Soviet strike across the northern border, so long a major threat, has been deterred. The deterrance has been achieved by successful diplomacy on the one hand and by extensive and costly measurements of preparedness — a strong army, rapid nuclear missile development, tunnel digging — on the other hand.

The agreements signed with the United States and Japan, underwritten by the personal missions to Peking of President Nixon and Japan's Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, have removed the threat of a two-or even a three-front war.

THE NIGHTMARE of such a war, however fantastic and improbable it may seem to the outsider, is what Chou and others at the top of the New China have lived with for many years. Through the '30s and into the '40s Japan waged a savage war of conquest. Chiang Kai-shek conserved his forces for the civil war that followed.

Then in the '50s, after the Chinese had successfully repulsed American troops in Korea at the Yalu River, came the Dulles policy of trying to bring China down by isolating her and cutting off any exchange with the outside world. No wonder, then, that Chou and his colleagues have lived so long with the nightmare of fear.

On the diplomatic level India has several times approached Peking with a desire to talk. But Chou says that negotiation will not be possible until 90,000 Pakistan prisoners still held by India out of the war of late 1971 are repatriated.

A border issue must be settled, with India holding a large chunk of Chinese territory south of the McMahon Line.

The key to peace, however, is Indochina and the premier confesses he is baffled by American policy in Cambodia. The American bombing he sees as a futile attempt to hold a small place that was once a green oasis.

WHY, HE ASKS, should the United States support Lon Nol in Phnom Penh who is no old friend of the United States? If Prince Sihanouk, who has the complete backing of the People's Republic, could be returned, he maintains, Cambodia would be an independent and neutral state.

In this way the peace settlement in Indochina, which Chou sees as a gratifying development, could be further implemented.

As the premier looks at American policy in Asia, the error as been in trying to hold small places and thereby sacrificing the large. The American involvement in Cambodia is, after all, only three years old, dating from the Nixon incursion. Why should the conflict there not be settled peacefully?

An earthy peasant figure of speech says a lot about the American error: Do not sacrifice the melon for the sesame seed.

Since the Nixon mission the premier understands the United States, and in his relationship with Henry Kissinger there is friendship. Yet, the tragedy of Cambodia and the threat to peace of the continued bombing cannot be ignored.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Anticipating the energy crisis

A state governor, Meldrim Thomson of New Hampshire, has taken the bit between his teeth in an attempt to solve the energy crisis.

Angered by the delays caused by the environmentalists in hearings on a proposed nuclear power plant before a Site Evaluation Committee, the governor (1) said he would do everything he can to help atomic power plants get into action both in his own state and in neighboring Maine and Vermont and (2) he has re-emphasized a pledge to bring an oil refinery into New Hampshire with connecting deep water offshore facilities to import bulk fuel from the Middle East.

The Thomson attitude is in marked contrast to that of other politicians, who have yet to comprehend the revulsion that is bound to ripple through a fuel-dependent nation when its homes go unheated for a winter and when the price of gasoline has jumped to 60 or 70 cents a gallon.

Thomson may not have heard about the anti-ecologist bumper sticker that is blossoming in some places: "Let the bastards freeze in the dark." But when it crops in New Hampshire he will not be surprised.

THE NATION as a whole needs a few more foresighted Meldrim Thomsons if it is to get through the next decade. The attempt to accommodate our needs for ecological purity to our urgent demands for heat, light, transportation and industrial power is up against a series of time binds that will have everybody hopping long before the decade of the Seventies is out.

Bind Number One: the so-called Muskie amendments the the Clean Air Act cannot possibly be met by 1975-76, which was the original deadline set for getting 97 per cent of the hydrocarbons, 96 per cent of carbon monoxide, and 93 per cent of oxides of nitrogen out of all our car motors. The Japanese can meet such standards in the 8 per cent of their Mazda car production runs that are exported to the U.S., but they can't do it for the 92 per cent of the autos intended for home usage.

The Ford Motor Co., putting the pressure on, might meet the Muskie purity standards for 8 per cent of its own runs, but it would take the U.S. achine tool industry 12 years to create the capital goods needed to produce relatively clean Wankel engines for the totlality of Detroit's production.

Bind Number Two: With the exception of Gov. Thomson's New Hampshire, our Northeastern states (or their political representatives, at any rate) can't summon the will to break the deadlock between the ecologists and the oil importers. It now takes 16 small tankers to bring the amount of oil into the Linden, N.J., area that might be transported by one jumbo tanker if there were only a deep water oil transfer spigot 16 miles out ot sea.

The 16 small tankers, maneuvering close to shore, are all potential collision hazards. A jumbo tanker, discharging its cargo well out to sea, is a collision hazard, too. But oil spilled 16 miles from the coat is less of a menace than oil spilled in close proximity to New York and Newark bays.

The use of jumbo tankers and deepwater unloading would also save us a lot of dollar exchange now going for expensive transport.

BIND NUMBER THREE: We have talked so long about the oil pipeline in Alaska and the possibility of drilling productive wells on the continental shelf off New England, not to mention new refineries on the East Coast, that the Arabs now have a 10-year period in which they can either hold us up for unconscionable crude oil prices or blackmail us out of our efforts to solve the mid-East crisis without letting Israel down.

Meanwhile, other nations have no compunctions about building deep water oil ports or offshore transfer spigot stations; and the British, the Norwegians and the Dutch hardly waited a single minute before drilling for oil and gas in the North Sea. If there are spills in the tempestuous outer North Sea, the British and the Norwegians will learn how to cope with them as they go along. Meanwhile, they won't be freezing in the dark in Aberdeen, Scotland, or in Norway's Oslo.

The gas stations in New England are already limiting new customers to 10 gallons at the pump. If it's this way in May, what will it be in August, when people are really trying to get out of the city for a breath of air or a look at the mountains?

Gov. Thomson of New Hampshire is the first prophetic voice in a high administrative place, and the country will be hearing more of him as the energy crisis grows worse.

The average American husband contributes about 1.6 hours each day, or 11 hours each week, to household chores. The amount does not change much even if the wife has a job out of the home. This information comes from a 1970 poll by the Institute of Life Insurance.

Hal Boyle . . . Remarks for librarians

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks a lady librarian gets tired of hearing:

"What have you got left on the shelf where you hide the really racy stuff?"

"I don't want any of your books, kid. You're the one I'd like the check out. What would you like to do tonight?"

"Why are you always shushing people so it's so quiet in here you can hear a pin drop? Who wants to listen to a pin drop, anyway?"

"Do you have any sure-fire books on how to make money after 65? My husband is retiring next month."

"I found this copy of "Forever Amber" in the children's section. Hasn't it been misplaced — or am I just that far behind the times?"

"There are a couple of high school kids smooching behind the nonfiction stacks. Aren't you going to do something about it?"

"No, I don't want any books, lady. I just want a place where I can sit down and take a nap. I'm homeless."

"Garbage, garbage, garbage! That's all they write nowadays. If a man like Charles Dickens were alive today, he'd have to earn a living writing for seed catalogues."

"Whom do I report a dirty old man to? No, he didn't say anything to me, but he just sits across the reference table from me and leers whenever our knees touch."

"Why Elsie Dimmer, don't tell me you've been working at the library here ever since we got out of college! Whatever became of your plans to go to Broadway and become an actress?"

"Please, Miss Dimmer, can't you just forget I owe the library 55 cents for returning my books late? If I have to pay you I won't have enough money left to go to the movies and meet my boy friend."

"What about those nice books about the Bobbsey Twins? Did they ever grow up? I think one of the reasons I was so unprepared for marriage was that I was still reading about the Bobbsey Twins until I was 16."

Dear Abby:

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Loafer son no longer a 'minor' problem

DEAR ABBY: Our son was given every opportunity for as much education as he wanted, plus room and board without costing him a quarter, but as the kids say today, "he blew it."

Now he comes and goes as he pleases, lounges around the house, reading, listening to records, eating like a king, contributing nothing, and making long speeches about what is wrong with the world. We told him to please get out until he either gets a job or goes back to school and completes his education. So far, neither alternatives appeal to him.

He says that he is a minor and we have to take care of him until he is 21. That means another eight months, and I don't think we can take it. Any suggestions?

HAD IT IN DETROIT

DEAR HAD IT: In Detroit your son is an adult at 18, and he has no more right to live on your property than a stranger. You can give him the official 30 day notice to move out of your home, and if he refuses, the court will advise him that he has 10 days to move, after which, they will "help" him.

You don't live in Detroit-you live in Atlanta, Ga., or Muscatine, Ia., or Boston, Mass.? Well, ring up your local Legal Aid Society and find out what the law in your community says.

DEAR ABBY: I have a beautiful 22-year-old daughter. She has always had many boy friends and girl friends until about a year ago when she met this one girl at school. Since then, nothing has been the same.

My daughter has dropped all her other friends and she associates only with this one girl. They are together morning, noon, and night. They have all their classes together, and after school this friend comes home with her, eats dinner here, and on weekends she spends the nights here.

They never have dates, but it doesn't seem to bother them-they are so wrapped up with each other. It just doesn't seem normal to me.

Abby, I am beginning to wonder about the relationship between these two girls. I love my daughter more than my own life. What should I do?

HEARTSICK MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Let your daughter know you love her and accept her as she is. There is no more convincing proof of your love.

DEAR ABBY: What would you say about a guy who is so egotistical he flies the American flag on his birthday? He was in World War II, and all he ever did for his country was get a dishonorable discharge.

Isn't there a law against flying the American flag whenever you feel like it? And if so, what is the penalty, and where do I turn this conceited bum in?

Nothing would give me more pleasure. Thank you.

GALVESTON, TEX.

DEAR GALVESTON: You'd better find another way to punish the guy. There is no law against flying the American flag anytime, or all the time.

DEAR ABBY: Re the letter from the housewife who said her husband got all kinds of offers from willing women to have coffee and "something" while making a delivery: I've been installing phones for five years, and the most I've ever been offered was a cup of coffee and a piece of cake.

I hope all wives whose husbands make deliveries and service calls don't think their husbands are fooling around. They aren't. Believe me, I know.

NOTHING ON THE SIDE

CONFIDENTIAL TO LOREN: Superstar misses you. Please call your mother collect immediately.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, May 29, the 149th day of 1973. There are 216 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1453, the capital of the Byzantine Empire, Constantinople, was captured by the Turks. The date is listed by some historians as the end of the Middle Ages.

On this date:

In 1736, the American patriot, Patrick Henry, was born in Hanover County, Va.

In 1790, Rhode Island became the last of the 13 original colonies to ratify the U.S. Constitution.

In 1848, Wisconsin joined the Union as the 30th state.

In 1917, the 35th American president, John F. Kennedy, was born in Brookline, Mass.

In 1943, the Americans defeated the Japanese in the Pacific war Battle of Attu in the Aleutians.

In 1953, Edmond Hillary of New Zealand and Tensing Norkay of Nepal became the first climbers to reach the top of the world's highest mountain, Mt. Everest.

Ten years ago: President John F. Kennedy was honored as "father of the year" on his 46th birthday.

Five years ago: In South Vietnam, quiet was returning to suburbs of Saigon after a series of attacks by enemy troops.

One year ago: In Moscow, President Nixon and Soviet Communist party Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev signed a declaration pledging an era of peaceful coexistence between the United States and U.S.S.R.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

A brilliant young organist, Anne Merrill Stewart, of Columbus, pupil of Dr. Wilbur Held of the Ohio State University, will repeat her graduating recital here in the First Presbyterian Church next Thursday May 31 at 8 p.m. (originally announced for Sunday, the date has been changed to Thursday).

When Anne received the message that she was invited to play in Washington C.H., her response was so delighted that it seems unusually urgent to have a good audience for such a gracious performer.

Miss Stewart has been accepted for graduate study at both the Eastman School of Music and the Yale University School of Music, and she expects to study at Yale. She has been serving as organist in the Parkview United Methodist Church in Columbus and during the past season has played recitals in Trinity Episcopal Church and the First Congregational Church, both of which have new instruments of great interest.

I'm hoping and trusting that no one will miss Thursday evening's concert. One might say it is rated G. There is no admission charge, although adults may make a contribution if they wish, to help defray some expenses.

Sometimes feet that drag when going out of an evening miraculously lighten after an encounter with fine music, a wonderful personality and mutual enjoyment. It could happen this week. Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Presbyterian Church.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

In reference to your recent picture of Rock Bridge and the resulting "Letter to the Editor" in regard to channelization.

We too enjoyed the picture of Rock Bridge; however, there are some things upstream which aren't as nice! Such things as expensive tile drainage systems with decreased efficiency that are in danger of being ruined because the outlet is now below the bottom of the silted in, grown-over streams; or fields that lay wet for days after each rain delaying farm work or drowning crops — or flooding after heavy rains!

Because many people and buildings were involved, the Corps of Engineers channelized Paint Creek in Washington C. H. and solved the city's immediate flooding problem. Farmers weren't eligible for the Corps help and still have the same problems Washington C. H. had before the Corps project was completed. Washington C. H. is still plagued with drainage problems which will have to be remedied in the future.

Watershed projects in the past were done as efficiently and cheaply as possible with no consideration for changes in the environment. Those planned today try to damage as little as possible and replace as much as possible that which is damaged.

In the future we must have essential drainage and flood control. We could have this and still retain many trees, ledges, pools and other so called natural features if everyone would help and cooperate in the planning rather than put so much effort in fighting watershed work!

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

We wish to take this opportunity to thank people publicly for the support given the youth programs of the Senior Hi-Y Club at Washington Senior High.

The support of community members for our Christmas Tree drive and clothing drive was very generous. The response of churches, within the city, as our club attended various religious services, was cooperative and inviting. The Youth In Government Program of the club would not have been possible without the advice and assistance of Judge Coffman, Judge Marchant, and attorneys John Bryan, Robert Simpson, Gary Smith and Dennis Ulrich. While in Columbus for the model legislative and judicial sessions, the youth attorneys of our club were complimented by Ohio Attorney General William Brown and his staff for their excellent preparation and presentations, which reflects the work of the above-mentioned advisers.

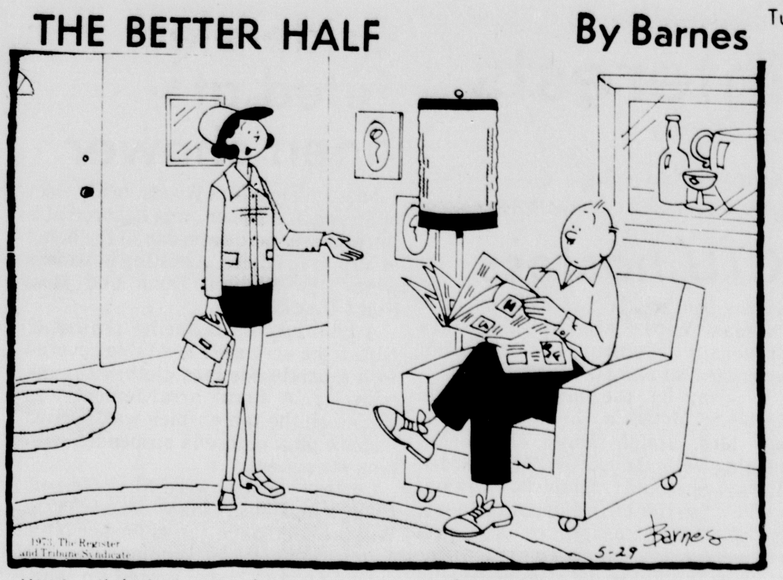

Additionally, several community organizations have given both moral and financial support to the work of the Hi-Y: The Lions Club, Kiwanis, Belle Aire PTA, The Twenty Club and the American Legion Auxiliary.

Finally, we thank The Record-Herald for news coverage of the club's activities.

A major aspect of community growth and solidarity is the support and encouragement given to the youth.

Help for criminal offenders eyed

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Help for the mentally disturbed criminal offender is the goal of a newly created system of clinics the state has set up with federal assistance.

The newest of five clinics opens in Cincinnati this month.

The Hamilton County Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board will operate it.

The state provided about $33,000 for the forensic psychiatric facility to go with a grant of $46,000 from the federal government under the Safe Streets Act of 1968.

Similar earlier grants made possible the establishment of clinics in Dayton, Springfield, Columbus, and Toledo. No more are planned in the immediate future officials said, because the latest grant is the final one available under the act.

Dr. Kenneth Gaver, director of the Ohio Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, said the community-based facilities are "part of the department's overall effort to treat the offender on the local level rather than in large state institutions." He called it the same approach that is being taken in other mental health and retardation programs.

Gaver said the centers will provide out-patient treatment and will not involve any type of confinement, although the Cincinnati clinic will provide emergency psychiatric services for the Hamilton County jail.

Dr. Lowell Cunningham, commissioner of the Division of Forensic Psychiatric, said, "We will have the opportunity to see the patient when he first enters our system.

"This gives us a chance to observe him before he appears in the courts for decisions on what should be done. It provides the courts with evaluation reports on the patient."

Cunningham said the clinics will provide "continuity of care" for patients visited during their confinement and added: "We will be able to treat the offender after he is paroled and returned to the community.

Under the plan, local health boards will work closely with the forensic psychiatry division. Education programs will be conducted to train probation officers of the cities and common pleas court how to better deal with probationers.

Mystery illness said hysteria

BERRY, Ala. (AP) — A mysterious illness that afflicted more than 80 pupils and teachers at an elementary school in this northwest Alabama town has been diagnosed as a case of mass hysteria.

That was the conclusion reached by a state health officer Friday after a two-week investigation of the incident. A psychiatrist who has lived among the residents most of her life agreed that the illness was imagined and not real.

Dr. Inez Fowler, the psychiatrist, said those who had the illness, characterized by an itching rash, dizziness and nausea, were not actually sick — they just thought they were.

The first self-powered, trackless, wheeled-vehicle in the nation is believed to have been adapted from a Newark, Ohio, steam traction engine in 1858 by Joseph McCune, a Jefferson County farmer.

DCCW entertains graduates

The Diocese of Catholic Church Women of St. Colman's Catholic Church entertained the graduates of the church after Communion Mass on Sunday at breakfast in the Sulky Restaurant.

Mrs. Charles Wright, president of DCCW, welcomed the guests. The Rev. Richard J. Connelly spoke to the graduates and had each one introduce himself and tell of his or her future plans. Msgr. Leonard Fick gave a brief talk on the value of knowledge.

Those present were Kathy Binzel, Jeanne Gad, Diane Kimmet, Colleen Langen, Shirley Mayer, Margaret and Marilyn O'Flynn, Patty Smith, Babs Moore, Lee Black, Tim Calentine, John Johnson, Bobby Lutz, Don Mayer, Pat Sullivan, Tom Rodgers and Kenneth Pettit.

Also Msgr. Fick, Father Connelly, Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Mark O'Flynn and Mrs. Raldon Smith.

Mrs. Ellis DAR hostess

The Martha Washington Committee on Indian Affairs, Washington C. H. Daughters of the American Revolution, held a carry-in dinner at the home of Mrs. Charles Ellis Monday evening.

A brief business meeting conducted by Mrs. Cecil Van Zant, followed the dinner. Members discussed the tour to the Johnson Farm near Greenville on June 7. Members will take a canal boat ride on this tour.

There were 12 persons present for the dinner.

Art showing opens Thursday at Fayette Center

MRS. LUISA OWEN

Mrs. Luisa Owen of Yellow Springs will have a showing of stitchery and drawings in the Fayette Center Gallery at the Fayette County Bank beginning Thursday. The show will run through July 19.

Mrs. Owen was born in Yugoslavia, but her mother was an American citizen. Having spent three years in a concentration camp until she was 12 years old, she lived in a coal mine with her mother, who was forced to work at hard labor in the mine. They came to the United States when Mrs. Owens was 16 and she enrolled in a high school in Cincinnati, where she was later winner of an art scholarship to the Cincinnati Art Institute. She also attended Wright State University, Dayton, where she is presently an art instructor.

She will be a judge at the Fayette County Fair in the Fine Arts section.

Cleveland was the first city in the nation to use electric traffic signals, which were erected at the intersection of Euclid Avenue and East 105th Street.

Mrs. Custer WCTU hostess

Mrs. Paris Custer extended hospitality to the Washington C.H. Women's Temperance Union at her home Friday afternoon. Mrs. Florence Inskeep brought devotions, and used for her theme "Hidden Talent." "If one has a task to do, he should not hide his talent," she said. She read a poem by Helen Steiner Rice and closed with prayer.

Mrs. Cloyce Copley conducted the meeting and reports were heard. Mrs. Hugh Smith presented the program. She read "Little Things in Life," and Miss Marian Christopher read an article, "This is My Country." She also announced that a liquor ad appeared in a recent issue of Reader's Digest. Members were urged to write a letter of protest.

Mrs. J.G. Jordan read that a stiffer penalty is to be placed in effect for drunken driving. The fine will be from $500 to $2,500, and when a total of 24 points is reached, drivers' licenses will be suspended for six months. A recent article in a Columbus newspaper stated that slightly more than half of the highway fatalities are due to drunken drivers. An article was read by Mrs. Thomas Willis about Ohio State University permitting alcohol beverages on campus.

A poem by the late Mr. Frank Grubbs, "Mother's Day," was read, and Mrs. Ralph Hays closed the meeting with the poem "My Garden Hints." She read: "Plant five rows of peas: patience, preparedness, promptness, perseverance and perceptiveness. Plant four rows of lettuce: let us be faithful to duty, let us be true to our obligations, let us be unselfish, and let us obey rules and love one another. Plant four rows of squash; squash petty jealousies, gossip, criticism and indifference. No garden is complete without turnips: turn up for meetings, turn up with new ideas, and turn up with a determination to make everything count for everything good and worthwhile."

A dessert course was served by Mrs. Inskeep and Mrs. B.E. Kelley. Mrs. Hays will entertain the Union on June 29 and will be assisted by Mrs. Ora Finley and Mrs. Dean Torbett. Mrs. Kelley will bring devotions and the program.

Attend swim show

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Cowdery accompanied by Miss Lucy Randolph, CCC-E, recently attended the Synchronized Swim Show in the Upper Arlington Natatorium presented by the Columbus Coralina Swim Club. The show featured state and regional AAUW championship team of which Mr. and Mrs. Cowdery's granddaughter, Miss Jill Vincent, is a member. She also swam her solo routine which won her the 13 and 14-year-old age group title and regional championship.

The show was presented in celebration of the team placing ninth in the recent AAUW synchronized swim competition held in Hershey, Pa.

This is the first time any team from Ohio has placed in the top 10 nationally. They will compete in further national competition in Cypress Gardens, Fla., in July, and later in San Francisco, Calif.

Dance held at Country Club

Forty couples danced to the music of Luther Bolen and his band Saturday evening at the Washington Country Club. Decorations were of a patriotic theme in red, white and blue.

Mr. and Mrs. Burnham Light were co-chairmen, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thrailkill and Mr. and Mrs. Darryl Stewart.

A potluck dinner for members and their guests was held Monday evening at the country club.

PERSONALS

Mrs. Vada Moats, 926 S. Fayette St., has returned home after spending several days with her son and daughter-in-law and family, Mr. and Mrs. James Moats, in Madison, W. Va. While there, they celebrated the ninth birthday of her grandson, Doug Moats.

Miss Anne Stewart of Columbus was a luncheon guest Monday noon in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Case. Miss Stewart, organist at Parkview United Methodist Church in Columbus, will be guest recitalist in First Presbyterian Church here at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Some brides prefer having their receptions at home surrounded by everything that is familiar, but this does require more planning.

All girls playing softball this year are reminded to attend a meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday at Eyman Park. This meeting is planned for girls, coaches and managers. Members may call 335-7433 if unable to attend.

Youth Activities

GIRL SCOUT TROOP 612

The meeting of Girl Scout Troop 612 opened with a flag ceremony. Carla Barnett, Lisa Winters, Terri Williams, Michelle Knisley, Sandy Stone and Kim Irons participated. We went to Eyman Park to clean it up for Saturday, May 19. We are going to have a party for the Brownies that are flying up from 1 to 3 p.m. May 19.

Present were Carla Barnett, Paula Cummings, Lisa Winters, Debbie Kingery, Janet Winterbotham, Michelle Knisley, Tammy and Sandy Stone, Terri Williams, Cindy Rudd and Kim Irons.

Those absent were Beth Van Meter, Julia Armentrout, Nancy Lemke, and Beverly Starr. Terri Williams forgot to bring refreshments.

Bride-elect feted at linen shower

Miss Patricia Ann Woods, bride-elect of Steven J. Johnson, was honored at a linen shower held Saturday in the home of Mrs. O.C. Kibler. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. William Dunn and Mrs. Pearl Breakfield.

A pink and white theme prevailed. Gifts were arranged on a table covered with a handmade lace cloth with pink underlay. A floral arrangement was placed on the table which was located under a pink umbrella suspended with pink streamers.

Contest winners were Mrs. Herbert Hoppes and Miss Nancy Woods. Miss Woods thanked the guests for her gifts.

Refreshments, in keeping with the color scheme, were served to Mrs. Lowell Woods, mother of the bride-elect; Miss Nancy Woods, Mrs. William Johnson, mother of the prospective groom; Mrs. Brance Johnson, Mrs. Donald Bowdle, Mrs. James Braun, Mrs. Harry Penwell, Mrs. Donald Hidy, Mrs. Earl Russell, Mrs. Earl Rea, Miss Peggy Breakfield, Mrs. Lee Reisinger, Miss Linda Reisinger, Mrs. Howard Barney, Mrs. Jerry Hoppes, Mrs. Frank Holdren, Mrs. Everett Baird, Mrs. Lawrence Hoppes, Mrs. Herbert Hoppes, Mrs. Kibler, Mrs. Breakfield and Mrs. Dunn.

Coulters host class meeting

Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Coulter were hosts at a hamburger fry and potluck dinner when members of the Good Fellowship Class of First Christian Church assembled at their home Monday.

There were 16 members and one guest, Mrs. Gloria Karnatz, present. Mrs. Coulter presented devotions using "Prayer" for her topic. She also read from Dr. Norman Vincent Peale's writings. The group sang two hymns, and a brief business meeting was conducted by Kenneth Blair. Organ music was provided for entertainment.

Crusaders Class to meet Saturday

The Christian Crusaders Class of South Side Church of Christ will meet in Fellowship Hall at 6:30 p.m. Saturday. A covered dish dinner will be held preceding the meeting.

Hostesses for the evening will be Mrs. Frank Coulter, Mrs. Alice Beedy and Mrs. Margaret Emrick. Frank Coulter will present devotions and there will be surprise entertainment.

The first rubberized, asphaltic concrete pavement was laid in Akron on Sept. 7, 1948.

MONEY DOES MATTER . . .
By J. W. Wallace
SPENDING TOO MUCH FOR FOOD? A FEW HELPFUL TIPS . . .

If, for food, you are spending more than 30 per cent of your gross income after payroll deductions and all Federal and State income taxes (this is called "spendable income") then you are probably spending too much. It would seem that more care is needed in planning your food expenditures.

Could you possibly buy larger and more economical amounts, make better use of left-overs, take more advantage of specials, watch for coupons, refund "deals", and avoid impulse buying?

Do you carefully plan and prepare a shopping list in advance and make sure that the check-out girl rings up the right price for each item?

And, watch the packaging! Check weights against prices. Very often the largest package isn't the best buy.

Take a little more time, shop carefully, and perhaps you, too, can keep within the safer 22 to 29 per cent range for food purchases.

Congratulations to -

Brian Storm and Bob Osborn on being awarded top honors at the annual Blue Lions track banquet.

H. B. Dixon on being elected commander of the Paul H. Hughey, Post 25, American Legion, for the coming year.

Donald Bennett upon being presented Defiance College's highest award, the Pilgrim Medal, at the recent commencement exercises.

Walter Newton upon receiving the "Knight of the Year" award and Lee Black on being recognized as the "outstanding Catholic student of the year" presented by the Knights of Columbus, Colman Council 5386.

Allen Burrall, Gerald Reid, Gardner Cobb, Emily Beal, Mike Domenico and Stephen Hill, upon being honored by the Washington C. H. Rotary Club as the outstanding students from Washington Senior High School and Miami Trace High School.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The NBC Television network, which gave us the "Today" show in 1952 and "Tonight" in 1954, plans "Tomorrow," a late-hour interview show, starting this fall.

The host of the one-hour program will be Tom Snyder, a Milwaukee, Wis., native. He's been the 6 p.m. news anchorman since 1970 at KNBC-TV, a Los Angeles area station owned by NBC.

"Tomorrow" is aimed at earlier risers or night owls, depending on one's point of view. It'll start at 1 a.m. Tuesday through Friday right after the Monday-through Thursday "Tonight" shows.

"Tomorrow" is described by NBC as a "sophisticated talk show" that will tackle controversial, adult subjects. Snyder will discuss these subjects with one or more experts and various personalities.

Some of the shows will cover the lighter side of life, according to NBC, which says "Tomorrow" will be taped without an audience at the network's studios in Burbank, Calif.

The idea for the show was developed by Mort Werner, NBC's senior vice president for program planning and one of the developers of the successful "Today" and "Tonight" shows.

When the show begins, probably in October, it will mark the first time a network has regularly scheduled broadcasting past 1 a.m. on weekdays, although NBC has been starting its "Midnight Special" pop music show at 1 a.m. every Saturday since Feb. 3 this year.

"Tomorrow" will end only five hours before the "Today" show begins and could lead to even more network programming in the predawn hours on weekdays.

As Werner put it, "who knows what's going to happen from 2 to 3 a.m. if we're successful from 1 to 2?"

Changes also are afoot at the CBS Television network. But they involve a change of anchormen on the CBS Morning News, a program we always have considered a good, well-edited hour of news.

CBS says John Hart, anchorman of the show since August 1970, and his Washington-based co-anchorman, Nelson Benton, are being reassigned. The change is expected by midsummer at the latest.

They'll be replaced by another two-member anchor team, one of whom will be a woman. Their names are expected to be announced in several weeks, a CBS spokesman said.

Richard S. Salant, CBS News president, reported the change earlier this month to a CBS affiliates meeting in Los Angeles. He said the decision to change was hard to make, but that "our support was eroding." He said in an interview later he meant that a number of CBS affiliates now either aren't carrying the show — which appears opposite the first hour of NBC's "Today" — or are broadcasting only 30 minutes of it.

Eye asylum for Soviet jet pilot

BONN, Germany (AP) — The West German government today is considering an application for asylum from a young Soviet pilot who parachuted from his plane moments before it crashed.

A spokesman said the government was investigating the motives of Lt. Yevgeny Lvoich, 21, who asked for asylum after his SU7 fighter crashed Sunday about 23 miles inside West Germany near Brunswick.

Asylum is granted routinely to run-of-the-mill defectors. But Lvoich is the first Soviet pilot known to have defected since 1967, when the pilot of a MIG17 made a wheels-up landing in a Bavarian meadow and asked for asylum in the United States.

Authorities were investigating whether Lvoich crossed the border with the intention of defecting or if the request was prompted by the crash.

Lvoich agreed to meet today with a Soviet diplomat in the presence of a West German official.

Sex scandal still boiling in Britain

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath's government continued to insist today that no more of its ministers are involved in a sex scandal despite newspaper reports to the contrary.

Two government ministers resigned last week because Scotland Yard found out they had been consorting with call girls. But the government on Monday night denied a report in two Sunday papers that a third minister—and possibly a fourth—had been mixed up with call girls.

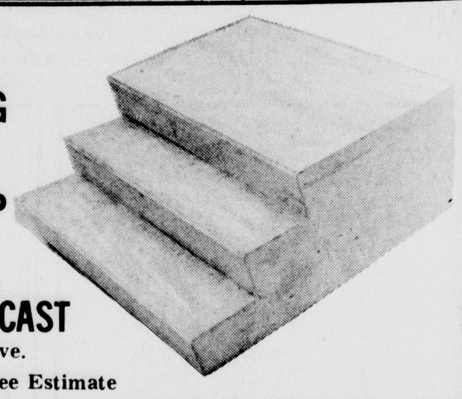

One of the papers, The People, said call girl Norma Levy had given it the name of the third man and said he visited her three times at $125 a visit. She reportedly said she couldn't be positive about the fourth man until she saw a picture of him. Mrs. Levy was reported to have taken refuge in Morocco, which has no extradition treaty with Britain.

The names of the men were not disclosed, but the paper said it passed them along to the government.

Heath flew to West Germany Monday for a brief vacation, but his office announced Monday night that Scotland Yard's investigations had produced "no evidence of any kind" to support the allegations that more members of the government might be involved.

Government sources reported Heath had called in the third man named by Mrs. Levy and the minister categorically denied that he had been one of her customers.

Nixon invites congressmen to foreign policy briefing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Back in Washington for a day, President Nixon invited key Congress members of both parties to a White House foreign policy briefing session today.

Nixon, who returned to the capital Monday night after spending Memorial Day weekend in Florida and the Bahamas, will be leaving town again Wednesday for summit talks in Iceland with French President Georges Pompidou.

The President arranged to have Henry A. Kissinger, his special assistant for national security affairs, brief the congressional delegation on the Pompidou talks and on Kissinger's recent conversations in Paris with North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers, who returned Monday night from a 17-day tour of eight hemisphere countries, also scheduled a briefing for the senators and House members following a private session with Nixon.

The briefings were announced by Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren, who was the only White House spokesman available to reporters during the President's weekend trip.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler was reported to have flown back to Washington with Nixon on Air Force One, but newsmen on the plane did not see him aboard nor did they see him leave the craft upon its arrival here.

Rogers also was scheduled to travel to Iceland with the President.

Claim FBI has impeded jury probe

LOS ANGELES (AP) — FBI agents have impeded a Los Angeles County grand jury probe of the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

But a Justice Department official, Kevin Maroney, told the paper that a problem regarding FBI agents' telling witnesses not to submit to questioning by investigators has been resolved.

Marine Corps Commandant Robert E. Cushman Jr. is scheduled to begin testimony today before the grand jury. He was the deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency at the time of the break-in.

Cushman was to testify before the probe officially begins because of prior Marine Corps commitments.

Maroney said: "There was some misunderstanding, but it is straightened out now. Any witness who was under the impression that the FBI did not want them talking to other investigators has now been told otherwise."

The grand jury is to begin officially an investigation June 5 on the break-in at the Beverly Hills office of Dr. Lewis J. Fielding, Ellsberg's psychiatrist. Testimony at Ellsberg's Pentagon papers trial disclosed that men hired by a White House security unit had broken into the offices in September 1971 in an unsuccessful effort to secure Ellsberg's records.

A federal court judge several weeks ago dismissed charges of espionage, conspiracy and theft against Ellsberg and codefendant Anthony Russo for copying the top secret Pentagon study of the Vietnam war.

Appellate judge dies

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Judge W. Wallace Kent, 57, of the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati died Sunday of a heart attack. He was appointed to a seat on the Western Michigan federal district bench in 1954 and was named to the appeals court in January 1971.

The first concrete street in America — measuring 10 feet by 220 feet — was built in Bellefontaine, Ohio, in 1892.

Organist to present recital Thursday

Miss Anne Merrill Stewart, a senior organ student at Ohio State University, will present a recital at 8 p.m. Thursday in the First Presbyterian Church sanctuary. The presentation will be the Washington Organ Club's final concert of the 1972-73 season.

There will be no admission charge for this concert, although a free-will offering will be taken to help defray the expense of the concert.

Miss Stewart has been a member of David Craighead's master class in organ at Kettering and has been a member of Mirrors and Chimes women's honoraries while attending Ohio State University. She will graduate from Ohio State this quarter, and has been accepted by the Eastmen and Yale Colleges of Music. She plans to spend this summer in Cuernavaca, Mexico, and will attend Yale University's College of Music in the fall.

THE RECITAL will be presented on the recently enlarged organ in First Presbyterian Church and will include selections presented by Miss Stewart in her recital for her Bachelor of Music degree. Her graduating recital was presented May 21 in North Broadway United Methodist Church, Columbus.

Immediately following the presentation here, the Organ Club will hold its regular meeting which was postponed in April. The meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Earl Hartley and will be the last meeting of the season. Officers will be elected.

The organ club has presented two classical and three popular programs this season and is attempting to renovate and enlarge the pipe organ in Washington Junior High School. Reports on the progress and future plans will be the main discussion items at the business meeting. New and associate memberships will be presented.

Postcard arrives 59 years late

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A postcard mailed from Cincinnati to Durant, Iowa, finally found its destination—59 years later.

The postcard, sent June 18, 1914, was mailed by Dr. James Irvin to his wife. Both are now dead.

A postmaster said the card was spotted when it carried insufficient postage, a one cent stamp. The same card costs six cents today.

Indiana students learn practical arts

By MARMIE TUERFF
Fort Wayne News-Sentinel

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — Four years ago while an undergraduate at Ball State University, Muncie, Ind., Nora Bennon took a course on woods, metals and plastics, just "for kicks."

Today, however, she's teaching practical arts, a combination shop and art class, to seventh grade students at Jefferson Junior High School here.

Miss Bennon admits she had to brush up on types of tools used in shop work and on the methods of construction. But she boasts her students passed a test about shop tools that some male teachers failed.

She has uesed her artistic talents to make posters explaining the rules of safety and different use of tools.

Both boys and girls are enrolled in the once all-male, nine-week course on basics of woodwork, implements and industrial trades.

"We learned together," Miss Bennon said. "As the students told me their interests, I got the books out to answer their questions."

EACH STUDENT has a project to complete during the nine weeks. "It's up to the student what he wants to do." Some are working with wood and others metal.

The projects range from a zodiac sign to a "World's Greatest Mother" plaque.

Asked if discipline has been a problem, Miss Bennon said "No, partially because some of the students have a crush on me and that makes them work harder."

"I never begin class until they've all taken a seat. Once it took them 20 minutes to quiet down. It didn't happen again. Then they knew I wasn't bluffing."

In addition to the shop class, the young teacher holds art club two evenings a week, sketches in watercolor and ink and weaves with paper, leather, metal and yarn.

A display of jewelry she has designed and made has been on public view in the Fort Wayne area.

Boating accidents strike suddenly and viciously. The division of watercraft of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources says it's a good idea to have distress flares in boats in case of an emergency. Six red hand flares and six smoke flares stowed in a watertight container make a good emergency kit.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Policeman's Blunder

Officer Harrison halted a speeding motorist and gave him a ticket. But he failed to notice that the man was intociated.

Scarcely five minutes later, the same motorist drove his car through a red traffic light and knocked down a woman pedestrian.

Could the woman hold the city legally liable for the accident because of the officer's blunder:

"The city is supposed to provide police protection," she argued in a court hearing. "That's what we pay taxes for. If the officer hadn't let that drunken driver get away, I would never have gotten hurt."

But the court disagreed, saying the law simply does not recognize this kind of a claim.

It is true that all members of the community are entitled to reasonable police protection. But this is a general, not a specific, right.

It does not mean that each victim of a crime, if he can point to some police error, can collect damages from the city government.

THE REASONING is mainly pragmatic. Courts fear that if such claims were allowed, the financial burden on cities would be staggering.

Nevertheless, under certain circumstances, a person may indeed have a special right to police protection.

Consider the problem of the person who is an informer or a material witness in a forthcoming trial. If he is in danger, the city is likely to be held responsible for his safety.

"Otherwise," said one court, "it might become difficult to convince the citizen to cooperate with law enforcement officers."

In one unusual case, the family of a suicide victim tried to blame the city because the police had missed a chance to prevent the tragedy. They said officers had come out to investigate a family quarrel, then left with things still unsettled.

But the city was exonerated. The court said even if the officers should have stayed longer, they still could not fairly have foreseen that the man would take his own life.

Russian roulette fatal to youth

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—An 18-year-old Liberty youth, R. Robert Pike, was killed Sunday while involved in Russian Roulette at a party, police said.

Witnesses told police Pike had brought a pistol to the party and was talking about Russian Roulette when he put the gun to his head and pulled the trigger.

The incident continues under investigation.

Penney reports rising income

SEATTLE, Wash. — The J.C. Penney Company, Inc. reports a 23.9 per cent increase in net income for the first quarter over the same 1972 period. The company had net earnings of $24.5 million for the 13 weeks ended April 28 against $19.8 million last year. This amounted to net income per share of 43 cents compared with 35 cents in 1972.

As previously reported, the department store and catalog chain's sales for the quarter rose 17.5 per cent to a record $1,299.6 million from $1,106.0 million, an increase of $193.6 million.

Discussing the first-quarter performance at the annual stockholders' meeting here, Chairman William M. Batten noted that the same factors which influenced 1972 results figured prominently in the quarter-leverage from a strong sales gain and effective expense control.

He attributed the volume increase to a high level of consumer spending coupled with a strong Penney promotional program and generally favorable weather which gave added impetus to buying for the late Easter.

Turning to the remainder of the year, Batten said that the company anticipates a "relatively good second quarter. The apprehension of a number of economists and the downturn in consumer confidence reflected in surveys lead us to be somewhat more cautious about the latter half of the year. But, on balance, we expect 1973 to be another record year for the Penney Company."

BANK AFFILIATION

IRONTON — Announcement has been made that the board of directors of The Citizens National Bank of Ironton has voted in favor of a proposal to affiliate with BancOhio Corp., a statewide banking organization headquartered in Columbus.

George M. Wileman, DDS, acting president of Citizens National Bank, and Philip F. Searle, president and chief executive officer of BancOhio, said that the affiliation proposal provides for a cash purchase by BancOhio of the shares of Citizens National Bank. Terms of the agreement were not available at the time of announcement.

DENNIS COACHMEN DEALER

WILMINGTON — Dave Dennis Volkswagen, Inc., of Wilmington, has been selected as the factory authorized dealer for Coachmen Industries, Inc., Middlebury, Ind., one of the nation's largest manufacturers of recreational vehicles and related products.

The firm will sell Coachmen's complete seven-model line of motor homes.

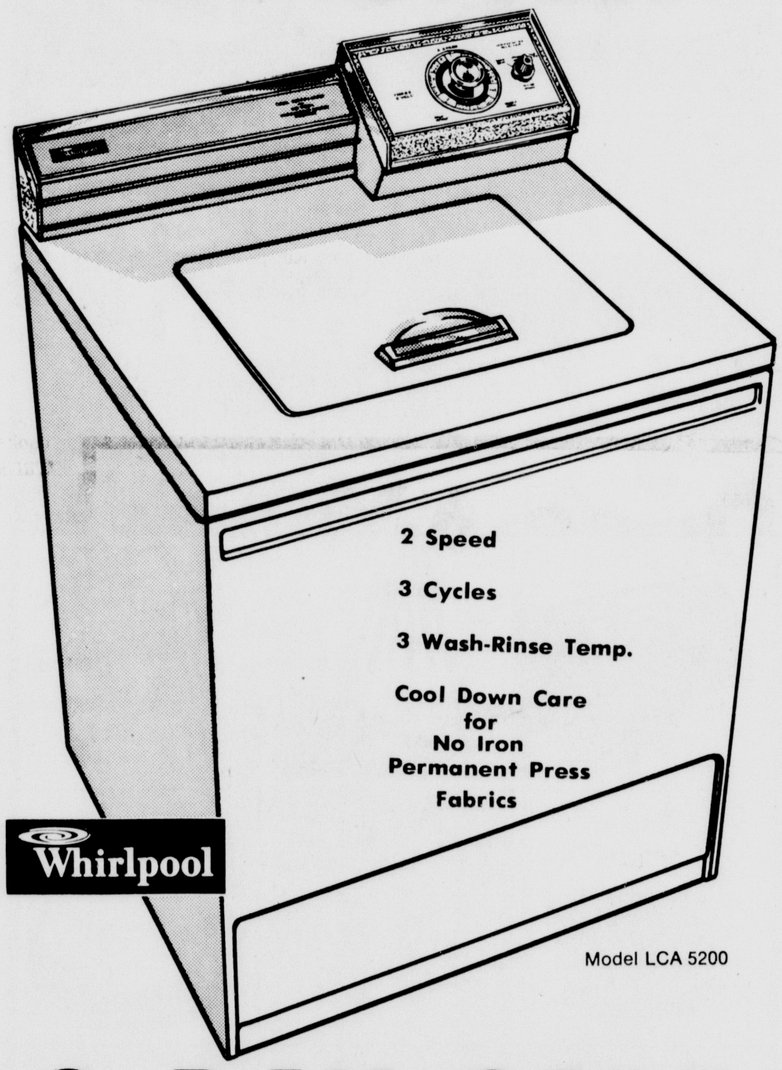

Dave Dennis, president of the new Coachmen recreational vehicle dealership, has owned the Volkswagen automobile agency in Wilmington for three years. He previously served as general manager of a Dayton VW dealership. Coachmen motor homes will be displayed on the three-acre Dennis Volkswagen lot, located on Star Route 3 East, Wilmington.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 30

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

Curb tendencies toward combativeness. You can be your independent self without being arrogant — and you'll gain more.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

Personal relationships under something of a cloud. As with Aries, there are tendencies toward argumentativess. Be especially tactful in situations where money is involved.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

With further thought, you now see possibilities in hitherto barren areas of achievement so, if you're in the mood to take a chance, go ahead. Success likely.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

Some difficulty in "communication" likely. Be especially careful in what you tell another "confidentially." It could boomerang.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Some unprecedented situations or unusual propositions indicated. Study well but postpone taking direct action for 48 hours.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

As with many now, you can expect some tension in personal matters. Don't lose your perspective. and, above all, ignore vague rumors. They are just that and nothing more.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Care needed in routine activities. Make no drastic changes arbitrarily, and be especially careful about details. There's a tendency to let the mind wander when it shouldn't.

SCOPRIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

A sudden flash of intuition in a romantic matter will be right on target. Follow through and recent barriers to happiness will fall.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

An idea which comes to you in the afternoon will have great financial potentials and, to enliven matters still further, an associate will show you now to carry it out successfully.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Don't be discouraged if your efforts seem unappreciated. Instead, draw attention to them — but in a subtle manner.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Travel under especially beneficent influences. In fact, some exciting circumstances attending a short trip will give you a big lift.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Your intuition still in fine working order. A good day for capitalizing on unusual ideas, experimenting generally.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a brilliant mind, a lively imagination and a warm and outgoing personality. You are highly idealistic and unusually sensitive. Try to curb the latter trait, since you could suffer unnecessarily over fancied slights. Exceptionally versatile, you could succeed in many fields, by your great achievements may come through music or in the literary world — especially as writer of short stories, reporter, editor, advertising or promotional copy-writer. You could also excel on the stage or in the legal profession, where you could become an outstanding trial lawyer.

Chillicothewoman dies in Arkansas auto accident

POCAHONTAS, Ark. (AP) — A 54-year-old Ohio woman and an 18-year-old Pocahontas resident were killed in a two-car crash on U. S. 62 about six miles west of here Monday.

State police identified the victims as Mrs. Corda Collins of Chillicothe, Ohio, and Jerry T. Williams, the local resident.

Authorities said the crash occurred when a car driven by Williams crossed the centerline and struck a car driven by Donald Collins, 54, of Chillicothe.

Officers said Collins and Greg Collins, 16, also of Chillicothe, were hospitalized at Memphis. Police said Randy Collins, 20, and Cindy Francis, 20, both of Chillicothe, were hospitalized at Pocahontas.

Lazarus rites set in Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Funeral services were to be held today for Fred Lazarus Jr., one of the nation's pioneers in retail merchandizing.

Lazarus, 88, who died Sunday, formed Federated Department Stores in 1929 and directed its growth for three decades. He was chairman of the executive committee at the time of his death.

Federated, with more than 200 stores, is the nation's largest department store chain.

He began his retailing career in Columbus, Ohio.

PET SHOP PALS — Two Siamese kittens have adopted a new mother in the form of Prissie, 2-year-old St. Bernard. The kittens' mother was stolen from pet shop at Salinas, Calif., and Prissie was on hand to take over.

Author likes to read it and tell it as it was

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Helene Hanff is an avid reader and a prolific writer. And what she prefers both to read and to write is nonfiction.

"I find the real world much more interesting than made up things," explains the author of television scripts, encyclopedia articles, speeches, magazine articles and books, the latest of which is "The Duchess of Bloomsbury Street." "I never can get interested in things that didn't happen to people who didn't live.

"I like books in the first person by someone who lived somewhere at some time, a place and time that I will never see," she continues. "I don't care if it's Sam Pepys in 1600 or someone today. I like people to tell me in a book what it's like to be someone else."

And in fair exchange she has told her readers what it's like to be Helene Hanff, a woman who so enjoys rare and old books that she once gave up the purchase of a much-needed winter coat to acquire a 14-volume edition of the Bible.

"They had beautiful heavy paper and were found in pigskin. I only had $6 left in the bank after I paid for them, but I craved those books," she recalls.

THAT SET and some 400 other books that she craved during the next 20 years she ordered from a small London bookshop, thus establishing a lively transatlantic correspondence. A few years ago she published "84, Charing Cross Road," a collection of the letters exchanged between her and the staff of Marks & Co. at that address.

"All that time I tried to get to London to see the shop and meet the people I knew so well through letters," says Miss Hanff, who had even sent them gift packages of canned meat, dried eggs and other items scarce in postwar England. "But something always happened. Once it was paying the dentist; once it was having to move to a new apartment; once it was a TV show that startled us all by going on all summer."

But thanks to an advance from the publisher of the British edition of "84," she has finally made it. And now, in answer to all the fan mail asking if she ever got to London she has written the new book, "The Duchess of Bloomsbury Street," about that trip.

HEADQUARTERED at Bloomsbury Street hotel and treated like visiting royalty, Miss Hanff at last stood in front of 84, Charing Cross Road.

"It was frustrating," she admits. "For one thing, I wasn't alone. There was a press girl, a photographer, a reporter, a sales manager, everybody staring and waiting for my reaction. It was raining and I'd just gotten in the night before. I didn't have a chance to have a reaction, really."

But London was all she had dreamed it would be. "I had always wanted to see London the way a parish priest wants to see Rome before he dies. The more I read descriptions of London the more it became a kind of obsession."

She finds that city runs at a "much slower, much gentler much more relaxed" pace than New York City and concedes that she would miss the excitement and bustle of her life here.

MISS HANFF has been a full-time writer since she came to New York from Phildelphia with a playwrighting fellowship at age 22. "I wrote enough bad plays to paper the walls of a large museum, but nobody ever produced them," she says.

"I broke into TV and was comfortably settled when TV pulled and moved to Hollywood, where I didn't want to go. Then I started writing magazine articles and children's history books.

"I work a 9 to 5 day like everybody else," she adds. "You hit dry spells when you really climb walls, and then you start cleaning keyholes and scrubbing outside window ledges to get away from the typewriter for 10 minutes."

Oregon residents proud of progressive legislation

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Gov. Tom McCall calls Oregonians "a team of independent thinkers."

"Oregon people think for themselves, they don't wait for direction from Washington, D.C. They don't want Big Daddy to lead them," says state Sen. Ed Potts of Grants Pass.

The Republican governor and the Democratic legislator share the viewpoint that Oregon is a progressive state whose residents seek imaginative solutions to current problems.

The state, 31st in population and 10th in size among the 50 states, has enacted some laws and programs that have stimulated debate among other states, especially in the field of the environment.

Oregon, for example, is the only state that prohibits throwaway bottles for most beverages.

In the 1960s, Oregon led the nation in restricting billboards along its highways — before the federal Highway Beautification Act took effect.

Oregon was one of the first states to gain approval for its clean air implementation plan and its water discharge permit program from the federal Environmental Potection Agency.

But Oregon's critics point out that the state's history is not one of uninterrupted advancement.

The state in the 1860s repealed its ratification of the 14th Amendment and remained on record until this year as disapproving that original equal rights amendment to the Constitution.

The development of mass transportation has lagged in the 135-mile-long Willamette River Valley, where more than 60 per cent of the state's 2,000,000 residents live.

Even audiences in a state which considers itself independent are sometimes startled to hear McCall's appeal to discourage tourism and migration into his state. His theme: Oregon's great but too many people will just spoil it, so why not go elsewhere and leave our beloved state to us and our children?

The state's progressive reputation has apparently undone McCall's campaign. For in 1972, the state attracted 100,000 new residents.

Jasper PTO ends season

MILLEDGEVILLE — The last meeting of the Jasper Parent-Teacher Organization has been held at Milledgeville School. Next year's officers will be Marion Stockwell, the new president, replacing Gary Herdman, Sid Woodrow, vice president, Sondra Woodrow, secretary, and Joan Lovell, treasurer.

At the final meeting it was decided that the first and second graders will have a picnic and party, Tuesday, rather than the trip to the zoo that was considered previously.

Several maintenance projects were discussed and a committee was appointed to evaluate the need and cost of each. The proposed improvements are floor tile in the first and second grade rooms and hall, an acoustical ceiling and reflooring of the fifth and sixth grade rooms.

Miss Fichthorn's first grade class received "Benzoo the Bengal" for having the best adult representation, and at the close of the meeting the first and second graders entertained the group with songs.

The pacific Ocean, 64,186,300 square miles, is the largest in the world.

CONCORD SWINE 4-H

The meeting of the Concord Swine 4-H Club took place in the home of Keith Downing and was called to order by David Arnold, president. Mike Sollars led the pledges. Roll call was answered by members telling the breed of hogs each member has. Twenty members were present.

Melissa Mark agave a health report on "Healthy Gums." Joe Garland gave the safety report on "Driving and Riding Bicycles."

Project books were given to members. July 15 is the project tour date.

Jeff Sollars and Keith Montgomery were in charge of adjournment. The next meeting will be in the home of Lu Ann, Kelly, Mike and Mark Smith's at 8 p.m. on June 5.

The members played softball for recreation.

Keith Downing, reporter.

TO LO HO RE CA CF

Melissa Leeth opened the To-Lo-Ho-Re-Ca Camp Fire meeting by giving the Sign of the Fire answered by the girls. Tonda Smith, vice president, led the Pledge of Allegiance and Lisa Clemans read the minutes of the last meeting. Joyce Brown called the roll and collected dues and Jodi Fillmore said the prayer.

Camp money and camp bulletins were turned in. Beads were given to three girls. Girls passing another rank in trail seekers had their books marked. Positions for marching in the Memorial Day Parade were assigned and the girls practiced marching outside on the basketball court.

Refreshments were served to 14 members by Tonya Burnett. Hostesses for next weeks' meeting will be Jodi Fillmore and Angela Oyer. Assisting Mrs. Ralph Tate with the meeting was Mrs. William Pressler.

ORDINANCE NO 41-73

AN ORDINANCE TO PROVIDE FOR THE ISSUANCE OF A NOTE IN ANTICIPATION OF THE ISSUANCE OF BONDS TO PAY THE CITY'S PORTION OF THE COST OF IMPROVING, IN COOPERATION WITH THE STATE OF OHIO, ELM STREET AND TEMPLE STREET BY WIDENING AND PAVING AND BY CONSTRUCTING CURBS, GUTTERS AND STORMS SEWERS, TOGETHER WITH ALL NECESSARY APPURTENANCES, AND DECLARING AN EMERGENCY.

WHEREAS, pursuant to Ordinance Nos. 32-70, 30-71 and 39-72, passed by this Council on June 10, 1970, June 9, 1971 and June 14, 1972, respectively, notes of the City were issued for the purpose hereinafter stated, the currently outstanding note being in the principal amount of $30,000, being dated June 23, 1972, which note will mature on June 22, 1973; and

WHEREAS, this Council determines that there is on hand $10,000 available for the purpose of retiring a portion of said note at maturity and that a new note should be issued to retire the balance of the outstanding note; and

WHEREAS, the Auditor, as fiscal officer of this City, has heretofore certified to this Council that the estimated life of the improvements contemplated is at least five years, that the maximum maturity of the bonds hereinafter referred to is twenty years, and that the maximum maturity of notes to be issued in anticipation of said bonds is June 26, 1975 or one year if sold privately;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED by the Council of the City of Washington, Fayette County, Ohio:

Section 1. That it is hereby declared necessary to issue bonds of the City of Washington in the principal sum of $30,000 for the purpose of paying the City's portion of the cost of improving, in cooperation with the State of Ohio, Elm Street and Temple Street by widening and paving and by constructing curbs, gutters and storm sewers, together with all necessary appurtenances.

Section 2. That said bonds shall be dated approximately July 1, 1974, shall bear interest at the estimated rate of five and one-half per centum (5-1/2 per cent) per annum, payable semi-annually, until the principal sum is paid, and shall mature in twenty substantially equal annual installments after the issuance thereof.

Section 3. That for the purpose aforesaid and to retire the outstanding note, it is necessary to issue and this Council hereby determines that a note in the principal amount of $20,000 shall be issued.

Section 4. Such anticipatory note shall bear interest at the rate of four and one-quarter per centum (4-1/4 per cent) per annum, payable at maturity. Such note shall be dated June 22, 1973, and shall mature on or before one year from such date.

Section 5. Such note shall be executed by the City Manager and Auditor and bear the seal of the corporation. It shall be payable at the office of The Washington Savings Bank, Washington Court House, Ohio, and shall express upon its face the purpose for which it is issued and that it is issued pursuant to this ordinance.

Section 6. Subject to the rejection of said note by the Treasurer for investment in the Bond Retirement Fund, said note shall be and hereby is awarded and sold to The Washington Savings Bank, Washington Court House, Ohio, at the par value thereof; and the Treasurer is hereby authorized and directed to deliver said note, when executed, to said purchaser upon payment of such purchase price and accrued interest to the date of delivery. The proceeds of such sale, except any premium and accrued interest, shall be paid into the proper fund and used for the purpose aforesaid and for no other purpose. Any premium and accrued interest shall be transferred to the Bond Retirement Fund to be applied in the payment of the principal and interest of said note in the manner provided by law.

The City hereby covenants that it will restrict the use of the proceeds of the note in such manner and to such extent, if any, as may be necessary, after taking into account reasonable expectations at the time the debt is incurred, so that it will not constitute arbitrage bonds under Section 103(d) of the Internal Revenue Code and the regulations prescribed under that section. The fiscal officer or any other officer, including the clerk, having responsibility with respect to the issuance of this note is authorized and directed to give an appropriate certificate on behalf of the City, for inclusion in the transcript of proceedings, setting forth the facts, estimates and circumstances and reasonable expectations pertaining to said Section 103(d) and regulations thereunder.

Section 7. Said note shall be the full general obligation of the City and the full faith, credit and revenue of said City are hereby pledged for the prompt payment of the same. The par value to be received from the sale of the bonds anticipated by said note and any excess funds resulting from the issuance of said note shall to the extent necessary be used only for retirement of said note at maturity, together with interest thereon, and is hereby pledged for such purpose.

Section 8. During the year or years while such note runs there shall be levied on all the taxable property in said City, in addition to all other taxes, a direct tax annually not less than that which would have been levied if bonds had been issued therefor without the prior issue of said note. Said tax shall be and is hereby ordered computed, certified, levied, and extended upon the tax duplicate and collected by the same officers, in the same manner and at the same time that taxes for general purposes for each of said years are certified, extended and collected. Said tax shall be placed before and in preference to all other items and for the full amount thereof. The funds derived from said tax levied hereby required shall be placed in a separate and distinct fund, which, together with the interest collected on the same, shall be irrevocably pledged for the payment of the principal and interest of said note or the bonds in anticipation of which it is issued when and as the same falls due.

Section 9. It is hereby determined and recited that all acts, conditions and things necessary to be done, precedent to and in the issuing of said note in order to make it a legal, valid and binding obligation of the City of Washington, have happened, been done and performed in regular and due form and as required by law; and that no limitation of indebtedness or taxation, either statutory or constitutional, will have been exceeded in the issuance of said note.

Section 10. The Clerk is hereby directed to forward a certified copy of this ordinance to the Count Auditor.

Section 11. This ordinance is hereby declared to be an emergency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health, safety and welfare of said City and for the further reason that the immediate issuance and sale of the note herein authorized is necessary to enable the City to retire the existing note and thereby preserve its credit; wherefore, this ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and immediately after its passage.

'Lost' girl was home

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Walter A. Robb, acting chief ranger of Cleveland's Metroplitan Park system, says he has learned there actually was a young girl in the waters of Rocky River where his men spent six hours in a futile search Sunday.

But the girl was safe at home while rangers, firemen, two scuba divers and police from two suburbs searched the river near the Rockcliff Ford bridge in Rocky River Reservation.

Robb said he received a telephone call today from a member of the family of 12-year-old Misty Kuberak of Lakewood saying Misty was the girl who was seen in trouble in the river.

Robb said he was told that Misty had been wading in the water and was swept through a sluiceway at the ford. The park ranger says she managed to get out of the water by herself and went home.

Meanwhile, witnesses who saw her swept through the sluiceway had called for help.

Aussie leader to stop in U.S.

CANBERRA (AP) — Prime Minister Gough Whitlam says the relationship between Australia and the United States is so close that he doesn't have to wait for an official invitation to visit Washington.

Whitlam said today he would visit Washington on his way from Mexico to Canada to attend a conference in early August.

The Australian prime minister was asked in parliament whether he had been invited by President Nixon to the White House. There has been a marked coolness in relations between the two countries caused by Whitlam's criticism of Nixon's Vietnam bombing policy early this year.

Canadian imports rise

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada imported $794 million more goods from the United States in the first quarter of 1973 than it did in the first quarter of last year, Statistics Canada reports. Total imports were $5.24 billion, up from $4.23 billion for the 1972 period.

South Viets OK truce proposals

SAIGON (AP) — Government sources said today that the South Vietnamese government has agreed in principle to a detailed timetable for a true Vietnam cease-fire.

The agreement, worked out in Paris by Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho, calls for both Saigon and the Viet Cong to order all their units to stop shooting, the sources said.

The sources said Saigon has requested some modifications and made some counterproposals. They did not elaborate.

These sources predicted the following developments:

—Kissinger and Tho will officially announce their agreement on strengthening the original cease-fire accord at the conclusion of their next round of talks in Paris scheduled to begin June 6.

—The United States will halt all air reconnaissance missions over North Vietnam.

—Twenty-four hours after the announcement, the Saigon government and the Viet Cong will order opposing battlefield commanders to cease their fire.

—Five to 10 days later, Saigon and the Viet Cong will grant guarantees of privileges and immunities for members of the two-party Joint Military Commission. The two sides will fully deploy observers into the field to keep the peace.

—Within five to 10 days, the United States will resume operations to remove mines from North Vietnamese waters and also will resume economic talks with Hanoi.

—Within three months, zones of control will be delineated.

—Within six months, a National Council of National Reconciliation and Concord must be established and an election procedure set up to shape the political future of South Vietnam. Under terms of the original agreement signed in Paris Jan. 27, this was supposed to have been accomplished by the end of April.

—Military commanders of the opposing parties will meet to establish safety corridors through the respective zones of control.

—Respect for the demilitarized zone and a withdrawal of troops and war equipment from the buffer zone. Demobilization of forces by both sides.

—The establishment of legitimate ports of entry for the replacement of war materiels by each side on a one-for-one basis.

—The release of the remaining Vietnamese military and civilian prisoners of war.

The sources said terms of the agreement were communicated to President Nguyen Van Thieu by William H. Sullivan, Kissinger's aide in the Paris talks with Tho. Sullivan was in Saigon for three days last week.

Recover bodies of 2 brothers

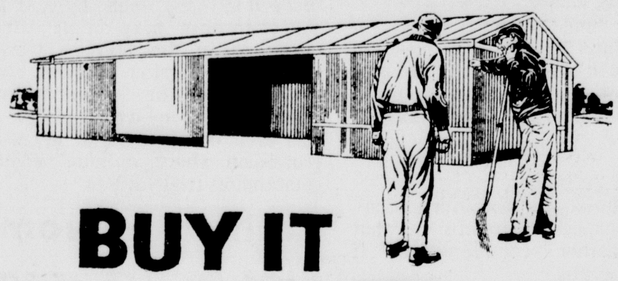

LUDLOW, Ky. (AP) — The bodies of two young brothers, reported missing Sunday, were found Monday in Ludlow Lagoon, police said.

Police identified the boys as Ricky Lancaster, 12, and Lonnie Lancaster Jr., 12, of Ludlow.

Their mother reported the boys missed Sunday night after they failed to return from an afternoon fishing trip.

WASHINGTON REPORT

From

WILLIAM H. HARSHA

Representative To Congress
6th District, Ohio

WASHINGTON — The House and Senate Conference Committee on the highway bill has been meeting daily — morning, noon and evening — for approximately two weeks to try to resolve and compromise the differences between the two versions.

There were some 75 differences in the House and Senate-passed highway bills.

During this two-week period of intense negotiation between the House and Senate, the conferees have reached agreement on approximately 74 of the major differences. The only real hangup left is the determination of how the mass transit proposal shall be funded.

In the House bill, the mass transit proposal was to be funded out of the general funds; in the Senate bill, the mass transit proposal was to be funded out of the highway trust fund.

Now, the highway trust fund has been set aside, and taxes have been charged to go into this fund by the highway users, so that there would be enough money to build and repair highways as they were needed.

There has been the charge that the highway trust fund was inaugurated and instituted and designed solely for the purposes of creating and constructing the interstate system. This is a complete misunderstanding of what the federal law provides.

According to the law, the highway trust fund shall be used first for the construction of the federal-aid highway system, and secondly, if there is money available after that, it shall be used to construct the interstate system.

The primary emphasis is on the construction of the federal-aid system which includes the primary and secondary highways that are in the national forests and public lands. Therefore, the idea that the trust fund was created solely for the construction of the interstate system is indeed a misconception.

OTHER PROPONENTS of funding mass transit out of the trust fund argue that there is a large surplus in the trust fund and that this should be used to finance mass transit. This, again, is a fallacy and a result of misinformation.

There is no surplus in the trust fund. There is a balance on a given date because highway contracts are awarded over a period of time and they are paid for as work is completed. So, while on a given date there may be a balance in the trust fund because obligations have not become due, obligations have been incurred but are paid on a monthly, six month or other periodic basis.

As a mater of fact, there are enough obligations against this trust fund to require the need of one-and-a-half times the money that is available in the trust fund. In any event, there will be less than half the amount necessary in the trust fund just to repair our highways. So, this misaprehension must be straightened out.

The proponents of mass transit also argue that mass transit will go a long way towards relieving air pollution and highway congestion, making highways more amenable to automobile traffic and moving traffic faster.

Yet, the Administration, which supports using trust fund monies for mass transit, has conducted a very exhaustive and extensive transportatiion study which ultimately reached the following conclusion: If large sums of money are diverted from the highway trust fund to mass transit, there will be no appreciable diminution of air pollution and there would be a considerable increase in highway fatalities.

So, the argument that mass transit will alleviate the air pollution problem just simply does not hold water when you base it upon the facts and upon the studies that are made by those who are knowledgeable in the field.

FURTHERMORE, I do not believe that anybody would be willing to sacrifice the lives of human beings for some highway travelers. I do not think that is the right priority.

I think that if there is any additional money to be used, it should be used first for the saving of lives and secondly for the convenience of the traveling public.

One other outstanding feature of this whole argument is the fact that mass transit has been held out as the panacea of all the ills of highway congestion.

Let me point out, however, that the very cities having mass transit facilities are the ones suffering the greatest highway congestion and the greatest air pollution.

For example, the cities of New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago have had mass transit systems in operation for a number of years. Now, if mass transit is the panacea of all these transportation ills, why is it that these cities with mass transit, have all the problems attended with highway congestion?

I do not believe they can responsibly answer that charge. As a matter of fact, many of the mass transit systems — the great bulk of them — are not even operating in the black. Most of them are operating in the red, and there is some $500 million in operating subsidies or deficiencies this year.

Three hundred and fifty million dollars of this amount comes from Boston and New York alone where there is capacity ridership on their mass transit systems.

It appears, therefore, that mass transit is not the panacea of all the ills of highway congestion; however, be that as it may, the House and Senate conferees will meet again in early June and try to work out their remaining differences so that a Federal-aid Highway Act of 1973 ultimately can be passed.

ORDINANCE NO. 40-73

AN ORDINANCE AUTHORIZING THE EMPLOYMENT OF SPECIAL COUNSEL TO PREPARE AND APPROVE PROCEEDINGS FOR THE ISSUANCE OF A PROPOSED NOTE OF THE CITY OF WASHINGTON IN ANTICIPATION OF THE ISSUANCE OF BONDS TO PAY THE CITY'S PORTION OF THE COST OF IMPROVING, IN COOPERATION WITH THE STATE OF OHIO, ELM STREET AND TEMPLE STREET BY WIDENING AND PAVING AND BY CONSTRUCTING CURBS, GUTTERS AND STORM SEWERS, TOGETHER WITH ALL NECESSARY APPURTENANCES.

BE IT ORDAINED by the Council of the City of Washington, Fayette County, State of Ohio:

Section 1. That the law firm of Squire, Sanders & Dempsey of Cleveland, Ohio, Municipal Bond Attorneys, be employed by this City as special counsel for the purpose of preparing and supervising the essential proceedings of this City for a proposed issue of a $20,000 note issued in anticipation of the issuance of bonds to pay the City's portion of the cost of improving, in cooperation with the State of Ohio, Elm Street and Temple Street by widening and paving and by constructing curbs, gutters and storm sewers, together with all necessary appurtenances and of rendering an opinion approving the legality of such note.

Section 2. That for the services so to be rendered by said law firm in connection with the issurance of said note, a fee now estimated not to exceed $180 shall be paid by the City, which sum shall be payable from the proceeds of said note and is hereby appropriated and set aside for such purpose; and the Auditor of this City is hereby authorized and directed to make appropriate certification as to the availability of such funds and to issue an appropriate order for the payment of said fee as the same shall become payable.

Section 3. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after the earliest period allowed by law.

Fear of institutional trading hits market

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A deep fear of institutional trading has spread through the securities industry, which only a few years ago scorned the individual investor and scrambled for the big block commissions.

The individual wasn't paying his way, was the common excuse for declining the odd lot business of the small investor in favor of the huge commissions paid by insurance companies and banks and pension and mutual funds.

But now the attitude of many industry leaders is 180 degrees different. They fear institutional trading will ruin the markets. They are courting individuals.

There are some interesting reasons for this. One of them is that liquidity, or the ability to smoothly match buy-sell orders, requires many investors willing to trade at various prices. When the traders are only a handful of institutions, the price spread grows and the market is convulsed. Not everyone on Wall Street was heartened, for example, by the 29.42 point leap in the Dow Jones industrial average last Thursday. Rather than seeing it as evidence of strength, they viewed it as an institutional aberration.

Too often, they say, the institutions not only own the same stocks but buy them at much the same time and sell them almost in unison. Playing games with each other, and without liquidity, they produce wide price swings.

John Whitehead, chairman of the Security Industry Association, provided some remarkable figures on concentration of ownership at a recent meeting of that brokers' organization:

"One of our largest banks," he said, "received over $1 billion in retirement and pension fund money to invest last year. It placed 65 per cent of that amount in just seven stocks, another 20 per cent into eight other stocks and the balance into less than 15 other issues."

While this may be exceptional behavior, it isn't unique. The assets of scores of institutions are concentrated in the same list of less than 50 stocks, while other, very worthwhile companies, are ignored.

These ignored companies now are highly distressed about the lack of interest in their shares, which have plummeted to the lowest price-earnings ratios — the number of times per-share earnings at which the stock sells — in many years.

For the first time in decades, some of them are seriously concerned about their ability to raise capital, or at least to raise it without incurring prohibitive costs. Some companies with "normal" P-E ratios of 12 to 18 are selling for 6 to 9.

So that is one reason: The concentration of investing power in a relative few produces extremes of price in some corporate issues and results in a vast number of other issues being all but forgotten.

But there is another aspect to this situation that some people might think represents poetic justice. It concerns the fact that on orders of more than $300,000 the rates are now negotiated rather than fixed, as they were a few years ago.

It results in this scenario, related by Whitehead:

"Broker: By the way, Mr. Institution, we think we should charge you 8 cents a share on the excess over $300,000.

"Institution: John, I only want to pay 4 cents. I never pay more than that.

"Broker: But, Mr. Institution, we had to position half the block ourselves, we got you a price only one-eighth below the last sale, and, if you'll remember, your original purchase of the stock was based on our research recommendation.

"Instituion: Well, I don't know about research. That's another department. But as I told you, John, 4 cents is all I'm going to pay. There are lots of others who will do it for that.

"Broker: Well, all right. But next time we've just got to do better. By the way, do you have any other blocks we can work on?"

Concluded Whitehead: "I say to you that this is not 'negotiation.' It is "dictation."

Others would call it rate competition. It didn't exist when the brokers were courting the institutional trade. Back then they agreed upon prices.

Story teller masters her art in novels, books for children

By EVE SHARBUTT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Marijane Meaker tells stories for a living.

She uses several names and different styles, but the fortyish blonde author says she doesn't rely on gimmicks. She regards writing as a profession, just like bricklaying.

"I like to tell stories. I don't think about changing gears to different kinds of writing audiences," said the author of suspense thrillers, children's books and a favorably reviewed novel.

A native of upstate New York, Marijane always wanted to be a writer. She went to journalism school at the University of Missouri because "I always believed you had to earn your living." But she didn't pass economics, and switched her major to English. Then she came to New York to make her fortune and promptly lost, according to her count, nine jobs in a row.

"Then I sold my first pocket book. I write mysteries because that was the only thing that got reviewed in pocket book. And I didn't use my real name because Marijane was considered good for gothic romances, but not gutsy enough for mysteries," she said.

AS VIN PACKER, she wrote "why-done-its," not who-done-its. She analyzed famous cases.

"I could never do clues or blood and guts. Suspense is my field," she added.

Always a prolific writer, Marijane says it is hard to find new fields "in my old age." But she has written a non-fiction book on suicide.

"Businessmen, writers and artists commit suicide," she said, "But not musicians or sportsstars of renown. Then I started a novel about my home town, everyone does. Then finally I wrote "Shockproof Sidney Skate," a very today look at a young man with a homosexual parent.

"I thought kids raised by homosexuals were no more hung up than other kids. I believe homosexuality is usually a reaction against a very straight upbringing. I just don't think it matters."

"Shockproof" was favorably reviewed and is now on a soft cover best seller list.

MARIJANE is also the author of three successful children's books about contemporary living.

"I got involved in that because of dope addicts in the neighborhood. I felt victimized. And a woman close by was involved in rehabilitation work, although her own daughter had obesity problems and was getting fatter and fatter. It was putting out the fire in the house across the street, symptomatic of America," she said.

"I've always thought as a journalist. I write about the subleties of money and women. I've never written a good sex scene. I always steal from other writers. Other people are more talented in that area."

Marijane writes four hours a day, in the afternoon.

"I've always been disappointed that I couldn't get up in the morning but I've always been insomniac. I listen to all-night radio and then can't get up in the morning. And when I'm not writing, I read," she said, "just like the busman's holiday."

She reads everything from seed catalogues to novels to the suspense novels of Georges Simenon "because his one sentence paragraphs interest me.

"It's hard to find interesting novels, very hard. Someone once said all writers were alcoholics and hypochondriacs and perhaps it's so."

SHE SAID her conservative parents were upset about the language in her novel "Shockproof." "They hated it because they don't like dirty words," she said. "They don't mind violence in the mysteries."

Now that the author is pretty much a success in several fields, she only wants to write novels. "And I'm only just learning to write them," she added.

"We're so oversaturated with sex that I think the new area for writers to study is lifestyles. But I'll always add a bit of social awareness. I still think as a journalist, and I'll do what I want to do."

Storm nabs two state track titles

Blue Lion ace selected top Class AA trackster in Ohio

BY MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald Sports Editor

You know, of course, that all high school athletes live with their little fantasies. The ultimate dream of every schoolboy is to become a state champion.

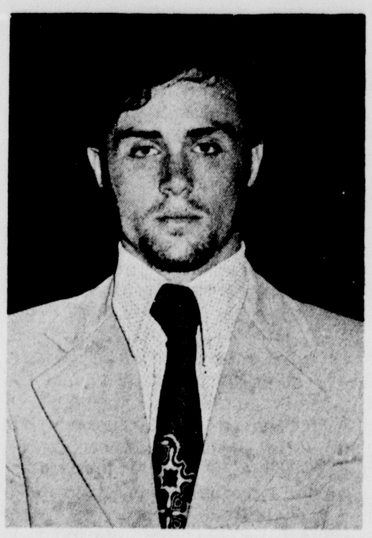

Brian Storm attained that elusive goal, and thus, became the greatest trackster in Washington C. H.'s history with an incredible performance in the 66th annual Ohio High School Athletic Association's state schoolboy track meet held Saturday afternoon at Ohio State University in Columbus.

Besides winning not one, but two individual state championships, Storm was named one of three outstanding individual performers in the state meet.

The Washington C. H.'s speedster captured titles in the 100 and 220-yard dashes to pace second-year coach John Armstrong's Blue Lion track team to a respectable fifth-place finish in the state.

Storm matched Ohio's Class AA 100-yard dash record with a sizzling 9.7 clocking to win that event. The senior whiz would have eclipsed the state record if he had not stumbled coming out of the starting blocks.

Despite the unfortunate start, Storm, who was five yards behind the pack at the 50-yard line, won the event in a record-matching time. He joins Eric Penick, of Gates Mills Gilmour, and Glen Harkrader, of Middletown Fenwick, in the state 100-yard dash record book. Both Penick and Harkrader ran the 100-yard dash in 9.7 during the 1971 state track meet.

BRIAN STORM

In winning the 100-yard dash, Storm defeated Larry Jackson, of Columbus Mifflin, the defending state 100-yard dash champion, a trackster Storm has had a personal rivalry with for two years. Dave Paul, of Brookville, was second in the 100-yard dash in 9.7 and Jackson was clocked at 9.9 along with three other performers.

Storm, a two-time South Central Ohio League track champ, was clocked at 22.3 in the 220-yard dash event, again topping both Paul and Jackson.

The two clockings turned in by Storm also shattered Washington C. H. school records, set by the Blue Lion star when he finished third a year ago in the state track meet.

The two victories earned Storm the most valuable Class AA state athlete award. Bob Hennings, of Cleveland Collinwood in Class AAA and Otis Jenkins, of Lorain Clearview, in Class A were also named outstanding individual performers by sportswriters.

Ironically, Hennings and Jenkins, like Storm, swept the 100 and 220-yard dash titles in their respective divisions.

On the basis of his brilliant performance, Storm received an invitation to participate in the annual Ohio Classic track meet which will be held at Mansfield Saturday. Storm will compete in the 100-yard dash at the Ohio Classic along with other top sprinters in the state. Only top Ohio high school coaches and athletes are invited to participate.

Washington C. H., behind Storm's outstanding performances, missed landing a fourth place state berth by only one point.

Brookville, a Montgomery County school near Dayton, captured its first Class AA championship with 33 points to 25 for second place Warren LaBrae. Louisville Aquinas, the pre-meet favorite in the Class AA realm, wound up third with 23 points. Blanchester was fourth with 21 points and then Washington C. H. (20), Warrensville Heights and Dayton Jefferson (18), Cadiz (17) and Circleville (16).

The fifth place finish sent Washington C. H. to its first win of the season over rival Circleville, the four-time South Central Ohio League track king.

Storm, who nabbed Class AA sectional and district titles this year as well as being named the Blue Lions' most valuable trackster, overshadowed the performances of three other SCOL spikers who participated in the state track meet.

Tom Frericks, Circleville's senior strongboy, was second in both the shot put and discus; Jim Buck, Hillsboro's distance ace, placed third in the 880-yard run and Tim Shumaker, of Wilmington, was fourth in the Class AAA shot put.

Cleveland Glenville won the Class AAA track title for the sixth time in the last nine seasons by rolling up 42 points to runnerup Cleveland Collinwood's 34.

Lorain Clearview, which finished second in the state meet last spring, moved up to first place in the Class A branch, scoring 45 points. Clearview's total foiled a bid by Marion Pleasant to become the first school to win three state titles in one school year. Pleasant, which had won the small school football playoffs and the state basketball tournament crown, finished second with 36 points.

Jenkins, who along with Storm and Hennings were the most valuable participants, set one of the seven meet records Saturday when he ran the 220 in 22.2 and also finished second in the long jump.

No records fell in Class AAA, despite warm, sunny weather in Ohio Stadium. Three other records were shattered in Class A and three more were wiped out in Class AA.

The Class AA marks went to Don Althouse, of Paulding, with 59-5 in the shot put) Steve James, of Cortland Lakeview, with 175-7 in the discus, and Blanchester's Bill McLaughlin, who ran the half mile in 1:53.2.

The Class A records belonged to Phil Trask of Columbus Grove, who ran the 440 in 48.8; Ron Dunfee of Stewart Federal Hocking, with a two-mile time of 9:29.6, and Skip Lakia of Fairport Harbor Harding and Larry Fortner of Lorain Clearview who cleared 6-6½ in the high jump. Lakia, however, was awarded first place because of fewer misses.

Mansfield Malabar finished third in Class AAA with 24 points followed by Canton McKinley 19, Middletown 18, Brecksville 16, Bay Village 14 and Sandusky 13.

Columbus Grove took third spot in Class A with 19 points, followed by Kirtland, Cleveland-Cuyahoga Heights and Cortland Maplewood 18 and Spencerville and Frankfort Adena of Ross County 16.

TOGETHERNESS — Home plate umpire Shag Crawford gets as close as he can to San Diego Padres' catcher Fred Kendall as he calls balls and strikes during a game at Chicago.

Bourque slugs metric homer

Disputed hit cracks Cincy's 3-game skid

CINCINNATI (AP) — Stocky Pat Bourque got baseball's first metric home run Monday, but the Cincinnati Reds got the break—by inches—to end a three-game skid against the Chicago Cubs.

The slump-ridden Reds scored the disputed run in a 6-5 victory in the ninth inning when Joe Morgan laced a drive off the glove of a lunging Bourque at first base.

"That ball was six inches foul when it hit next to the bag," protested Bourque, "and it was two feet foul by the time it got to me."

Earlier the 220-pound Bourque slammed a drive over the right field fence at 330 feet or 100.58 meters. It was the first home run since Cincinnati officials announced Saturday they were introducing the metric system to baseball.

"What's the big deal about a metric homer," asked the 26- year-old Worcester, Mass., native. "Maybe it's big here in Cincinnati, but it doesn't mean that much to me."

It was the second major league homer for the Cubs' second-year player.

Morgan's game-winning single sparked rage from Cub players and coaches who stormed around umpire Augie Donatelli to argue the call.

"I almost didn't dive for it because I knew it was going foul," said Bourque. "I was just going to let it go."

But Morgan disagreed.

"I guarantee the films will show it was fair," said Morgan.

The ball bounced off Bourque's glove and when he stumbled while retrieving it in foul territory, Darrel Chaney raced home from second with the winning run that snapped the Reds' longest losing streak of the season.

The Cubs had won the first three games of the series, including a pair of back-to-back shutouts.

"The way we've been scoring runs," said Morgan, "we better get 'em any way we can."

A first-inning run on Johnny Bench's sacrifice fly ended a string of 19 scoreless innings for the Reds.

Chicago's Billy Williams hit a solo homer for the Cubs in the fifth—his sixth of the year—to give the Cubs a 5-4 lead. But the Reds tied it when second baseman Glen Beckert bobbled a grounder, allowing a runner to score from second.

San Diego move awaits NL okay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joseph Danzansky, the supermarket president, could barely constrain his enthusiasm Monday over the San Diego Padres becoming a Washington-based team. It most likely will be next season though remotely possible this season after the All-Star Game.

Danzansky, who headed the three-man group that purchased the baseball club for $12 million, told newsmen they shouldn't go overboard just yet because he said, the National League hierarchy hasn't approved the deal.

"It's not quite a celebration," Danzansky told a hastily called news conference. "That's why there are only bloody marys in stead of champagne. This is more of a prayer meeting."

DANZANSKY, who has been trying to obtain a team for the nation's capital for two years, said the sale was consumated May 5 in San Diego when he signed a three-page contract.

The deal called for a deposit, believed to be $100,000; adequate financing; stadium lease and National League approval, all to come within 45 days from the contract signing date, or by June 19.

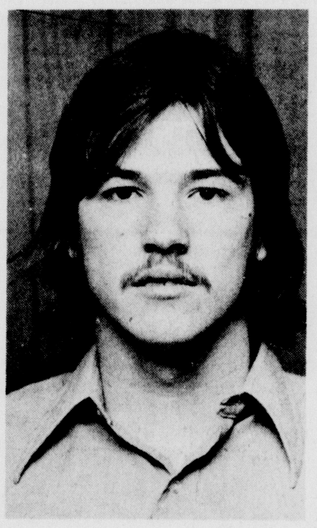

He said his group met with the Armory Board, which runs RFK Stadium, and worked out a 12-year contract calling for basically, 10 cents per head up to 1 million customers and 30 cents a head over that.

The club also will take the concession receipts for the entire 12 months except that it will pay the Armory Board 33 1-3 per cent for events other than baseball, including the Washington Redskin football games.

The last obstacle, Danzansky said, was approval by the National League, which must be unanimous vote by the owners.

Danzansky said he had asked Padres' president E.J. "Buzzie" Bavasi and his son, Peter, to join the club in Washington to "run the team on the field. They're young and they're developing. If Buzzie decides to come, the playing field is his responsibility. We'll stay out of it."

He said he would like to see the Padres move to Washington this season, if the National League would approve, but admitted chances are quite slim on that happening.

DAVE DeWEESE

DeWeese earns second letter

ADA — Dave DeWeese, a former Washington C.H. Blue Lion and South Central Ohio League track whiz, received his second varsity letter this spring as a member of Ohio Northern University's track team.

DeWeese, a sophomore pole vaulter who set Washington C.H. and SCOL records two years ago, collected 29 team points. He was one of only three Polar Bear tracksters to qualify for the Ohio Conference track championships.

The Ohio Northern pole vault ace is the son of Mr. George DeWeese, 312 Western Ave.

Ohio Northern finished eleventh in the Ohio Conference meet and ended the spring campaign with a 3-3 dual record.

Wood notches 13th victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wilbur Wood pitched a sixhitter Monday night. In two games, that is, not one.

"Wilbur Wonderful" added a pair of victories to his imposing total with his latest work of art, 6-3 and 4-0 decisions over the befuddled Cleveland Indians.

The White Sox' Left Arm went five innings in the first game, continuation of a 16-inning suspended affair from Saturday night, and gave up two hits and one unearned run. He fired a four-hitter in the regulation game to bring his record to 13-3, the best by far in the majors.

Incidentally, his 13 victories are half the White Sox' total.

In the other American League games, the Minnesota Twins defeated the Baltimore Orioles 10-3; the California Angels beat the Milwaukee Brewers 7-4; the Detroit Tigers nipped the Oakland A's 4-3 and the Kansas City Royals turned back the Boston Red Sox 5-4. Rain postponed a contest between the New York Yankees and Texas Rangers.

Jim Kaat, aided by a six-run third inning, scattered 12 hits in Minnesota's victory over Baltimore. The left-hander survived a shaky start and two homers by Bobby Grich to notch his sixth victory in eight decisions.

Steve Braun belted two bases-empty homers for the Twins, one in the fifth and another in the seventh. Also included in Minnesota's 12-hit attack was a two-run homer by George Mitterwald, a 435-foot shot into the right-field bullpen.

Harmon Killebrew's two-run triple highlighted Minnesota's game-breaking third inning.

Pinch-hitters Tom McCraw and Winton Illenas came off the bench to drive in runs in the seventh inning, rallying California over Milwaukee.

Norm Cash's two-run homer helped Detroit to a 4-0 lead and the Tigers held on to beat Oakland for Joe Coleman's ninth victory. Coleman hadn't given up a hit in the nationally televised game until a two-out double by Sal Bando.

Crash, rain delay Indy 500

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The 57th running of the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race was rescheduled for today with the pall of a fiery, wrenching crash and an ensuing torrential downpour still hanging over the ancient Speedway.

The crash came on the main straightaway only seconds after the lead cars of the 33-car field had started the rain-delayed race. It stunned the immense crowd of more than 300,000 persons who had waited for four hours.

The race was rescheduled for 10 a.m., EDT. The National Weather Service predicted a 30 per cent chance of showers.

One driver, David "Salt" Walther, 25, of Dayton, Ohio, was hospitalized by injuries received in the accident, as were nine spectators. Walther was listed in critical condition with burns on 40 per cent of his body, a broken left wrist and a possible back injury.

Dr. Thomas Hanna, head of the Speedway medical staff and in charge of the infield hospital, said most of the injured spectators suffered burns.

Drivers Mike Hiss and John Martin received minor injuries and were expected to be in the field today if their cars could be repaired in time.

Crews of the cars damaged in the wreck—which involved nine vehicles—and Speedway repair crews worked throughout the night to get both the cars and the track ready for the race.

Walther's car rammed into the wall, turned upside down and exploded into flames. The crash sent a shower of debris that dented several other cars and flew into the front rows of the crowd only about 20 feet from the track.

The crash sheared off two steel poles supporting a cable and wire mesh fence above the wall, but the cables kept the cars and bigger pieces of wreckage from going into the grandstand.

Only Walther's McLaren was ruled out of the race.

Martin and Hiss both said they felt their crews would have their Eagle automobiles ready to go. Lee Kunzman's Eagle was questionable since it sustained heavy damage, but the crew insisted it would be ready.

The race was scheduled to be a total restart, with rows of three where possible, and drivers moving up to fill the empty spaces.

There were four showers, the final one only 20 minutes after the crash.

The front row—polesitter Johnny Rutherford and former champions Bobby Unser and Mark Donohue—was not involved in the accident, nor were three other former champions, three-time winner A.J. Foyt, Mario Andretti and Al Unser.

Indy's lack of roll cages annoys Gary Bettenhausen

★★★

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — "How much longer are we going to let this go on?" fumed Gary Bettenhausen, probing the wreckage of David "Salt" Walther's 77 McLaren-Offy in the Speedway's Gasoline Alley.

"We'll keep on having serious injuries and deaths until we put roll cages on these cars. I've been fighting for them for a long time. The drivers are 90 per cent in favor of them. Still nothing is done.

"Look how many deaths we've had from cars that land upside down. I'm one of the few guys to walk away from such a wreck. But the guys are just too proud or something to go for the cages."

The 25-year-old Walther was the chief casualty in a nine-car accident Monday on the first lap of the rain-delayed—and ultimately postponed—Indianapolis 500.

His car hit the outside wall, severed two support poles, flipped over, spun and burst into flames before the startled eyes of spectators in the main grandstand.

The driver was pulled from the burning machine and flown by helicopter to nearby Methodist Hospital. He was reported in stable but serious condition from burns on 40 per cent of his body and a broken left wrist.

An hour after the flaming crash, after most of the 350,000 spectators had begun streaming out of the massive complex to await Tuesday's second try at the race, Walther's garage on the north end of the alley was as grim as a wake.

Inside, in a funeral atmosphere, a concerned Bettenhausen, whose own father had crashed and died on the old brick and concrete oval, and Walther's chief mechanic, Tom Smith, probed the wreckage of "No. 77" with the care of a surgeon.

Roll cages—the need for them—were an integral part of Bettenhausen's analysis. The Indy type cars have a high headrest, which partly protects the driver, but not cages, bars built a foot or so high around the driver's seat.

"They are compulsory now on sprint cars and midget cars, every kind of car except these," Bettenhausen said. "I remember one year six men were killed in sprint races when their cars turned over. Since the cages were installed, I know of only two."

Art Pollard, killed in a practice spin prior to this year's time trials, was in a similar accident. Bettenhausen had his car turn eight flips before landing upside down in 1969 at Milwaukee.

"I was just lucky," he said.

"Later I told one of the drivers that we should have protective cages, and he just laughed at me. I felt like knocking his teeth in."

Junior champ track meet set Saturday

The annual junior champ track meet, sponsored by the Washington C. H. Jaycees, will be held Saturday at Gardner Park Stadium.

Don Gibbs, who is serving as chairman of the Jaycees annual project, said the track meet is open to all youngsters in Fayette County ages 9-16 for competition in four divisions.

Registration will start at 8:30 a.m. Saturday at Gardner Park with the meet immediately following. Gibbs said there will be no pre-registration this year as in past years.

AWARDS WILL be presented to the top three youngsters in each event of the four divisions of competition. The divisions are pee-wee (9-10), junior (11-12), prep (13-14) and intermediate (15-16). The intermediate division is for boys only.

Boys and girls will compete in the 50 and 100-yard dashes, running and standing broad jump and baseball throw in the pee-wee division. The boys will compete in the 50, 100 and 220-yard dashes, running broad jump, softball throw and high jump in the junior division. The girls will compete in the same events, with the exception of the 220-yard dash.

In the prep division, the events are the 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes, broad jump, high jump and shot put. The girls will have a softball throw and will not compete in the 440-yard dash. The intermediate division, for boys only, will have the 100, 220, 440 and 880-yard dashes, broad jump, high jump and shot put.

CHAMPION WRIST WRESTLER — Jill Edwards, 18-year-old from Seattle, went from novice to world champion in seven flicks of an "uneducated" wrist. The blonde bookkeeper said, "It's really kind of a gas" after she won the women's world wrist wrestling championship last weekend in Petaluma, Calif.

Messersmith matches mark

For it's 1...2...3 strikes you're out at the old ball game.

At least, that's the way it always was until Andy Messersmith and Joe Ferguson of the Los Angeles Dodgers decided to play a different tune Monday night.

Messersmith became the first pitcher in modern national league history to fan the first six batters at the start of a game, and matched the major league standard as he pitched the first inning of the Dodgers' 5-1 victory over the Phillies.

In the second inning, the only trouble was that Messersmith was playing fast ball and catcher Ferguson was playing passed ball.

Greg Luzinski struck out but reached first when the third strike got away from Ferguson. Bill Robinson and Mike Schmidt also fanned. Then Luzinski took second on another passed ball before Bob Boone broke the strikeout string with an outfield fly.

Messersmith, who finished with 12 strikeouts, picked up No. 7 by getting Unser again in the third...and again the pitch escaped Ferguson for another passed ball...and again a batter struck out only to wind up on first base.

Elsewhere, the San Francisco Giants held off the New York Mets 6-5, the Cincinnati Reds nipped the Chicago Cubs 6-5, the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Houston Astros 4-2, the St. Louis Cardinals edged the Atlanta Braves 3-2 and the Montreal Expos knocked off the San Diego-Washington Lame Ducks 7-6 on Clyde Mashore's three-run pinch homer with two out in the ninth inning.

Bobby Bonds belted a home run on the first pitch thrown by rookie Tommy Moore and added a run-scoring single when the Giants scored four times in the second en route to their victory over the Mets.

Juan Marichal boosted his lifetime record against New York to 26-5. He lost his shutout bid on John Milner's two-run homer in the sixth.

Joe Morgan singled home the winning run with one out in the ninth inning, providing the Reds with a comeback 6-5 victory over the Cubs.

Dock Ellis, with help from three relievers, halted his personal five-game losing streak in the Pirates' victory over Houston.

Rick Wise drove in what proved to be the winning run and pitched the Cardinals over the Braves with ninth-inning relief help.

Mashore's game-winning blow for Montreal followed two-out singles by Hal Breeden and John Boccabella and made him the 18th player in major league history to hit two consecutive pinch homers.

Rain clogs holiday golf action at WCC

Rain hampered golfers at the Washington Country Club over the Memorial Day weekend.

The two-man team best ball event was rained out Sunday. Club pro Tony Capuana said the event has been rescheduled for June 3 and interested golfers may register at the pro shop.

Rain also forced postponement of the Memorial Day mixed scotch twosome event. The mixed scotch twosome has been rescheduled for June 10.

GARY SHAFFER fired an actual score of 72 to ser the pace for the annual five-man team best ball event held Monday at Washington Country Club.

The quintet, led by Shaffer, fired a remarkable 17-under-par score of 55 on the wet Country Club links. Other members of the winning team and their scores were John Wylie 90, Carl Elberfeld 86, Walter Rettig 100, and Dave Ellis, 98.

Allen Willoughby swatted a 74 and Birch Rice carded a 76.

THE RESULTS

Gary Shaffer, John Wylie, Carl Elberfeld, Walter Rettig and Dave Ellis, 55.

Howard Miller, Frank Reno, Bob Miller, Warren Pollock and Bernie Light, 58.

Harris Willis, Robert Herron, Donald Long, Dale Wade and Daryl Stewart, 59.

Birch Rice, Mark Schaeper, Wilson Moon, Richard Kimmet and Ralph Cook, 59.

Allen Willoughby, Roger Miller, Phil Morrow, Ernie Stanforth and Bernard Eiselstein, 60.

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Sovereign Scotch paid $5.60, $3 and $2.20 in winning the feature race at Lebanon Raceway Monday night.

The winner was timed at 2:07 4-5 in the mile condition pace.

Limber Legs was second, returning $3 and $2.20. Miracle Lee paid $2.20 to show.

Lovely Maggie and Accordingy, 5-7, returned $36 in the daily double.

Handle was $111,635 from the crowd of 2,372.

Jeri Vo victorious in Scioto Downs race

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Jeri Vo was the feature winner by a nose Monday night at Scioto Downs, pacing the mile in 2:09 4-5.

The winner paid $8.80, $5.20 and $3, while Adios Can, who placed, returned $5.20 and $2.80. Show Philander, who showed, paid $2.40.

The 7-2 daily double of Mystery Trip and Lakewood Bud was worth $725.80.

The attendance was 6,101; handle $292,688.

Dixie Donna wins River Downs race

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A crowd of 10,096 watched Monday as Dixie Donna, a 15-1 longshot, won the 7½-furlong Memorial Day Handicap at River Downs.

The winner returned $32.80, $12.20 and $6.20. She was timed in 1:41 1-5.

Willie Sue paid $39 and $8.80. The show horse was Babington's Image at $4.

Purple Loom and Pet Bullet, 4-8, returned $126 in the daily double.

Handle from the season-high crowd was $734,905.

UC player charged

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Two University of Cincinnati football players from Kansas appeared in Hamilton County Criminal Court Monday on charges of possession of marijuana.

Alan Nation, 20, and Ronald Sorenson, 21, had their cases continued until June 11 by Judge Paul George.

Nicklaus easy Atlanta golf classic victor

ATLANTA (AP) — For more than a decade, Jack Nicklaus has been getting ahead of everyone else in professional golf. Now, it seems, he is even getting ahead of himself.

He's well ahead of the pace he established last year when he won seven titles—the most of his career in a single season—accumulated a record $320,542, and won Player of the Year honors.

And he's far ahead of his own timetable of preparations for defense of his U.S. Open Championship at Oakmont, Pa., June 14-17, his next big goal of the season.

"I'm really surprised I played this well," Nicklaus said after a front-running victory in the Atlanta Golf Classic last weekend, a triumph that was so easy the rest of the field admittedly was playing for second place, and runner-up Tom Weiskopf suggested Nicklaus should give the other pros some handicap strokes.

He once led by as many as nine strokes, and finished with a 272 total, a record 16-underpar on the tough, hilly Atlanta Country Club course.

His victory was worth $30,000 from the total purse of $150,000 and enabled him to regain his customary spot atop the season's money winning list with $176,064. Idle Bruce Crampton dropped back to second with $167,551.

In winning a record-tying 13 major championships and 48 American tour titles, Nicklaus has followed a program of rigid discipline in his scheduling, a program built around and aimed toward the major titles— the Masters, U.S. and British Opens and the PGA.

Learn To Drive This Summer

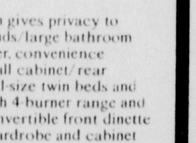

Without spending all of your valuable time.

A driver education course taught in a public school during the summer must last a minimum of four weeks. The Maximum time is often six to eight weeks.

A commercial driving school has no time regulation on the length of the course. An average teenager can often complete the course of study in two weeks and the in-car instruction can be scheduled at the student's convenience.

Cigarette habits going up in smoke?

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Cigarette smoking is going underground although it may be less harrassing to try to kick the habit than to find places where one can smoke in private.

So says Jacquelyn Rogers of Phillipsburg, N. J., a heavy smoker for 22 years, who is helping other smokers to resist cigarettes using a program she had devised for herself.

The California legislature, for example, is considering a "1973 Nonsmokers' Bill of Rights" that would establish nonsmoking areas in public buildings.

"Smoking became a cultural thing and it has come full circle — it is no longer considered nice to smoke. Many people, especially intellectuals, are going to great pains to conceal their identity with cigarettes — even hiding them in other people's desks," Mrs. Rogers learned in conducting her seminars for Smokenders, the organization founded five years ago by her and her husband Jon, a dentist.

HOUSEWIVES often are heavy smokers because they are more successful in squeezing in smoking time at home, and they are likely to find it harder to give up than most smokers, she explained.

Mrs. Rogers has worked with more than 1,800 people and she has given additional training to students who have helped another 6,000 in seminars conducted in the Northeast, although now they are expanding to other states and a chapter has been formed in Arizona.

"Smoking is more than a nasty little habit," she remarked. "A number of students say they continued after several heart attacks and warnings by doctors. They simply couldn't stop. Involvement may be physiological, psychological, automatic and social. But it can be dealt with . . ."

A significant test for cut-off potential that might be tried at home is this one: Go 5 or 10 minutes without the usual cigarette and coping with the delayed action may put you on the road to ending the habit.

"But one shouldn't feel sorry for herself eyeing cigarettes and watching the clock during the time the urge is being delayed. Self-pity should do something — play with the dog, play a record, clean out a drawer . . ."

A YOUTHFUL-LOOKING, earnest mother of four, Mrs. Rogers is sympathetic to the pangs suffered by her students. She had tried every method of quitting cigarettes including psychiatry and hypnosis.

She wasn't even fazed by the laboratory horror pictures of the lungs and digestive system brought home by her husband, she says. But when her children were teenagers — three are now in college, and one is 12 — she began researching every available book and pamphlet on the subject.

Opening lead - king of clubs.

Bridge is often a struggle between good luck and good play. To win when suits break favorably and finesses succeed is no great accomplishment, but to win when suits break unfavorably — or finesses lose — is clearly a mark of good management.

Consider this deal where South got to six hearts with a minimum of formality. He reasoned that partner — having jumped to three hearts — had the equivalent of an opening bid in support of hearts, and he consequently knew that his own 19 high-card points would give him a good shot at the slam.

West led the king of clubs and the contract appeared to depend solely on finding the missing diamonds divided 3-2. In that case the only loser would be a diamond.

But after winning the club with the ace, drawing two rounds of trumps and cashing the A-K of diamonds, declarer discovered to his horror that the diamonds were divided 4-1 and that he would evidently have to lose two diamond tricks and go down one.

But South did not throw in the sponge prematurely. He saw that he had a perfectly legitimate chance for the slam, and he adjusted his play so as to overcome the poor diamond division.

He ruffed a club in dummy, cashed the A-K of spades, and ruffed dummy's last spade. He then led the ten of clubs and permitted West to win the trick with the queen, at the same time discarding a diamond from dummy.

West was now in bad shape. He had to return a spade or a club, and, in either case, South would discard dummy's last diamond as he ruffed the return in his hand. As a result, South's only loser proved to be a club — so he brought home the slam despite the diamond division.

Hoarseness Can Be Dangerous

I am a 13-year-old boy. For the past seven months I have been almost constantly hoarse.

I have attributed this to voice change, but now I am beginning to worry.

Is such prolonged hoarseness normal? Thank you.

A.S., Ohio

Dear A.:

My immediate reaction to your letter was admiration for the excellent way you have presented your problem.

Your mature judgment in seeking advice by letter is in conflict, however, with the fact that you and your parents have taken such a long time to find out the cause of your persistent hoarseness.

About the age of 13 the voice register of boys begins to change, but this should not be associated with hoarseness.

The larynx, or voice box, contains the two vocal cords with which we make sounds. These vocal cords come together when we speak or sing. They separate when we breathe.

Anything that interferes with the vocal cords as they vibrate against each other will produce hoarseness.

An ear, nose and throat specialist is particularly equipped to examine the vocal cords and quickly determine if any problem exists.

Most general doctors perform this examination, but usually choose to refer their patients to a throat specialist.

My own experience in cases such as yours is that vocal abuse due to the exuberance of youth is the most likely reason for continued hoarseness.

The yelling, the screaming at football, basketball and other games are responsible in most instances for swelling of the delicate lining of the vocal cords.

The spring and summer months are often accompanied by "Little League laryngitis," the aftermath of overenthusiastic cheering for one's team.

If no other cause for your hoarseness is found, rest your vocal cords as much as possible. Don't shout.

One more bit of advice. Some people falsely believe that whispering during periods of hoarseness spares their voice. This is a mistake, because whispering can actually put more strain on the vocal cords than well-modulated, controlled low speech.

While we're on the subject of laryngitis, let me tell my adult readers that there are many other causes besides vocal abuse.

A good rule of safety is that hoarseness that persists for more than a few weeks should be carefully investigated.

In Focus

by Charlie Pensyl

In the area of single lens reflex photography this business of through-the-lens metering is the subject for more confusion and misrepresentation than the Watergate soap-opera. First off we have the mis-named Spotmatic system in which the entire area, corner to corner and edge to edge, is measured thus giving a good all-over exposure idea. To me, this is the most sound system for the lensman who wants good all-over exposure. From there the intelligent photographer can fudge either over or under as he deems proper.

Leicaflex then comes along and measures the light only in the area of the little circle in the center of the viewfinder. A spot reading. In the hands of a pro, a lensman with plenty of savy, this sytem is far the most accurate since the photographer can take the reading off the face of the subject, or from the area within the picture which is the most important. However, in the hands of the tyro this system could lead to some poor exposures if the center spot was in an area which was not representative, exposure-wise. From the standpoint of sound photographic engineering these two systems are by far the best, each with its own areas of superiority.

From here the story gets ridiculous. There is the "Center-Weighted" system. This system assumes that the cameraman always places the subject in the center of the picture, and if you've ever attended CKFN you know that that's contrary to the laws of composition. O, yes, there's also the CLC system. This system uses two sensors reading top and bottom portions of the picture. It assumes we always take horizontal pix and always shoot landscapes where the sky is at the top edge. How about that? And there are several others just as ridiculous. Want further info? Come in.

Five persons hurt in area accidents

Heavy Memorial Day weekend traffic resulted in only nine traffic accidents in the city-county area, police and sheriff's departments reported.

Five persons were injured in the mishaps, four in one crash, and three drivers were cited for traffic law infractions.

Four Greenfield area residents were injured in a single car creash on Greenfield-Sabina Road, just north of the Fayette-Highland County line, Monday afternoon.

Sheriff's deputies said Mary R. Loaman, 51, RFD, Greenfield, was admitted to Greenfield Hospital with a fractured pelvis following the crash. The driver of the car, Robert L. Lowman, 17, and two other passengers all suffered minor bumps and bruises.

Officers said Lowman's car was northbound and failed to negotiate a sharp curve. The 1962 model car ran off the left side hitting a utility pole and tearing down four rods of fence on the James H. York farm.

Sheriff's deputies cited Lowman for reckless operation and driving with no operator's license. His car was moderately damaged.

POLICE CHARGED Emma M. Adams, 19, of 1031 Columbus Ave., with reckless operation following a single car crash near the Market-Delaware intersection Sunday afternoon.

Miss Adams suffered minor contusions and abrasions in the 4:47 p.m. mishap and was treated at Memorial Hospital.

According to police she was westbound on Market and attempted to turn right on Delaware. The car failed to complete the turn and rammed a tree in the yard of the Harold Hyer home, 632 E. Market St. The 1966 model car was extensively damaged.

OTHER accidents were:

POLICE

SATURDAY, 9:15 p.m. — Cars driven by Carolyn D. Junk, 51, Rt. 5, and Charles P. Bellar, 58, of 1147 Campbell St., collided on the Hidy Foods lot; damage minor.

MONDAY, 4:50 p.m. — Cars driven by Leroy J. Kettler, 62, Columbus, and Harry F. Lindsley, 68, Columbus were involved in a front-to-rear collision at the intersection of Court and Main streets; damage minor.

MONDAY, 9:50 p.m. — A semi-rig driven by Daniel N. Sheers, 27, Elizabeth, W. Va., bumped a sign post on the Borden Burger lot while making a delivery; damage slight.

SHERIFF

SUNDAY, 11:50 a.m. — Richard L. Augustus, 28, Springfield, was cited for failure to maintain assured clear distance after his car collided with the rear of another driven by Dianiah L. Brown, 26, Jeffersonville. The mishap occurred on Ohio 41-south of Carr Road; damage moderate.

SUNDAY, 5:55 p.m. — Cars driven by Margaret P. Clark, 38, Columbus, and Pearl E. Wright, 54, Mount Sterling, were involved in a collision on CCC Highway-E and Cook-Yankeetown Road; damage moderate.

MONDAY, 3 p.m. — Cars driven by Michael E. Davis, 19, Milledgeville, and Margaret Jackson, 40, Milledgeville, collided in Milledgeville; damage minor.

Mount Sterling stock dealer faces charges

MOUNT STERLING — John E. Ralston, of Mount Sterling, has been charged with violating accounting, record-keeping and fair trade practice requirements of the Packers and Stockyards Act, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Ralston is registered as a livestock dealer. He purchases feeder cattle in Southern Ohio, western West Virginia and Northern Kentucky, and resells to farmer feedlot operators in South-Central Ohio, according to the USDA.

USDA's Packers and Stockyards Administration charged in an administrative complaint that from May through July, 1972, Ralston:

— Billed and collected from farmer customers on the basis of false and incorrect weights in six different transactions.

— Issued acccountings to farmer customers on the invoice forms of a West Virginia market agency which were false and incorrect, in that the market agency had not made and issued the invoices; most of the weights and prices shown on the invoices exceeded the weights and prices at which the cattle had been sold to Ralston, and most of the purchases had not been made from the market agency shown on the invoice.

— Failed to maintain accounts and records sufficient to fully and correctly disclose all transactions involved in his dealer business.

Filing of the complaint does not prove that Ralston has violated the P&S Action, the USDA points out. He has a right to a hearing to determine whether the evidence supports the charges. If the charges are proved, he could be placed under a cease and desist order and his registration could be temporarily suspended.

Livestock dealers are prohibited — under the P&S Act — from engaging in any unfair or deceptive practices in the marketing of livestock.

The record in this case is open to the public. Copies of the complaint, P&S Docket 4798, may be obtained from the Information Officer, Packers and Stockyards Administration, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Damage reported in pair of fires

Jeffersonville firemen fought a blaze at the Robert Merriman home, Upper Jamestown Rd., Saturday night. Firemen said the furniture in the house apparently had caught fire while Merriman was asleep. He escaped without injury.

The home was heavily damaged.

Damage was estimated at $25 to the wiring on a 1964 model dump truck that caught fire Monday at the intersection of Walnut and Market streets. City firemen said Frank Elzey, driver for Cartwright Hauling, doused the flames with an extinguisher.

The blaze was blamed on a short in the ignition wiring.

Road, street crews slate spring chores

City, county and state crews will spend the week mowing and doing general spring maintenance chores.

County Engineer Charles P. Wagner said crews will be working on Railroad Street in Jeffersonville, and will be working on a culvert and a drainage project on Zimmerman Road as well as on a drainage project on Bloomingburg-New Holland Road at Knight Road. Workmen will also be spray-patching county highways throughout the county, in addition to mowing weeds.

Gene Fitzpatric, superintendent of the Ohio Highway Department in Washington C.H., said six mowers will be in operation and crews will be trimming along guard rails throughout the county. State crews also will be working on berms on Ohio 41, between Jeffersonville and Washington C.H., and will be widening an S-curve on Ohio 729, north of Jeffersonville. Work also is scheduled on the four-lane section of U.S. 35 at the I-71 interchange.

Bill Duncan, acting superintendent of the city's Service Department, said crews will be mowing, painting curbs in the downtown area and cleaning catch basins.

Find 2 youths in Ross County

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — Two boys who were the objects of a nine-hour search in Tar Hollow State Forest by scores of sheriff's deputies and volunteers were found unharmed Monday.

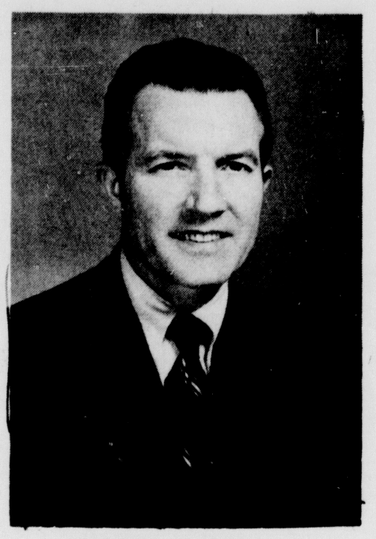

The boys, Fred Fuller, 13, and Rob Seagraves, 10, both of Columbus, became lost when they hiked away from their parents' campsite Sunday afternoon.

The Ross County sheriff's office said the boys slept in a lean-to they made of boards, limbs and leaves and then walked out of the woods to a farm home Monday morning.

Jerry R. Sheppard, outgoing president, will present a review of the past year's activities. Incoming and outgoing directors will be recognized, and the 1973-74 program of work will be announced by President-elect Fred Domenico.

The guest list for the annual meeting includes Dr. and Mrs. Kwok-Kuen Wong, representatives of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce and the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development.

CRISWELL began his Bell System career as a salesman in 1946. In 1950, he accepted a position as staff representative with the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. in New York, and returned to Ohio Bell in 1954.

In 1965, he assumed the responsibility for establishing an economic development program for Ohio Bell, and was named general community relations manager in 1968. He is responsible for the direction of Ohio Bell community relations and urban affairs activities.

Criswell served on the Council for the Reorganization of Ohio State Government, better known as the "Little Hoover Commission," and is a member of the Ohio Economic Development Council.

Orphaned children return home buoyed by donations

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The four Baker children, stranded and orphaned here since the death of their father Thursday, say they'll return home to Hamilton, Ohio, Friday—thanks to Memorial Day kindness of their neighbors.

"We've got enough to go back now," said 14-year-old Marie in an interview Monday. "They've been sending money orders, checks and cash. One woman even sent $700."

The children's plight began when their father died, leaving them living in a cramped, rundown apartment. Their father's last request was to be buried beside his wife in his hometown of Hamilton, but the children had no money.

Local newspapers told their story and Marie, says enough funds have come in for her and her brothers—Bruce, 11; Mike, 10; and Dennis, 7—to return to relatives in Ohio.

"Our dad's body will be going back with us," said Marie. "He'll be buried in Greenwood Cemetery in Hamilton."

In addition to about 100 pledges of monetary contributions, three San Francisco funeral homes volunteered their services. The Comisky-Roche Funeral Home has arranged to ship the father's body.

James Schnake, an attorney from nearby Oakland, has volunteered to set up a trust for the overflow in contributions. "It seemed like somebody ought to do something," Schnake said.

The children's mother died a year ago.

They have an uncle in Hamilton.

Waste disposal topic at County Board meeting

Fayette County commissioners met Tuesday with Dr. William E. Covert, health commissioner, and Charles Funk, sanitarian, to discuss preliminary plans for a six-county solid waste disposal system.

The multi-county system, according to commissioners, is in the early planning stages and probably will not become a reality for another three years. Fayette County commissioners have expressed an interest in the plan.

The commissioners also met with a representative of an insurance company to discuss the county employes' medical and hospitalization insurance program.

The county dog warden reported that 26 complaints were investigated during the past week.

Object thrown from car injures Jeff boy, 16

JEFFERSONVILLE — An object thrown from a passing car injured a 16-year-old Jeffersonville youth walking on Main Street in the village Saturday night.

Sheriff's deputies said Sherman K. Strikott, Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, suffered a broken nose, a chipped tooth and face lacerations. He was treated at Memorial Hospital and later released.

Strikott told officers he was walking north on Main Street when someone threw something from a passing car.

Zoo uses films to spur births

LONDON (AP)—London's Chessington Zoo says it showed a movie of chimpanzees kissing and cuddling to a chimp named Cressida and she was "overcome with passion."

"Apes seem to respond in much the same way as humans to sex shows," said zoo official Andy Bowen after the experiment with a television documentary made four years ago by the British Broadcasting Corp.

Bowen said the zoo plans to show its chimps "more explicit" monkey movies and "we hope to have the patter of tiny chimpanzee feet here very soon."

176 WSHS seniors receive diplomas at indoor ceremony

A rainy holiday weekend dampened the spirits of those who didn't travel out of state, but in spite of the weather, the Class of 1973 at Washington Senior High School had cause to rejoice when their high school careers came to a close Sunday afternoon.

School session in closing days

The restless days that end the school year are at hand for local students.

Thursday will be the last day of school for Miami Trace schools, city schools will close the year Friday afternoon.

These last days of school are especially important for high school students, who will be taking their final exams this week. Sophomores and juniors at Miami Trace will conclude their exams Wednesday before having an awards assembly on Thursday. Washington Senior High School will have final exams on Thursday and Friday.

On Tuesday, June 5, school bus service will be provided to take students to Washington Senior High to pick up their grade cards in their homerooms at 1:15 p.m.

Students at Miami Trace High School will be able to pick up their grades at the school office Monday through Wednesday of next week. Those who do not do so will receive their grade cards by mail.

Weekend law enforcement activity

Body of area man, missing since March 31, discovered

The badly decomposed body of a Mount Sterling area man, was discovered by three fishermen along Deer Creek, north of Cook-Yankeetown Road, Saturday afternoon.

Sheriff's deputies said the body of Joseph N. Snyder, 47, was identified from papers found at the scene. He had walked away from the Family Care Home, on Ohio 207, March 31, according to nursing home officials.

The body was discovered by three Columbus fishermen walking along the creek bank. They notified Mount Sterling police who notified Fayette County sheriff's deputies.

The body which had apparently been in the water for some time, was taken to Columbus for an autopsy. Officers said, however, that there were no indications of foul play.

A FRIDAY NIGHT burglary at the Union 76 store in Milledgeville, netted thieves 32 cartons of cigarettes and $40 in cash.

Officers said the store, operated by Betty Massie, 8277 Main St., was entered through a window at the rear of the building. Total loss in the burglary was set at $152.

An attempt was also made to enter the clubhouse at Buckeye Hills Country Club, Limes Road, Saturday night. Tom Robertson, club manager, told sheriff's deputies a large glass sliding door had been broken and attempts had been made to pry out the door casing. Damage was set at $125.

Marion Waddle, Rt. 2, reported that someone had removed the drain plug from the gas tank of a Miami Trace School bus parked at his home. Waddle said 40 to 50 gallons of gasoline ran out onto the ground. The incident occurred Sunday night.

Two tires and chrome wheels valued at $100 were stolen from the residence of Norman Troute, 804 Dayton Ave., Monday morning. The tires and wheels were on the front porch at the time, police said.

A large tent was stolen from the Mark Scott residence, 1136 E. Temple St., early Monday. The tent, valued at $75, was set up in the back yard.

APPROXIMATELY $25 in change was removed from a soft drink machine at the Sunshine Laundry, 122 East St., Saturday night. Police said the machine had been pried open. An attempt was also made to enter a change machine.

A soft drink machine at the National Trailer Convoy Inc., office, 305 W. Market St., was entered sometime Sunday night. Police said the thief had entered the building through an open basement window, then forced a door to get at the machine. About $5 in change was taken.

Someone knocked out a window at Sagar Store, 212 E. Elm St., Sunday night. Police said there was no entry. Damage was set at $15.

Pearl Self Jr., of 622 E. Elm St., reported that an object thrown from a passing car had broken out the right wing window on his car. Damage was set at $10.

Marvin Birch, 448 Broadway, told police someone entered his yard Friday night, and pulled up 19 geranium plants. An address sign was also damaged. Loss was set at $29.

John Hymer, of 220 Forest St., reported the theft of $10 in garden seeds and some small garden tools. Hymer said the items were removed from the rear seat of his unlocked car parked at his home Saturday night.

A 10-speed bicycle owned by Vicki Everhart, 431 E. Paint St., was stolen from the front porch of her home Saturday night. Loss was set at $30.
